Larry Dierker became the first 20-game winner in history of Houston Astros and Jim Wynn and Doug Rader backed him with solo homers in beating San Francisco.

Tony Perez knocked in three runs with three hits and Alex Johnson, Tommy Helms, Pete Rose and Woody Woodward each collected three hits in a 20-hit attack that spilled San Diego.

Jerry Koosman scattered six hits as the Mets won their 12th in 13 games in reducing their magic number for winning the East title to 10.

Ferguson Jenkins lashed a bases-loaded triple in a five-run sixth inning, helping himself to his 20th victory as the Cubs staggered to only their third triumph in their last 14 games.

The Chatham, Ont., native, who fanned six to break by one his own Cub season record of 260, became the first Chicago hurler in 50 years to post three successive 20-game winning seasons.

Rookie Al Oliver's 17th homer, a two-run smash in the eighth, gave Pittsburgh its victory over the Cards.

Tigers' Ontario Rookie Mows Down 13 Indians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 23-year-old rookie pitcher from Bradford, Ont., threw a five-hitter Wednesday and struck out 13 Cleveland batters to give Detroit Tigers a 5-0 shutout over the Indians.

Mike Kilkenny, a left-hander, pushed his record to 6-5. He had a no-hitter going until Vern Fuller doubled with two out in the fifth.

The Tigers got two runs in the first on a double by Jim Northrup with Tom Tresh on. Northrup scored on a wild pitch by Gary Boyd.

The Tigers added three more in the eighth on Tom Matchick's groundout after consecutive singles by Norm Cash and Willie Horton and a pair of bases-loaded walks by reliever Ron Law.

Elsewhere, Oakland Athletics stayed in the running for the West Division pennant as they downed Kansas City Royals 3-2 in 10 innings. The division leading Minnesota Twins, meanwhile, lost to California Angels 6-4.

The Athletics remained nine games back of the Twins with 14 games to play.

Chicago White Sox swept a doubleheader from Seattle Pilots 6-4 and 2-1 and New York Yankees nipped Washington Senators 2-1. The Baltimore Orioles at Boston game was rained out.

Oakland led 2-2 in the ninth when Mike Fiore doubled, moved up to third on a fly ball and, with two out, scored the equalizer on Jim Hunter's wild pitch.

But Bob Johnson, pinch hitting for Hunter, started the 10th with a single, Bert Campaneris also singled and after Rick Monday bunted into a force out at third, Bob Brooks broke the tie with a single.

It was the third hit for the 5-foot-8½ outfielder, recently called up from the minors, who had slammed his second major league homer in the third inning. Paul Lindblad checked the Royals in the bottom of the 10th, preserving the victory for Hunter and clinching at least a second place finish for the Athletes.

The Angels roughed up Dean Chance in the early innings and held off Minnesota behind Ken Tatum's clutch relief pitching. Jay Johnstone paced the California attack with three singles.

Tatum rescued winner Tom Murphy in the seventh, when the Twins struck for three runs to close the gap.

Public Works Puts Ceiling on Rental Paid Ottawa Developers

OTTAWA (CP) — Office buildings are still rising like spring dandelions around Parliament Hill but the days of wine and roses may be over for developers.

This summer, while public servants impatient to get into new quarters stewed, Arthur Laing held out for seven weeks to force rentals in several new buildings below $4.50 a square foot.

One by one the developers, who had hoped for rentals approaching $5 a square foot, caved in.

"That day, I saved $11,500,000 in rents," says Mr. Laing, whose mandate as public works minister is to be tough.

The real estate boom began here in the mid-1950s when the growing public service spilled out of old quarters into more and more rented space.

One result is that slum dwellers now are paying $180 a month for substandard downtown flats—hundreds of low-rental walks-ups were demolished in the boom—and the government is spending $18,000,000 a year for rent.

Ottawa, Mr. Laing said in an interview Wednesday, has become "a great inflated bag of real estate nonsense."

He hopes to let some air out of the bag by:

—Keeping the rental tab below $4.50 a square foot.

—Building in Hull, Que., across the river.

—Doing more building than renting.

Justifying the decision to build, he said the government can get money far cheaper than the 12 to 14 per cent private developers pay, and pass along in the form of high rents.

Cracks appeared in his image as a ruthless cost-cutter when in June plans were disclosed for a $30,000,000 CNR-government project. The news came shortly after Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced budget measures to cool off commercial and government construction in 22 cities, including Ottawa.

"If there is going to be overcrowding, it is better that it take place in stores, offices and banks than in homes and factories," said Mr. Benson.

Furthermore, the CNR-government project wasn't a certainty. If bids to be opened today on the first contracts are too high, the government would back out.

"There is no firm assurance we'll go ahead."

Plans to build a manpower, immigration and consumer affairs building in Hull left Ottawa developers shaken.

Mr. Laing says it should help take the pressure off prices.

One hold-up is Hull's lack of water and sewage treatment facilities. The government may have to build a small temporary plant to avoid further pollution of the Ottawa River.

The first two floors of the Hull building will be rented as shops and boutiques to help pay building costs.

Community Involvement

Warden Donald Rodgers of Hastings county expressed the audience's appreciation of the panel discussion on school and community co-operation in the Quinte district. Panel members, from left to right, were Gerald Zerbe of Flint, James Clarke, Hastings board of education chairman, Murray Irwin, Mrs. Lee Jourard, Rev. Stanley Genlie and Felix Walker of Trenton.

TV-Radio Column

Room 222, Bronson Good Fare

NEW YORK (AP) — Two new offerings, presented on ABC and NBC Wednesday night, promise to be fine additions to the television season: Room 222 and then Canne Bronson.

Bronson first rode his motorcycle onto the NBC screen last season in one of those movies-for-TV and it appeared to be just another action shog, about a laconic young man riding a motorcycle from adventure to adventure.

But if the series' first episode is typical, it will be much more. The program had Bronson picking up a job at a summer camp for disturbed children. The story then focused on one boy who was completely withdrawn, without speech and self-destructive.

The hour was primarily devoted to showing how Bronson used the boy's affection and interest in the motorcycle to reach his troubled mind. Although the story was a delicate tapestry it was not without drama. The boy escaped from Bronson during a critical moment and his final breakthrough was moving.

Michael Parks in the title role is a silent, sober young man who reminds one of the late James Dean. The opening segment, however, was stolen by Mark Lester, who played the disturbed boy.

Room 222 centred on Pete Dixon, a history teacher in a big city high school. The first episode, introducing the continuing characters, told how a sympathetic and involved instructor kept a bright pupil from being shipped to an inferior school.

While the physical background of the half-hour ABC series is reminiscent of the old Mr. Novak series, this one looks at schools and teachers from another angle. It probably must be counted a situation comedy —what else has a laugh track? but Lloyd Haynes, a newcomer, makes a vital young history teacher. The fact that he is black is noted, but not hammered in.

The program made its points, about learning, about human and race relations, but with dispatch and managed to get in some rich humor and amusing lines frequently.

The Courtship of Eddie's Father, which preceded it on ABC, fared less well. Central characters in this were a young widower, played by Bill Bixby, and the six year old son who even in the first show seemed to be the more mature, less flappable.

The show's gimmick apparently will be the boy's determination to find a wife for his father. In the first episode he invited home a candidate, but it all moved rather slowly and predictably.

Unemployment Dips To 3.7 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment between July and August fell by 31,000 to 318,000 persons or 3.7 per cent of the labor force, Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the manpower department said today in a joint report.

The number of unemployed was virtually the same as a year earlier. The percentage was the lowest since October and down from July's 4.1 per cent.

The labor force shrank by 61,000 persons to 8,489,000 in August and employment declined by 30,000 to 8,171,000. The decline in employment was largely among teen-agers, the report said.

The August figures result from a sample survey of about 35,000 households during the week ended Aug. 23.

The employment picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Aug.	July	Aug.
	1969	1969	1968
Labor force	8489	8,550	8,284
Employed	8171	8,201	7,965
Unemployed	318	349	319

The decline in unemployment reflected withdrawal of unemployed students from the labor force. The number of unemployed between the ages of 14 to 19 declined by 52,000, partially offset by a 21,000 increase in unemployment among those 20 or over.

Of the total unemployed in August, 106,000 or 33 per cent had been out of work for less than a month, 36 per cent for one to three months and 31 per cent for four months or more.

The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in August was 4.9 per cent.

Dead Man's Role No Easy Chore

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — You may just danced a clog to show have Dick Johnstone's expert the customers his youthful agility, now he actually used. In take after take, for a minute or more, he had to sit stone rigid, staring.

Another time, in The Raven, he came to life in a coffin, sat up, grabbed Vincent Price by the neck cried "Beware!" and sank back, dead again.

A reporter, Norman Johnstone of Toronto, is a night club and television performer in Canada.

Johnstone, 76, reared in Scotland and Canada, was 20 when he rode the rods to Los Angeles and got an extra part in a Will Rogers western. Since then he has been in "thousands of pictures, an uncountable number," as extra, stand-in bit player and now, character actor.

On a recent day at the Samuel Goldwyn Studio, Johnstone was playing dead in The Cheyenne Social Club, a Jimmy Stewart—Henry Fonda western with comic touches.

Scene: A crowded frontier saloon, poker game in background, hostesses plying to and fro. Johnstone sits at a table between actor J. Pat O'Malley and a grizzled Fonda, staring at Fonda. O'Malley, playing a medicine man, explains that Johnstone is his 111-year-old assistant, has been drenched in Red Rose Nectar all his life, and "notice how steady his nerves are."

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them and pay them well.

No, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school. A school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centres and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you during the day, evening — even Saturdays.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step in your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you — if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose? ECPI

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market moved into its fourth consecutive upward session today, overcoming a small opening loss and advancing fractionally in light mid-morning trading.

The western oil index, down 27.57 in the last five days as stocks of companies with Alaskan interests came under pressure, gained 1.27 to 221.29, apparently on some bargain buying.

Home A was up 1¾ to 46¾, Home B 1¼ to 41¼, Ranger 1¼ to 13½ and Western Decalta 35 cents to $7.60.

On index, industrials were up .25 to 178.88 and golds .32 to 162.88. Base metals slipped .36 to 109.51.

Falconbridge rose 3 to 142, a high for the year, although Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Inco gained ¾ to 40¾. Inco's Ontario operations have been closed down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Stelco slipped ¼ to 22¾ and Algoma Steel was up ¼ to 18¼. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 395,000 shares compared with 465,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Wednesday, western oils continued to weaken as the market overcame a small opening loss and advanced moderately for its third consecutive upward session.

The western oil index lost r.11 to 220.02, bringing its loss in the last five days to 27.57. Stocks of companies with Alaskan interests continued to come under pressure as the speculative excitement that drove them to record-high levels this year ended last week with the Alaskan oil lease sales.

Horne B dropped 3 to 40. Horne A 2¾ to 45¾, Aquitaine 2 to 20¼, Ranger 1 to 13¼, Western Decalta 75 cents to $7.25 and Petrol six cents to $1.69.

A bid for a tract of land in the Alaskan North Slope area by Ranger was rejected Wednesday by the state.

Falconbridge rose 2¼ to 139. Talks aimed at settling a Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' strike that began at Falconbridge Aug. 21 resumed this week.

Inco picked up ¼ to 40¾. Inco's Ontario operations have been closed down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Stelco slipped ¼ to 22¾ and Algoma Steel was up ¼ to 18¼. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 19

Your birthday today: The fascination of progress in motion promises incentive for a strong drive in the coming year. As efforts bring results more opportunities are created — the challenge is to stay up with the frontiers of probability. Today's natives are often either writers or strongly interested in reading serious literature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Use your social grace for advancing your career. Go with a younger companion or a group to a meeting of people with similar interests. Be alert for new ideas. Romance is near at hand!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Self-improvement, creative activities are strongly featured today. Make every effort to concentrate on a single important direction. Rearrangement of group finances is feasible — with proper advice.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): For once almost everyone is apparently willing to heed your advice. Get romantic guidance yourself in order to settle your savings and investments in a reliable manner. Have a good time tonight with friends.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today and tonight abound with people striving for advantage. Your energies rise so you cope and compete well. Tact at this time is valuable beyond price.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Put on your best attire and your most attractive manners today. Wind up the week with good style. Plan or give a party this evening, invite colleagues.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —Sept. 22): If you have found what you want to concentrate on for a sustained period, begin a course of study now. Look carefully at an unusual invitation — it may have a feature in it you would not. Reconsider your loved ones first this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Cosmetics, art materials are always available, but today you have luck in finding just the right thing. Your mail brings social news that interests you or adds to some progress. Seek a chance to negotiate matters of policy regarding your career.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): The urge is to make hasty changes in your morning and muddle things beyond ready salvage. Stick to earlier plans, especially those cleared with authorities. Your friends bring you a pleasant surprise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your most stubborn streak appears and you are tempted to balk at doing the things most important to your welfare. Stay with your diet and any prescription you're taking. Hold your tongue and thereby your friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Secret arrangements come to light, your partners' as well as your own. Older people open many doors. Family and in-laws are peaceful for the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Let others tend the work as far as you can; take time to live up answers to home and family problems. Seek important people where you have a proper introduction.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Everybody changes his mind about all kinds of things. You may be teased over a small discrepancy or misunderstanding. Beware of foolish friends and the reflection that spreads out from their misadventures over their associates.

Not Working Now: Kvarda

Regional Planning Proposal Tabled Until Mid-October

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A motion to dissolve the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and set up a regional planning area was tabled by Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night, pending a mid-October meeting on regional development called by the City of Belleville.

The recommendation that the three contributing municipalities of Belleville, Sidney and Thurlow advise the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs to set up regional planning, with individual municipal boards to be permitted if desired, was made by Zdenek Kvarda.

"The present situation isn't working and never has worked," he said. "The board is working for three bosses (the three municipalities) and the workload is getting heavier as other townships consider entering their planning areas. We lack long-range planning. An area board could take care of long range planning, leaving local boards to look after details."

"To whom would this regional board answer?" asked director Bert Kenny. "You can't divorce planning from the policy makers, in other words, the politicians."

Mr. Kvarda said the only political body that could take the responsibility at present is the county. Later, he said, regional government would take over.

"Thurlow has no intention of joining a county planning area if we can stay out of it," commented Reeve Horace Casey of Thurlow.

"Regional government is on your doorstep," Mr. Kvarda warned. "A survey is going on now in Northumberland-Durham, and the surveyors could be over our boundaries tomorrow."

Ald. E. A. Orr said he "couldn't see the county board working in other than a co-ordinating capacity," with most planning work being done on the basis of a smaller unit.

Mayor Russell Scott told the board the city has called a meeting in Bleecker Auditorium in mid-October, to which all municipal council representatives in the county have been invited. The purpose is to discuss regional development and planning.

At Mr. Kvarda's suggestion, his motion was tabled until the outcome of the meeting is known.

Another motion of Mr. Kvarda's, that the Industrial commission be dissolved, failed to get a seconder.

He called for the dissolution of the present industrial commission and the setting up of an economic development commission, with new objectives.

"We can get too much industrial expansion and too much expansion brings problems," he said.

"We may have to gear our operations to economic development in other areas than industry," Mr. Kvarda continued. "We are not now encouraging economic development in any other field but industry. We should diversify."

He mentioned attracting developers to renew the downtown area, and called for more commercial and service industry expansion.

Mayor Scott protested that industrial expansion in Belleville has yet to reach the saturation point.

"The industrial commission is a department of the city, like public works," he said. "There is no other legal way to operate."

Nuclear Role Ends
Brigade Reorganized
Bonaventure To Be Decommissioned

NATO Cut by 4,800

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Leo Cadieux today announced that Canada's land and air forces in Europe will be reduced to 5,000 from a present strength of about 9,800 by the fall of next year.

Mr. Cadieux said the government also has decided to discontinue the nuclear strike role of Canada's air division in Europe by January of 1972.

The mechanized brigade group stationed in Germany will drop the nuclear role of its Honest John artillery battery when the brigade is reorganized next year.

Dealing with Maritime Command, the defence minister told a news conference that the carrier Bonaventure and the escort maintenance ship Cape Scott will be decommissioned in 1970.

Virtually all of Canada's Atlantic naval forces will continue to be earmarked for NATO in the event of an emergency.

As a consequence of a sweeping reorganization of the forces announced by Mr. Cadieux, three well-known infantry regiments will be dropped from the regular force: The Canadian Guards, the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and the Black Watch Royal Highland Regiment of Canada.

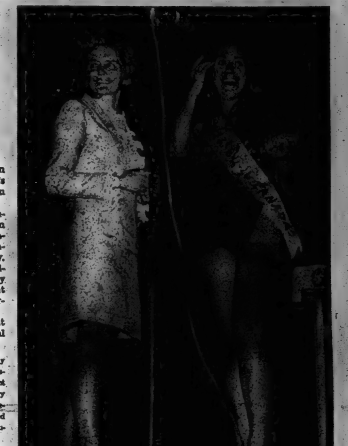
Canada's air defence forces will remain "much as they are" for the present, Mr. Cadieux said in a prepared statement.

This means that while opting out of the nuclear role in Europe, Canada has decided to retain its nuclear capability in North American air defence. Canada's NORAD-assigned Voodoo interceptors can carry nuclear weapons.

Plans are to "phase out" the mechanized brigade group and the air division in Germany by the fall of 1970, when co-located land-air elements will be established under one headquarters in southern Germany.

These will be at Lahr and Baden Soellingen, where the air division is currently based. The brigade group is at present based in and near Soest, on the north German plain.

The reorganized forces will use present equipment and will have a combined total strength of about 5,000.



The changes announced today were in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's announcement April 3 that Canada would carry out a "planned and phased reduction" of its forces assigned to the Atlantic alliance in Europe.

Mr. Cadieux said the force he was outlining is considered by his advisers to be "a viable force capable of meeting the tasks set by the government."

Mr. Cadieux described the forces which Canada will maintain in Germany during the next three years as interim forces.

The land force will be a mechanized battle group of about 2,800 personnel. The air element will be a group of three squadrons of CF-104 Starfighters, one in the reconnaissance role and two in the strike role.

"For the post-1972 period we plan to equip a land element in Europe, of approximately the same size as the interim group, as a light air-mobile force and to convert the air element to a conventionally armed ground support or reconnaissance role."

Bolton Wins Riding In Middlesex Upset

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government of Ontario put its record on the line in a provincial by-election Thursday and lost — to the New Democratic Party.

The voters in the Middlesex South constituency that includes part of the city of London rejected a Conservative and a Liberal in favor of Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, 52, of the Anglican Church, who ran for the NDP.

With all 133 polls reported after voting that ran from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. EST, Archdeacon Bolton had 8,326 votes to 6,630 for Walden Allan, Conservative, and 4,774 for David McDonald, Liberal.

It leaves the Progressive Conservative government of Premier John Roberts with 66 seats in the 117-seat provincial legislature. Liberals hold 28 and the NDP 21.

The Middlesex South vacancy was the only one in the house and resulted from the death last Feb. 11 of Neil Olde, the Conservative member.

As far as anyone could diagnose political affronts, the government defeat seemed to be due to the Progressive Conservatives' medical insurance plan and potentially tax-hiking programs for regional school boards and changes in tax assessments.

These were issues in the riding where about 60 per cent of the voters were in rural areas and 40 per cent in urban sections, including London. There were 12,013 eligible voters and almost 68 per cent turned out, compared with 82 per cent in the last provincial general election in 1967.

Premier Roberts said in a post-election interview: "I'm disappointed to lose as I always am when I lose. I would have

Bombs Wrack Mexico

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Police and soldiers today placed heavy guards around key points in the wake of a series of bomb attacks on government and newspaper offices.

The government moves followed seven bomb explosions within the space of a few hours in which four persons were injured. Two other unexploded bombs also were found.

A bomb was discovered Thursday night in the control centre of Telesistema Mexicano, a major television network, police reported.

Thirteen thousand policemen and an unknown number of soldiers were deployed at railway and gas stations, government offices and other strategic installations. They were ordered to join a house-to-house hunt for suspects in the terrorist attacks.

Barriers Replaced By Paint

BELFAST (AP) — The Roman Catholics of Londonderry, the town where the Catholic-Protestant war erupted last month, agreed today to tear down their barricades Monday.

They will be replaced by thin white-painted lines to keep the feuding Protestants and Catholics apart.

Sean Keenan, chairman of the Derry Citizens-Defence Association in the Catholic Bogside district, told reporters after 24 hours of talks with the British Army that:

—Military police will not try to arrest anyone in Bogside for anything done before the barricades come down.

—Military police will be allowed to enter the area in answer to emergency calls, but other troops will stay out.

—The Bogsiders' vigilante police force will continue to operate in the district.

Keenan said the barriers would not be removed until Monday because Rev. Ian Paisley, the Protestant militant, is scheduled to hold a meeting in Londonderry Sunday, "and perhaps a few of his followers might try to make their way into the Bogside."

Orly Air Traffic Slowed

PARIS (Reuters) — Air traffic controllers for the Paris region today decided to work by the book in a move that could add chaos in the air to the monster transportation paralysis on the ground.

The controllers said they would allow landings and take-offs at Le Bourget and Orly airports only every 10 minutes.

This is the delay required by the rules. But in practice a plane takes off or lands at the airports every three minutes.

The controllers, demanding better working conditions, set the time limit for their slowdown. If extended, it could cause severe backlogs in air traffic to the French capital.

Meanwhile, road traffic jams built up for miles around Paris as harassed commuters struggled through fog patches and rain to beat subway and bus strikes, now in their fourth day.

In the city itself, main thoroughfares were choked and parking was a nightmare although traffic police appeared to be turning a blind eye to all but the most blatant offences.

Hundreds of feet tomorrow kick off the campaign to give Belleville a new-year round recreation centre.

The feet come in all shapes, sizes an dages, with one common denominator — the intent to help fund the proposed $180,000 Quinte Action Centre.

It'll be a motley crew that strikes out behind a band from the Memorial Arena at 7:30 a.m. to march 30 miles around the Bay of Quinte. Appearances will be deceptive.

Charlie Powell will be there — a veteran hiker who keeps in shape on an eight-mile daily postman's round.

There'll be Angela Pape — despite her nine years already a walkathon veteran.

There'll be hundreds more — carrying sponsors' pay-by-the-mile pledges.

Beautiful - - and Beaming

Peggy Kraft (centre) was still slightly bemused by it all last night after winning United Appeal beauty contest. But fellow (or is it sister) contestants Mary Ness (left) and Susan Winters shared happy reaction to her win. Girls were among 17 bidding for title at Centennial Secondary School.

Peggy Kraft Crowned Miss United Appeal

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter.

There's more to being a community beauty queen than just a pleasing face, figure and personality.

As Peggy Kraft sees it, the title also merits community spirit.

At least that's the way the winsome Belleville resident responded last night to one of the biggest moments in her 21 years.

Peggy, happily hailed as Miss United Appeal in the crowning moment of the fund's beauty contest qualified for a top $100 cash prize.

The title-winner then went on to win the hearts of spectators — and fund organizers — crowning Centennial Secondary School auditorium for the event.

Peggy gracefully accepted the $100 cheque — then turned it back to the United Appeal fund.

The young telephone operator's spontaneous gesture caught contest officials momentarily off guard. In fact, in the excitement of the moment, it's doubtful the goodwill gratuity totally registered with the crowd.

Not that Peggy would have noticed. The win left her nervous.

But her donation was in keeping with the theme of her one-minute speech — mandatory for all contestants—made at the contest opening.

She called on Belleviliians to support the 1969 United Appeal campaign — even beyond its objective.

"The goal is $130,000. Let's see if we can surpass this," she pleaded.

Peggy still came out of the contest with an armful of gifts reasing between the traditional beauty queen's red - rose bouquet.

Included among them is a holiday weekend in Toronto and a casketful of costume jewelry.

Brunette, blue eyed - and five-foot-six, Peggy has lived in Belleville for the past four years. She's been with Bell Telephone Co. company she represented last night for two years.

Last night's event drew contestants from 17 city industries — a total greater than Appeal organizers had expected.

Despite occasional nervousness in speechmaking, the attractive lineup of young Belleviliens bidding for the beauty title strode the stage almost like veterans — despite it being a first public appearance for most.

The event went without a hitch — despite a last-minute rescheduling when cool weather forced it indoors from Zwick's Island bandshell.

Master of ceremonies, Radio Station CJBQ broadcaster Phil Flagler, had no problem sparking enthusiasm of spectators for the event.

Judges, representing a community cross section, were Alderman Robin Jeffrey, Mrs. Jean Smith, United Appeal chairman; Lt. J. Fast, Canadian National Rideau-area manager; H. Myles Morton, Intelligencer vice-president, and W. A. Thompson, Northern Electric plant manager.

Disputes Housing Shortage, Urges Apartment Land Freeze

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Belleviliians are being overpaid on the shortage of housing and the city is pre-zoned for multi-family dwellings, its planning director says.

Bert Kenny told the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night that this is the logical time to cut back on the amount of land designated for apartments.

His remarks came during discussion of a re-zoning application submitted by Mrs. John Clark and Mrs. Beasie Sletcho for two parcels of land they own, south of Prince of Wales School between Prince of Wales Drive and Moira Street East.

The two women wish to sell a portion of their holdings for 12 and 24-unit apartment blocks.

On a motion by Mayor Russell Scott their application was tabled until further information could be obtained.

"I would be prepared to vote in favor of the re-zoning for multi-family use if we received a joint application from all the residents in the block," the mayor said.

The two applicants intended to retain their houses in the area now zoned residential.

Six houses on the corner of East Moira and College streets were not included in the area to be re-zoned.

"The entire block is an ideal site for two high-rise apartment buildings," Mr. Kenny told the board. "This block is visible from Highway 37, a major entrance to the city. A greenbelt area is planned for each side of the river in that area. We need an existing and dramatic building on the block."

The director questioned, however, whether or not this is the logical time to re-zone more land for apartments.

"We already have approved land for construction of 1,100 to 1,300 units of apartments since last year," he said. "In addition, 1,100 to 1,500 acres of land in the older residential sections of the city carry multi-family dwelling zone designations."

"But developers don't want those sites," commented Mrs. Margaret Orr.

"Apartments are being built now on many sites," Mr. Kenny replied. "We are being over-sold on the shortage of housing and are being rushed into unplanned development."

Zdenek Kvarda said he was opposed to any re-zoning, except by a developer, "so we can tell him down to a site plan."

This was the second time a re-zoning application for the property had been submitted to the planning board by city realtor Douglas Grant on behalf of the applicants.

After being tabled two months ago because of unsatisfactory approach roads, changes were sketched in and the maps and application resubmitted.

"I'm not prepared to make a recommendation tonight without a map showing size of buildings, size of lots, parking and side yard arrangements," Mr. Kenny said.

"It's not fair that one man should hold up Mrs. Clark, who has a written agreement of sale," Mrs. Sletcho told the board.

"I am living on a pension, cannot afford the expense of another map and won't submit one."

Board May Hire Third Planner

Tentative approval was given last night for the hiring of a third planner for the staff of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, provided the three municipalities sharing the cost of the board give their consent.

The request was made by planning director Bert Kenny, who told the board that due to pressure of current business and shortage of professional planners on staff, "planning is slowly bogging down".

The board now has two professional planners, Mr. Kenny, and his assistant, Frank Stokmans.

The request was strongly supported by Mayor Russell Scott.

"Due to shortage of staff, this board has been reacting instead of leading," he said. "It is just catching up with current problems and has no time for planning. If we don't hire more help, we'll wake up two years from now still without an official plan."

"The official plan is getting to be a standing joke," commented Dr. John Reid.

Mr. Kenny told the board the entire time of one planner would be required to complete the official plan and prepare the accompanying zoning bylaw. The cost of the latter would be save as a minimum of $10,000, to be shared proportionately by the three contributing municipalities. This year the city of Belleville contributed $6,500, Thurlow $800 and Sidney $600.

"If you had an incored staff, could you do the downtown study, if the urban renewal contract with Procter-Redfern were cancelled?" asked the mayor.

"One man couldn't complete that study," Mr. Kenny told him.

"The townships will be paying for the planner," said Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney. "Will they get any benefit, or will his time all go to the downtown Belleville area?" he asked.

Reeve Horace Casey said he would like to see all of Sidney and Thurlow included in the planning area. He suggested the board hire enough planners now to prepare for that eventuality.

"I feel sorry for the planners," he said, "because the work load is too heavy for them to cope with," said Ald. E. A. Hicks.

He recommended the hiring of a third planner "at the soonest possible time," with provision made in the 1970 budget to cover his salary.

Approval of the three municipal councils must be obtained before the new planner can be added to the staff.

Club Members Enjoy Handicrafts, Art Display

The first meeting of the Quinte International Club was held at the Family YMCA Saturday, the evening featured handicrafts and prints of famous cave paintings done centuries ago by members. A display as well were prints of the many famous buildings in cities of Europe of casual architectural significance.

Dr. B. M. Hegdekar addressed the club on the political and geographical aspects of the country. Afterward he showed informative slides and movies of different areas of the country and cities.

The evening closed with a corn roast and coffee.

The Quinte International holds their monthly meetings on the second Saturday of every month at the YMCA. Membership is open to all interested citizens.

Planning Is for Planners, He Finds

Planning director Bert Kenny last night called for a strong Canadian policy from members of Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, but was seen back in his office to draw up the policies himself.

"The director is non-political, and objective," commented Mayor Russell Scott.

"Let him draw up suggested policies for us, and we'll debate them later."

"If the municipalities say, 'we're not prepared to define policies, then there is no use in having an official plan," Mr. Kenny said.

He supported development that grows outward from the urbag centre, a close relationship to underground services.

"It is false economy to allow scattered pockets of development without city services, to leap-frog across the townships he told the board. "Although it is thought to be less costly than development on serviced lots, the amenities — playgrounds, improved roads, fire and police protection — will eventually have to be paid for."

"How big an area do we plan for urban development?" he asked. "Outside this area, how much development should be allowed? All development should be based on a population projection, and land uses related to the target population 30 years from now. Outside the development area, rural use will have to be limited."

Reeve Jack Bush of Sidney objected to stringent land use controls beyond city limited areas.

"We now have subdivision control on most of Sidney," he said. "As a result, more building lots are being brought out this year over the boundary in Rawdon than ever before."

"In other words, you are telling me lack of planning is the best way to promote development," replied Mr. Kenny.

"When you look at a map of the township showing pockets of residential development, it looks as though a shotgun fired in the place," commented Mayor Scott.

"And this shotgun development has spread far beyond future valuable industrial land," added Mr. Kenny.

Mayor Scott called for strong development policies, reining building to availability of sewer and water services.

Gem Club Elects Executive

Quinte Gem and Mineral Club held its first meeting of the 1969-70 season Wednesday evening at the research institute, Dundas Street East.

Vice-president Al Reid chaired the meeting in the absence of president Charles Jeffs.

After the minutes and business portion of the meeting, Mr. Reid asked for a slate of new officers for the coming year.

Those elected: president, Bob Calnan; vice-president, Mrs. Doris Ruest; 2nd. vice-president, Ron Walmsley; secretary, Mrs. Jean Reid; treasurer, Mrs. Blackwell; publicity, Allen Montgomery; assistant publicity, Mrs. Velma Wallbridge; program committee, Mac Powell; membership chairman, Gordon Alyea; field trips, Gordon Blackwell.

Manley Fyrd brought everyone up to date on the preparations of the annual Rockhound Show to be held at Parkdale Community Centre.

Being an international show, Mr. Fyrd stated that many American rockhounds as well as Canadians will be attending.

The "show and tell" period was one of the best, at this meeting with many varied rock and mineral specimens shown.

Doris Ruest brought a sample of Welgaanite which is very rare, indeed, and may only be found on Montreal Island. It was first discovered by Ann Sabina, the author of a famous rockhound mineral identification book.

Irwin Knight and Gordon Alyea also brought interesting specimens to the meeting. A few samples were shown from as far away as the Arctic Islands and some from Mexico.

The junior members spoke freely of their summer experiences, and new finds, and quite often located better specimens than their fellow senior members.

Paul Biesstie was present with a good selection of blue fluorite collected in the Madoc area.

Film Debut Slated Here

Belleviliians will get a chance to enjoy a film premiere debut the coming week.

The Lifeline program film "As Close as Your Telephone", will be shown in St. Thomas Parish Hall Tuesday at 8 p.m. Mayor J. R. Scott will attend the premiere to represent the city.

Lifeline, which has operated in Belleville for the past few years, is a familiar service to those who need someone to talk to.

The service consists of a Lifeline telephone, manned 24 hours a day by a trained counsellor who is ready to answer any call for help, or simply relieve loneliness.

The film itself was shot in Sydney, Australia and attempted to convey an adequate impression of what is involved in establishing a Lifeline Centre.

An explanation of the Belleville operation and its counsellor training course will also be given at the premiere.

Forgery Suspect Nabbed, Bank Staff Praised

A chase through Belleville's downtown area and the arrest of an Ottawa man prompted Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie to praise members of the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia on Front Street.

Charged with uttering a forged document is Maurice Guertin, 25, of Ottawa.

Mr. Crosbie said the chase began yesterday morning at 11 a.m. when a man entered the Bank of Nova Scotia and tried to cash a Government of Canada cheque. The man produced identification as well, he said.

The teller, Mrs. June Rose, recalled a circular that her bank had received concerning the theft of 4,000 blank Government of Canada cheques in Ottawa, and she informed Mrs. Claire McCooeyes who called the bank's accountants, Ian Briggs and Keith Booth, and the police.

Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid entered the bank and the man took flight and was chased along Front Street by Mr. Reid, Mr. Briggs and Mr. Booth.

The man ran down Campbell Street and encountered Const. Elmer Meunier who was coming out of the police station. He then ran down a blind alley where he was nabbed.

"The bank employees did an excellent job," Mr. Crosbie said this morning. "They deserve a lot of credit."

Veteran Policeman Retires from Trenton Force

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — The friendly policeman of Trenton retired from the local force yesterday after serving just two months short of 25 years.

Affable Staff Sergeant Walter Youmans, 60, at home after his last shift had ended was looking forward to a lot of hunting and fishing in leisure time he plans to spend in the north country around Denbigh.

"I don't think I've got too many enemies even among fellows I've arrested a dozen times," he reflected as he recalled incidents from the years of experience as a local law officer.

All of his service in Trenton under three different chiefs of police was in harmony he recounted. The reason he gave for getting along with his employers "because I learned as a young man to give a day's work for a day's pay."

In 1963 in appreciation for loyalty and devotion to duty he received a distinctive 20 year service medal from the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs.

Yesterday the Trenton Police Commission recognized the faithful contributions he had made to the local force. Commission member Mayor James MacDonald presented an engraved silver tea service to him, with fellow policemen and friends gathered at headquarters for the ceremony looking on.

Staff Youmans joined the Trenton department as a constable in 1943 when the late William Bain was the chief constable. At the time his experience in police work included eight years as a county constable for Lennox and Addington where the scene was normally serene and major crime a rarity.

The town has changed and so have police methods of keeping law and order Staff Youmans observed. He's never once had to use the revolver he carried in a holster at his side.

There was an occasion, however, when he was compelled to rap a prisoner on the head of the knuckles with his billy stick.

It was necessary to break his hold on the cell door so it could be shut and locked, he explained.

His most dangerous time as a policeman came when he was sent to reason with a mentally disturbed person armed with a rifle or knife.

Staff Youmans is not against shortening the process of returning criminals to society but he would retain hanging as the penalty for some crimes of violence.

He's watched fads come and go for a long time. To him hippies will pose more of a problem for police in smaller centres before they disappear altogether.

"They impress me as a lost cause to the community. I can't see what they want to prove. The youth involved will drift back into normal living when they realize they've accomplished nothing doing what they're doing."

The Trenton Police Association is giving a retirement party this coming Monday night for their former member and his wife.

City Pennant Contest Chamber-Sponsored

Belleville Chamber of Commerce is doing its part for the success of „Belleville Week, Sept. 27 to Oct. 4.

Working with Shopette Ltd. the chamber will sponsor a pennant contest for children in kindergarten to Grade four.

The contest's purpose is to pick a design for a pennant to distinguish Belleville to tourists and once a design is chosen pennants will be manufactured.

There will be first, second and third place prizes in the competition at $25, $15 and $10 and 15 prizes will be allocated for coloring.

The pennants will be sold in Belleville stores once they have been manufactured.

Chamber directors at their directors meeting yesterday, also discussed the going ahead with plans for bus tours around the city during Belleville Week.

This facet of Belleville Week is being supported by local industry.

Chamber president J. A. Ireland recently returned from a trip to Peterborough where he obtained information on the organization and success of a training and education conference held there.

Plans are moving forward for a similar conference in Belleville, sponsored by the chamber and the department of labor.

The conference will be attended by representatives of education, labor, commerce and industry.

Grant Keeps V.O.N. Alive

TRENTON — The V.O.N. is able to carry on in Trenton and area as the result of an $1,000 grant from council made available to the nursing service Monday.

The financial assistance will prolong the activities of the local order until your's end unless more funds are forthcoming, council was told by Ruby Cuthbert, regional supervisor with headquarters at Ottawa.

Council made available the grant with the understanding the Trenton branch would adjust its fund sights to fit its spending.

Council's grant to the V.O.N. in other years has been $4,000.

If the nursing service could rely on $6,000 a year from public appeal there would be no need for financial crisis and possibility of closing down the local service Trenton branch, treasurer Maurice Gledhill pointed out to the councillors.

The Trenton V.O.N. branch receives no support from the United Appeal since the Appeal is set up to provide only assistance for the Belleville branch of the nursing service.

The Trenton branch's major role in the community is to provide bedside care on a home visit basis with the nurse collecting a maximum of $4 and a minimum of $1 a call depending on the financial status of the recipient.

Answer to Vandalism

Vandalism may be a universal phenomenon but this fact makes it no less palatable when we hear about it occurring in say Belleville or Picton.

Picton has just reported a number of acts of vandalism as well as a break-in at the community centre. However, the problem unfortunately is widespread, as a recent letter to The Toronto Star from a Mr. Bill Carter indicated. It summed up the situation and the social malady behind it well.

"As a working taxpayer whose modest estate was acquired the hard way, I have little patience with complaining malcontents who show minimum (if any) respect for community values that too often are targets for hooligans.

"Passing a costly school building, I see dozens of broken windows. Along a residential street and in a local park, I see dozens of young trees destroyed, buildings damaged and obscenities scribbled upon their walls.

"Citizenship," the letter goes on, "implies appreciating the self-sacrificing labor invested in these things as lightly esteemed by young people who yet to invest a full honest day's labor to create a community value . . ."

That much of the fault lies with neglectful parents regrettably is one of the facts of the matter. Children come into the world but from that point on parental care and authority are sadly lacking.

To make for success and happiness in this life youngsters need the constant love and attention — and authority — of parents. Nourishment of youthful spirits by the encouragement of interest in the world around them, and in literature and music, as well as the need of respect for themselves and others are essential if they are to become civilized beings.

Respect for people and property is one thing, but respect for learning is also vital. We read somewhere about a group of young Canadians back from Israel. They discovered the young of that country were much more serious about their studies than they are here. We have this big expensive educational system in Canada, but are the students themselves realizing their full potential? In a climate of achievement anarchy and vandalism can not flourish.

Religious Rivalry

In Northern Ireland it is Protestants versus Catholics in a senseless confrontation that smacks more of the dark ages than the latter part of the 20th century.

But if some are inclined to think Ireland is the only place where religious animosities exist they would be wrong. The CBC's far-ranging Bill Cunningham, in a series of reports from Indonesia, has told of rivalry between Moslems and the Roman Catholic church which has some 2,500,000 adherents in that land.

It has not got the length of rioting on the Irish pattern, but the Moslems, says Cunningham, are upset over Catholic penetration of their country. The fact that the latter have brought considerable benefits in education for Indonesian youngsters, as well as other Western-style advantages apparently has angered the Moslems even more.

Nobody enjoys outsiders coming in and doing a better job and this seems to be partly at the core of the trouble. We would hope this will not develop a descent into violence as in Ireland where religious bitterness is an integral part of life for a large section of the population, and where signs are not of an anticipated settlement but of further tension and unrest.

So long as it remains on the level of rivalry, however unfriendly, Moslems and Catholics in Indonesia may learn to live with each other.

A Warning

A Vancouver nurse, Myrna L. Inglis, 26, died in hospital recently four days after being attacked by a man with a knife as she went off night duty.

The attack occurred shortly after midnight as Miss Inglis was walking home. A man approached her and after telling her not to say anything kneed her in the stomach, then stabbed her in the back five times.

This is the kind of thing nurses and other women walking alone at night must guard against. It could happen anywhere, in any city large or small.

Murder is on the increase in Canada. The number of psychopaths and schizophrenics, the mentally-disturbed persons capable of such terrible acts, is also cause for concern. Nurses and other women who work at night should have an escort if they must travel any distance to their homes.

Parenthood

The Evidence of Declining Responsibility

The Christian Science Monitor

Three months ago a couple swapped their two-year-old daughter with another woman in exchange for a $100 record player they had coveted. Regretting the deal, the couple have now gone to the authorities and got the child back.

What can one say? The deserted thing on earth, a little child, exchanged for a cheap noise-making bauble — or, indeed, for anything under the sun! It is enough to make one ask what impression civilization, progress, culture, conscience have made on some individuals.

Yet it is not enough to throw up one's hands in horrified resignation, like incidents such as this merely underlines what has become increasingly apparent through countless other signs. This is the desperate need for a higher sense of parenthood.

Most parents, thank goodness will not swap or give away their children. But how many fail to give their children the love, security, understanding, intellectual ideals, and moral foundation without which parenthood is hardly more than an animal state: More and more it becomes apparent that most of today's youthful wrongdoing in America and elsewhere is traceable as much to some form of parental mental neglect as to parental physical neglect.

And of all the great fundamental causes of human unhappiness, crime and failure, few are given less thought than this question of parental neglect and parental inadequacy. Untold numbers of individuals have children and are never really aware of the deeper obligations of parenthood, never cognizant of how delicate and difficult a task it is to bring up children or, in the words of Proverbs, "train up a child in the way he should go." The state demands that licenses and permits be required for a hundred different activities (driving a car, selling real estate, cutting hair, etc.) but virtually anyone is free to enter upon the crucial path of parenthood without training of any kind.

We do not, of course, advocate the licensing of parents, but we do believe that far more could and should be done to emphasize the deeper obligations of parenthood. Do the churches do enough in this direction? Could not volunteer groups of right-minded citizens help? What about more emphasis in high school and college upon the need for wisdom, forbearance, love, and instruction in bringing up children? Could not more be done through the universal medium of television?

Happier, better children are one of earth's greatest hopes and needs. Much more in this direction must be done.

Let the Judges Decide

Vancouver Sun

As always, contention stems from the now, the when, the where and the why of authorized police electronic surveillance.

Like all but the most dogged of civil righters, Mr. Turner recognizes that there will be instances when those charged with protecting society against crime and breaches of national security must be armed with the most effective, acceptable, techniques that science offers.

The question is: who will authorize such exceptions?

The Sun has long believed, and said, that it would be most comforting to put this great power in the hands of judges. We have an old-fashioned faith in judges, you see; we think no better governor could be applied to the danger that most people are reluctant to say out loud — excess police zeal.

Mr. Turner, strangely, don't seem to think. A year ago the bar association went to the trouble of stirring from a resolution on bugging the specific recommendation that control be exercised by the courts.

To whatever extent this move reflected the opinion of Canada's lawyers in total, Mr. Turner, therefore, was preaching to the converted when he indicated to Ottawa that this power should reside with attorneys-general. Someone, the minister explained who is politically accountable to the people.

One wonders. Just as, a year ago at the bar convention in Vancouver, Reg'a Morris Shumlatcher wondered, when he questioned whether the "greater threat" in this whole issue "is not from organized crime but from Big Brother government."

Attorneys-general, for all their esteemed qualities, are policitmen when all's said and done. If they are to determine the limits of official, sanctioned, going to police by police?

It is a question members of Parliament must ask when Mr. Turner's otherwise welcome and critical bill comes before them in the months ahead.

F. H. Varley Was One Of Canada's 'Group of Seven'

Montreal Gazette

Frederick Horsman Varley will be an artist hard to classify. In the announcement of his death recently he was identified as one of the famous Group of seven.

Certainly he was one of the most enthusiastic of the group which came together in 1920 to "paint the star" grandeur of the northland. His painting "Georgian Bay," in the National Gallery of Canada, has the windswept pine, and the serried ranks of oncoming waves glistening in the stormy sun — all the features of the Group's style.

His work of this period also fulfilled completely the main principles of the Group of Seven as Arthur Lismer stated it: "It is design. We bring out everything in the landscape as a matter of design and also, of course, of color. We have got away from French impressionism."

But this painting in the spirit of the Group of Seven was only a phase of Varley's work. Even in landscape he soon began to follow a way of his own. The design became less prominent: the color less vivid. He became more interested in mists and mysteries — less with bold declarations than in subtle suggestions.

The greater change, by far, came when he turned to portraits and figure painting. These, rather than his landscapes, became his most important productions.

His portraits of the children "John" and "Vera" are now among the classics of Canadian painting. His heads of women, with arabesques of hair and shawl show him a superb draughtsmanship, and have made artists, perhaps, among all Canadian painters, the most sensitive interpreter of the human face.

It was enough for him to have so enduring place in the history of Canadian art. But this was, in fact, only a passing experiment in a life of creativity, which found its most successful achievement in a type of subject far removed from "Georgian Bay."

George Brown Is Back in Favor

Montreal Gazette

The rumor in British politics is that former Labor Minister George Brown is about to return to help Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

What position he will hold, if and when he returns, is a matter of speculation. But the prime minister and Mr. Brown, who parted company 18 months ago, have met recently.

The Labor government hasn't been the same without George Brown, one of the most colorful and lively political figures in Britain. When Mr. Brown left the fold, though, he did not give up his position as deputy leader of the Labor Party.

The most plausible theory about Mr. Brown is that he will be asked to lay plans for the next general election, and work from now until then in spruce up the Labor Party's rather tattered image.

The theory makes sense on two counts. The government must go to the electorate sometime in the next 18 months, and by any reckoning, and from all opinion polls, it is clear that they have an uphill battle ahead to win the election. Second, Mr. Brown is one of the best stump speakers in the country, as well as being popular among Labor voters.

At 53, George Brown, though unpredictable and at times embarrassing, still has much energy and a flair for political action. The Labor Party would be the loser if they didn't put that energy, gusto and intelligence to work for it.

Which Is It?

Hold the Line—or Expand

Winnipeg Tribune

On the day it was announced in Ottawa that strict orders had gone out from the Prime Minister's office directing a "hold-the-line" policy on staff, Manpower and Immigration was announcing the appointment of "experts."

Less objectionable, but nevertheless hardly in line with strict economy, is the announcement that Canadian workers will receive additional help to relocate. It is designed to give working men an incentive to seek work in other localities. It will cost money even if it is highly desirable.

department has a reputation for lavish dispensation of public funds. It is easy to imagine the number of employees who will be needed to back these five new "experts."

The provincial government has created six new courts. The government must go to the electorate sometime in the next 18 months, and by any reckoning, and from all opinion polls, it is clear that they have an uphill battle ahead to win the election. Second, Mr. Brown is one of the best stump speakers in the country, as well as being popular among Labor voters.

New Approach To Driver Education

Wausau City Times

From Pennsylvania comes news that a $26,000 research vehicle will be driven back and forth across the highways of the Keystone state to all for the purpose of determining whether motorists should receive mental tests as well as the physical tests now required.

The research vehicle will be equipped with a computer and a simulated driving machine. Administrators will look into the ability of selected drivers as compared to that of so-called called normal individuals. It will try to determine the value of driver education courses and determine the effectiveness of the state's licencing procedures.

Research in these directions is long overdue and is needed. But isn't it possible that a mental test for drivers, such as an I.Q. test, could have certain definite and significant limitations? Persons with high I.Q. haven't always achieved the same relative degree of success over those with lower test figures. No psychologist has a crystal ball that will give an infallible view of a man's future performance.

People do change. Character traits and personality quirks are seldom measurable. The bonable employee of today may be the absconder of tomorrow. The best test of all, for most drivers is their driving records. In the long run, it is probably the best basis for any effective licencing system.

Status Japanese-Style

Ottawa Journal

Most Asians are concerned with having enough food and clothes and a decent roof over their heads. But in Japan, growing prosperity has brought on a whole new Western-style range of status symbols.

A deca.le ago the material amibitions of most Japanese were a radio, a refrigerator, and an electric rice cooker. These were soon replaced by a yearning for cars, color television sets and air conditioners. The most recent survey taken in the country has shown the newest symbols are a cottage, central heating and an electric cooking range. The New York Times says:

Another indication of Japanese prosperity is the growing amount of money and attention devoted to leisure activities. The new demand for summer homes is one example of this phenomenon. Bowling alleys have long been crowded but now one must play golf in Japan to demonstrate material success. Increasing thousands of Japanese tourists, Nikon cameras around their necks, are pouring into foreign countries for extended holidays.

It's called keeping up with the Satos.

Arms Slowdown Expected

Gromyko Answers Today Nixon's Plea for World Peace Action

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko responds today to what many observers regard as a subdued challenge by President Nixon for American-Soviet co-operation in dealing with world problems.

Gromyko was the morning's third speaker in the 125-nation assembly's general policy debate which Nixon opened Thursday. The Soviet minister said his speech would be "constructive" rather than polemical.

Some observers expected Gromyko to reject Nixon's call for a partial ban on arms shipments to the Middle East.

Nixon's speech included a suggestion that an international agreement to limit arms shipments to the Middle East might bring peace to the troubled area. Arab delegates bitterly criticized the proposal.

The U.S. is awaiting a Soviet response to an American request for bilateral talks aimed at slowing down the nuclear arms race.

The Russian foreign minister is believed to have travelled to New York with a Soviet "yes" to the arms talks proposal.

Gromyko declined to comment on a report that the Soviet Union was willing to start the long-delayed talks in Helsinki in mid-October.

Nixon also asked all UN members to help persuade the North Vietnamese to negotiate an end to the Vietnam war. He later discussed Vietnam with Secretary-General U Thant.

Moscow Radio, reacting to Nixon's speech, gave the president no reason to hope the Russians will do anything to help bring peace in Vietnam.

The Soviet radio said the speech showed the U.S. intends to continue its aggression in Vietnam.

It said it was unimpressed by the "very small number" of troops Nixon has ordered withdrawn from Vietnam in an attempt to get peace talks moving in Paris.

The president's address represented a change of tactics. The Johnson administration steadfastly refused to take the Vietnam problem to the UN and resented UN attempts to intervene.

UN reaction in Hanoi's speech was mixed. There was some pleasure over the fact that it was self-spoken and free of polemics. There was little criticism of the Soviet Union in the speech and no mention of the controversial Soviet-Warsaw pact invasion of Czechoslovakia last year.

But there also was criticism from small countries that there was only passing reference to aid for underdeveloped countries.

African countries were disappointed at lack of mention of apartheid—South Africa's race separation policy—and other problems of southern Africa.

Colombo Plan Agenda Centres Around Tied Aid

"I mean, what's the point in being a Green Beret if you have to answer for it every time you kill somebody?"

OTTAWA (CP) — The controversy over tying foreign aid programs to the commodities and technical skills of the donor nations seems certain to be among the issues raised next month at the annual meeting of Colombo Plan nations in Victoria.

It has long been a sore point with developing nations that grants and loans available to them more often than not must be spent in large measure in the country making the money available.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has described the Victoria meeting Oct. 14-31 as the most important governmental-one to be held in Canada since the 1963 NATO conference.

But there have also been hints that the high priority originally placed by Prime Minister Trudeau on expanding Canada's foreign aid program has been reduced somewhat because of other spending needs.

Thus, Canada will likely remain well shy of its goal of spending annually one per cent of its gross national product—the value of all goods and services it produces—on foreign aid.

The Colombo Plan's other 23 member nations will be awaiting word from Canada on its plans for the association formed in 1950 and extended three times since.

This year the tied-aid question may receive a new emphasis as a result of U.S. President Nixon's announced desire to remove such restrictions from aid to Latin America in the near future and gradually extend the same policy to other areas.

Almost all U.S. aid now is tied.

The Colombo donor nations are the U.S., Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Britain and Japan. They have contributed $22,000,000,000 to developing countries in South and Southeast Asia since the plan began.

A good percentage of this aid, however, has been tied although officials are reluctant to name a figure because the amounts have fluctuated.

Canada has contributed $300,000,000 through the plan, a loosely-structured arrangement allowing bilateral agreements between donor and recipient countries.

The Colombo Plan has accounted for about half the annual Canadian foreign aid budget, $338,140,000 this year.

Until this year, about 80 per cent of Canada's aid has been tied.

But officials of the Canadian International Development Agency—the country's aid-giving centre—say this year only 66 2-3 per cent will be earmarked for Canadian purchases.

The objections to assistance provided under types of tying formulas are basically twofold:

The general requirement to buy in Canada may mean that aid funds won't go as far since Canadian prices are sometimes above world prices.

Secondly, the recipient country's range of choice in using aid funds is limited. For example, a developing country might be prevented by the restrictions from purchasing in countries where it badly needed to improve relations.

On the other side of the coin are arguments that the ties simply insure aid funds are used to buy the imports a developing country would wish to buy in Canada in any event.

Also, donor governments are able to reassure their electorates that funds spent on foreign aid will be at least partially returned in the form of contracts from the under-developed countries, easing the drain on the balance of payments.

Treasury board and CIDA officials refuse to say what it would cost Canada to untie all of its aid.

NDP Win Brings Cries of Time for Change liked to win, but the loss of one byelection doesn't change the government."

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said vote indicates the whole province is ready for a change.

It was "a microcosm of the whole province" and "the government is skidded right out of the picture."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said he expects the trend won't continue into the expected 1971 general election, and that at that time, people will be looking for moderate reform and a responsible approach to the issues.

The result indicated "the people wanted to slap down the Tories and do it effectively."

In the last provincial general election, Mr. Olde won with 8,423 votes to 5,865 for Liberal Leo Greg and 4,654 for NDP candidate Kenneth C. Bolton Jr., son of Thursday's winner.

Mr. Allen's defeat held the seat from 1943, when the Conservatives won power in the province, until his death in July.

There were reports before the election that it would be just another Conservative sweep. There also were reports that it might be a close fight.

There were few indications that it would be a clear win the way it was—for the NDP.

And in the legislature in Mr.

Bolton Won Seat Son Couldn't

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Anglican Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, whose wife said she was "speechless" after his Middlesex South byelection victory Thursday, said his win was one the NDP have "been working for, for years and years."

The 62-year-old theology lecturer at Huron College in London played down his personal victory and said the "byelection is unimportant."

"It's another indication that Premier Robarts doesn't have his ear to the ground or his eyes open.

"I personally may not change things but this byelection is saying loud and clear that the NDP is being recognized as strong opposition."

Mr. Bolton hadn't a victory speech written and explained his impromptu speech away by saying, "I used to be a curate and I never called the game until the last rock was thrown."

The archdeacon told his son Robin, chief resident in pediatrics at War Memorial Hospital here, that his wife Lucy would now "become a grass widow while I go down to Toronto to do my best."

One campaign worker for Archdeacon Bolton said the new member of Middlesex South "must have lost 40 pounds during the campaign . . . and for a man his size I'm surprised he can even smile . . . I'm having trouble myself."

Archdeacon Bolton, who runner-up Walden Allen said from the beginning of the campaign was the man to beat, followed his son Kenneth C. Bolton Jr. as the NDP candidate in the riding.

The new member said in the campaign he would build on the 4,600 vote base his son made in the 1967 general election. Kenneth Jr. is now a newspaper writer with the Regina Leader Post.

At his victory party were his daughter Margaret and her husband Marks McAvity, who have recently returned from teaching in Africa and plan to live in Kitchener.

Mrs. Bolton said she planned to call her son Kenneth Jr. and David, a minister in Campbell's Bay, Que., "as soon as all the fuss has died down."

Middlesex South, an anvil-shaped slab of rich farm country, used to have 9,000 Conservatives. There were something like 8,000 members of other parties.

Redistribution in 1966 brought in more urban voters and NDP chief Macdonald said that "clearly, the votes are coming in our direction."

The NDP figured that the riding was becoming mainly urban, with an inclination to vote for the NDP. The result Thursday appeared to back their views.

The Ontario Health Services Plan, to come into effect Oct. 1, was emphasized by both the NDP and the Liberals in the last week of their campaign as they attacked costs and relations with private insurance companies.

Middlesex South lies alongside Premier Robarts' home riding of London North. The other legislature members from the same Middlesex County are Mr. Robarts, Revenue Minister John White (Middlesex South) and Agriculture Minister William Stewart (Middlesex North).

Quebec Commission Has Premise French Is Threatened in Province

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec commission of inquiry Thursday outlined its tasks and objectives as it prepared to study the position of the French language and language rights.

Commission Chairman Jean-Denis Gendron, 44, vice-dean of the faculty of letters at Laval University, said a keen awareness the commission will tackle the assumption: "French is threatened in Quebec."

Established during the heat of the St. Leonard school crisis last fall, the five-member royal commission opens public hearings Sept. 29 in Montreal.

The commission's mandate, Prof. Gendron said, is threefold:

—To inquire into and submit a report on the position of French as the language of usage in Quebec.

—To recommend measures to guarantee the linguistic rights of the majority as well as the protection of minority rights.

—To recommend measures to guarantee "the full expansion and diffusion of the French language in all fields of activity in Quebec."

The general line of inquiry may take its cue from questions asked by people in trade, industry, finance and unions, but the problem of language rights in the education system will be studied as a priority item, Prof. Gendron said.

Hearings will be held in the shadow of the continuing St. Leonard hassle. The east-end Montreal suburb already has been shaken by a riot over the issue of eliminating English-language instruction.

In June, 1968, the suburb's Roman Catholic school board embarked on a policy of abolishing English-language education. Bilingual grade 1 classes were eliminated in September, 1968, and Grade 2 English-language instruction disappeared this fall.

Government members have disagreed on how to approach the issue which English-speaking Quebecers see as a challenge to the tradition of freedom of choice in language of instruction.

The French-only education drive is spearheaded by the group Integration Scolaire, which won control of the St. Leonard school board in June 1968. It favors making English the second language of instruction in the province.

Prof. Gendron said he did not know how long it would take the commission to reach a consensus on the conflict. It is scheduled to report to the government by Dec. 1 but this would amount to only "a report on our activities."

The commission's moves have included the appointment of economist Henri Muhn of Montreal as director of research, and the start of a program of visits by commission members to factories and even private homes.

The commission will try to determine whether the present state of affairs are "political, economic, cultural, demographic, educational, international or international, geographical sociological. . . ."

Prof. Gendron added that there would be studies into Quebec's birth rate and on the impact of immigration. Statistics show that the birth rate in Quebec is declining.

At the same time, statistics show that immigrants who settle in Quebec province usually opt for English-language schools.

These two factors lead many French-Quebecers to fear that their language and culture may wither and die, Prof. Gendron said.

He said that members of the business community have shown great interest in the inquiry, as shown by the fact that "75 to 80 companies" have agreed to appear at the public hearings.

MR. AND MRS. W. S. J. CRAWFORD

Crawford – Wannamaker

Wesleyan Methodist Church, Belleville was the scene of the noon wedding, on Saturday, September 13, 1969, when Jane Elizabeth Wannamaker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wannamaker, RR 2, Stirling, was united in marriage to William Samuel John Crawford, Kingston, son of Mr. Samuel Crawford and the late Mrs. Crawford. Rev. E. F. Le Roy performed the double-ring ceremony. Miss Judith Thompson, Picton, provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Diane Leach, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of imported crystal peau, featuring a scooped neck-line and three-quarter length puffed sleeves of Belgian daisy lace. A matching chapel train flowed from the empire waist, and was edged with the same daisy lace. The four-tier silk illusion veil was held in place by a crown of daisy petals encrusted with seed pearls and crystals. She carried a cascade of Orange Delight Sweetheart roses and white miniature carnations.

Miss Janet Walker, Peterborough, as maid of honor wore a floor-length Empire styled gown in Persian melon pure silk chiffon over taffeta with bodice and elbow-length sleeves of Venetian lace. The back of her dress fell in graceful folds from a self-bow between the shoulders. Her headdress was of matching petals with crystal drops caught to a short tulle veil.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ruth Wannamaker, Stirling, and Miss Karen McIntyre, Belleville, cousins of the bride were dressed identically to the maid of honor. They wore shoes to match their gowns and carried harvest baskets of bronze and yellow mums and orange carnations.

The little flower girl, Miss Ruth Anne Rawlings, Belleville wore a floor-length gown of crystalette over taffeta styled similarly to the other attendants. She wore a matching bow in her hair and carried a basket of mums and yellow mums and orange carnations.

Dennis Gould, Foxboro attended the bridegroom and Roger Wannamaker, brother of the bride and William Heath, Stirling were the ushers.

The reception was held at Sun Luck Gardens where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a dusty pink embossed brocade ensemble featuring a sleeveless A-line dress and matching coat, tulle hat and a corsage of deep pink and white carnations.

Assisting her, Mrs. Elliott chose an apricot sheath dress of peau de charme with brown chantilly lace coat, chocolate brown accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Mr. Roger Rawlings, Belleville was master of ceremonies at the reception.

Leaving on a wedding trip to points west, the bride chose a teal blue silk worsted dress and matching coat in double breasted styling, black patent accessories and a white gardenia corsage.

Upon their return the couple will live at Otawa.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Joey, stop fussing and interrupting us. We're trying to visit. Why do you always have to act up when I have company?"

Visitor: "I must go anyway. I just dropped in for a few minutes."

Young children may be nuisances when parents are involved with guests because they don't know what is expected of them. Explain exactly what you want them to do and they are more likely to be co-operative.

Mother: "Mrs. Taylor is here to see me and have a grown-up talk. You may say 'hello' and show her your new truck. Then I want you to play quietly in the family room until it's time to have some tea and cake."

The Experts Say

New Fashions Tend to Increase Sale of Lace

MONTREAL (CP) — Although production of lace dates back several centuries, it is still subject to climatic conditions, fickle fashion trends and the quirks of technical women.

Archie Solomon, president of International Lace Inc., discussed the risks and restraints inherent in his $2,000,000-a-year company during a recent interview.

Canada's long and bottle winter season is one. Women just don't wear lace in the daytime when the temperature hovers around zero.

Vacationing in Florida is enough to bring tears in a Canadian lace manufacturer's eyes, Mr. Solomon said. All the lace-trimmed and lace-embroidered bathing suits and fishnet beach coats dotting the ocean edge send sales skyrocketing in the United States while Canada suffers from prohibitive tariff systems and its sandy shores are buried under snow for part of every year.

And since women are notorious for going off on sudden color tangents, buyers and manufacturers who choose their materials six months in advance may be stuck with bolts of orange lace while consumers are demanding mauve or nothing.

Actually, Mr. Solomon is happy these days. The upsurge in lace pant-suits for both sexes has been a shot in the arm for the industry and nicely supplements the standard sales of wedding gown-white, black, beige and navy.

There is some dispute over when lace-making began, but it is known that modern forms of hand-made lace first appeared in Venice during the 15th century.

Work was tedious. A pair of lace ruffles took more than a year to complete, if the lace-maker worked 15 hours a day. Almost the same amount of time was required to complete one metre—39 inches—of Valenciennes lace.

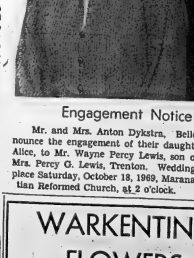
Initially lace was used for linens and ecclesiastical ornamentation, but by the second half of the 16th century Spanish fashion urged women to hide their shoulders and necks in high ruffs and collars of lace. By the start of the 17th century France had caught on to the trend and imported Venetians to impart their trade to the French.

Soon French dandies were being judged by the fineness and abundance of lace they wore. However, with the French Revolution, the demand for lace diminished and all the workshops were closed for more than a decade.

Napoleon revitalized an interest in lace, but the industry had lost its major make market and never really recovered.

The scene shifted to England where the lace industry had been fostered by the immigration of Huguenots, Flemish and Italians. Spurred on by the Industrial Revolution, John Heathcoat invented the first bobbinet lace-making machine in 1808. However, it was not until the Brussels World Fair in 1910 that machine-made lace on the same artistic level as hand-made lace was achieved.

Rising labor costs have smothered the art of making lace by hand, said Mr. Solomon, adding that few if any people would be willing to pay the price of such finery.



As it is, some Gulpure laces, with a machine-made background and cording added by means of a small hand tool, may cost as much as $50 a yard. Most of the lace imported to North America today originates in France, a small quantity in Switzerland and little if any from England.

Manufacturers are reluctant to import from China, one of the few countries besides Belgium where any lace is handmade, because of the yellowish tinge of the finished product. Placed on a pure or blue white background, Chinese lace looks aged and inferior.

The uses of lace have also seen transformations. When Mr. Solomon established his business in 1938, lace lingerie was all the rage. Matching negligee, gown, slip and panty sold for about $50 but manufacturers now doubt that women would be willing to pay the inflated price for such garments.

As it is, women are forsaking slips for lined dresses, pants for panty-hose and nightgowns for pajamas or nothing at all.

Statistics tell the story. Thirty years ago 90 per cent of all lace sales were for lingerie. Today the percentage has plunged to 40.

WEDDING

GREEN — CRANE

St. John's Anglican Church, Toronto, was the scene of the recent wedding, when Sharon Lee Crane, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crane of Belleville became the bride of Brian Douglas Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Green of Toronto. Rev. Summerhayes officiated at the double-ring ceremony and the organist, Mrs. Wright provided appropriate wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original pant-dress ensemble of white lace and cotton. The semi-fitted dress was buttoned down the front from the Nehru stand-up collar and featured lace sleeves that fell in large scallops at the wrist.

The lace pants were slightly flared with scallops extending around the ankles. Six white roses held her allillusion veil that fell to the finger tips from the back of her up swept hair. She carried a bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Elaine Shipley of Toronto was the bride's only attendant. She wore a pant-dress ensemble of lilac lace, the wrap - style dress formed a V-neckline and featured long full sleeves gathered to deep cuffs at the wrist. The matching lace pants were slightly flared. Her headdress consisted of three roses in shades of lilac to match her dress and a lace, held a bouquet of white roses.

Jeffrey Potter of Toronto was groomsman, while Jim Glover and Kelvin Stretton ushered the guests.

At the reception, the mother of the bride greeted the guests in a lilac lace dress over pastel chantilly lace ensemble with matching hat, while accessories, had a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a two-piece taffeta dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

For the brief honeymoon the bride changed into a nylon floral mini dress with white accessories and carried a single red rose.

Mr. and Mrs. Green will reside in Toronto while Mrs. Green completes her nurse's training at Toronto-East General Hospital.

Successful Living

A Housewife Takes Many Needless Steps

BY DORIS CLARK

Do you use your head to save your feet?

The home economists tell us that according to actual studies, one woman will make a dozen trips to the refrigerator in the course of getting a meal ready, while another goes but once, with a list in her hand or in her head.

When you bake a cake, do you line up butter, sugar, eggs, milk, flour, baking powder, salt, mixing bowl, and utensils before you start? How many needless steps do you take on washday? Do you by any chance use a tray or a cart to set the table and to remove things after meals? You could serve simple foods often; you could prepare foods for two meals while cooking. Dishes can be drained dry after a hot water rinse. You could sit down to work quite often.

Efficiency ends when fatigue begins. Take a look at what's cooking with you and see where you can save steps and energy.

* * *

Dear Doris: If you want to laugh at this letter go ahead.

When my girl wrote me once she said that a nice way to give a girl a ring is when they are both dressed up in their very best and out to a meal in a real nice restaurant. I didn't agree. Here is what I have planned.

We are meeting at a holiday spot for a weekend. We will go walking in the flower gardens by the light of the moon, arm in arm and talking.

Then I will show her the case with the ring in it, and let her open it. Now this is what I want to know. The ring is placed on the girl's left hand, second last finger, is this right? Do I put it on? Is it proper to kiss her before or after she has the ring on?

I am 28, and I had always said in my life there would be no girl until I met Victoria. So as you can see, giving a ring to a girl is more than I can understand. — Awkward and Nervous.

Dear Awkward and Nervous Suitors from three nonsensical have dreamed up just how it would go when they proposed to their lady loves. Not long ago the performance was pictured with Romeo on his knee before his Juliet, declaring his love and asking for her hand. Usually the actual event is surprisingly different from the rehearsal.

Your description of a romantic scene sounds fine to me. I just hope if you won't make the whole thing so stilted as to seem like a second-rate play.

(P.S. We say "third finger, left hand," and that's the one next to the little finger. Yes, place it on her finger yourself, and seal the contract with a kiss.)

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 20 years old, my boy friend is 20. I'm not in perfect condition, and since he has asked me to marry him I've told him that I need more time before making a decision.

He said he'd wait till I'm ready, but I don't think it is fair to keep him waiting without an explanation. Should I let him go, or tell him the truth about my health? — Tell or Not?

Dear T. or NT: Square with him. Devoted love deserves no less.

Many people have a health condition they don't talk about — and by taking care of it they live happy wedded lives. Give him a chance to take you as you are — or to break away.

Wedding Cake Sale A Tasteless Move

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you think you've heard everything, dig this: "Over the weekend my husband and I attended a wedding. The ceremony was held in the church. It was simple but quite spiritual, the way a wedding ought to be. Following the ceremony the guests were invited to the reception in the church social hall. Sandwiches, cookies, fruit punch and hot coffee were served on a nicely decorated table. On a separate table was a cash register (manned by two relatives) and the wedding cake with a large sign which read, "Buy a piece of wedding cake for luck. Help finance the honeymoon. Price 25c."

Several guests lined up and bought a piece of cake. Even though I love cake I refused to allow my husband to buy me a piece, as a matter of principle. He bought a piece for himself, however, "as a gesture of good will." His reasoning was, "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

We both would like to know what you think of this. — MINNEAPOLIS QUERY.

DEAR Q.: Minneapolis Isn't Rome. What's more my husband and I have attended several weddings in Minneapolis and we never had to buy cake. In my opinion that cake sale was a tasteless move.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for "Wet Hankie" and all the other criers in the world who are embarrassed because they are unable to control their emotions. Take the advice of a girl who learned the hard way: Cry, cry, cry! It's good for you.

I am 17 and I very nearly had a nervous breakdown because I was afraid to show any signs of "weakness." My father is a career Army officer — well-meaning but very strict and spartan in his approach to everything and everybody. My mother survived a German concentration camp. The inhuman experience made her a real stoic. I was taught that it was a disgrace to let anyone see the soft side of me.

Until I was 15 I managed to keep everything bottled up. Then all of a sudden I began to fall to pieces. I became frightened of things I couldn't explain or understand. My hands shook for no reason. My heart pounded and I was sure I was having a heart attack. My palms perspired and I had dizzy spells. It was my biology teacher who put me in touch with the help I needed. And it was just in time. The doctor said I had a small ulcer and was heading for a nervous breakdown.

I hope Wet Hankie listens to you. And I hope all the criers out there will stop being ashamed. Tell them, again and again to keep crying. It's good for them. If you know what Shalom means, use it for my signature. — SAN JOSE.

DEAR SHALOM: Yes, I know what it means. Peace. And it's wonderful

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What do you mean "a good cigar" There is no such thing. All cigars stink. It's just that some cigars stink worse than others. People count on you for the truth. Why don't you quit being so polite and tell it like it is?— FRESH AIR FIEND.

DEAR FRIEND: You did and I thank you.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club leaned the use of its greens to the Stirling Lawn Bowling Club for their annual mixed pairs tournament last Saturday and 32 pairs competed in this tournament representing most of the clubs in the district. The high score for the day for three wins went to Irene and Hugh Parker of Kingston, closely followed by Phyllis Graham and Bruce Miller of the Belleville Club. The third three-game winners were Stella and Harold Buck of Trenton, Joan Hyde with her father, Jerry Hyde Sr., were the high two-game scorers and Dale and Walter Elliott, also of the Belleville Club were the high scorers with one win. Members of the Stirling Club served a delicious hot meal between the second and third games with the kitchen facilities being provided for their use through the courtesy of the local women's club.

The third annual "Davy Davison" Memorial Trophy tournament for members of the local club only, was held last Sunday afternoon with 36 members of the club participating. This trophy was provided by club-member, Mac MacDonald, who also presents the accompanying prizes for the top scoring team on each of the four ends. The play for teams was conducted by president Wally Lavergne, assisted by Bruce Miller and the top scoring team with three wins for the day was made up of Leslie Miller, Mary Sherman and Bill Fuller as skip. The other team to win three games on the day's play was made up of Wilfred Price, Pearl Carr and Bruce Miller as skip. The highest scoring team with two wins consisted of Ruth Day, Kay Fuller and Jerry Hyde Sr. as skip. The highest scoring team for one win was made up of Eadie El Sisi, Rita Ford and Orla Smith as skip. A delightful rook-out for all present was arranged between the second and third games and included hot dogs, hamburgs, corn on the cob, watermelon and other goodies. A similar event has been planned for this Sunday afternoon commencing at 1.30 p.m. with the games to be conducted in the Jitney style. All members of the club are urged to be in attendance as the season is winding and the number of opportunities for outings of this nature will be few indeed.

The Club championship triples competition in the men's section will be held on Saturday afternoon next with a team composed of Bruce Sobis, Bruce Miller and Wally Lavergne as skip, being opposed by Charlie Osborne, Jerry Hyde Jr. and Jerry Hyde Sr. as skip for the title. A large number of the Club members are expected to be in attendance to watch this 18 - end match to be played under Provincial rules to decide the 1969 triples championships for the local Club.

Only two tournaments remain on the regular schedule for the balance o fthe season and the first with one of them being a mixed pairs tournament to be held next Saturday at the Belgian Lawn Bowling Club and the final tournament of the year to be a Men's triples tournament on Saturday, September 27th at Kingston. This is the annual "Snowbird" tournament and is eagerly anticipated by many of the men in the district, who enjoy the hospitality of the Kingston Club at this annual closing event for lawn bowling in this district. The tournament is scheduled to commence at 1.00 p.m. and a full single draw of 32 entries is anticipated.

The finalists in the primary, secondary and consolation series of the local men's club singles championships have been determined now and the four games yet to be played to determine the finalists in the hard luck or fourth event of this same singles competition will be completed by this weekend. This is a new competition for the local club, organized this year by the club president, Wally Lavergne, who presented a new silver "President's Trophy" to be presented annually to the winner of the first event in competition for all club members.

This competition has been run on the same basis as the singles competition, which is conducted annually by the Belleville Lawn Bowling Association during the week long tournament held in Toronto and 32 entrants started out in the first event with the losers dropping to the 2nd, 3rd and 4th events on an elimination basis. Each participant was guaranteed a minimum of four games with some of the players playing as many as seven to emerge as winners in the various events.

The finalists in the first event will pit Bruce Miller against Jerry Hyde Jr., both of these players having won first four games of their competition and the winner of this match will receive the new "President's Trophy". The runner-up will receive an appropriate award. The finalists in the second event will be John Sager and Orla Smith. The finalists in the third event will pit Ken Peacock against Larry Chouinard, and Lloyd White, Bill Fuller, Walter Elliott, Jack Tory, Mac MacDonald and Wilfred Price are still in the midst of elimination games to determine the two finalists in the fourth event.

Tentative plans call for all four of these final matches being conducted on a night, which is convenient for all of the participants during the following week and it is hoped that a large number of the club members will turn out to watch these matches. From a spectator point of view, nothing can match the excitement of a well played singles competition between two evenly matched players.

Day Before Exhibition

Wharram Recovers From Heart Attack

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kenny Wharram, a veteran of 13 seasons with Chicago Black Hawks, suffered a slight heart attack in hospital Thursday night, just one day before the Hawks start their 1969 National Hockey League exhibition schedule.

Wharram, a 36-year-old right winger, entered hospital Monday with pericarditis, inflammation of the membrane enclosing the heart.

A club spokesman announced the heart attack and said hospital officials described Wharram's condition as satisfactory.

The Hawks were scheduled to take on Minnesota North Stars in their first exhibition encounter tonight in Duluth, Minn.

Other games tonight have St. Louis Blues battling New York Rangers at Kitchener, Ont., and Los Angeles Kings meeting Oakland Seals at Oshawa, Ont.

The Blues nailed down their first exhibition victory Thursday night with a 5-3 score over Toronto Maple Leafs in Ottawa.

Ab McDonald led the Blues with two goals with Al Arbour, Camille Henri and Ron Anderson adding one each.

Jacques Plante and Ernie Wakely shared goaltending duties for St. Louis, allowing goals by Norm Ullman, Jim McKenny and Bob Pulford.

The Blues made little use of Jaroslav Jirik, who played with the Czechoslovakia national team last season. Jirik, 30, appeared for only three turns on the ice and was dumped several times by Leaf defenders.

In Montreal, the Canadiens announced they will use almost the same lineup that won them the Stanley Cup when they meet Boston Bruins in the first pre-season match at the Forum Saturday night.

Assistant general manager Floyd Curry said the Canadiens will dress all regulars except Gilles Tremblay, who only started to scrimmage Wednesday. The left-winger has been recovering from a respiratory ailment that sidelined him for most of last season.

Curry said Pete Mahovlich, obtained from Detroit Red Wings in the off-season, will start at left wing in place of Tremblay.

Coach Claude Ruel said he will also try out forwards Rejean Houle and Marc Tardif, who starred in junior ranks last season, along with defenceman Guy Lapolfite from Houston Apollos of the Central Hockey League.

Dragging's Big Daddy

Florida's Don Garlits — "Big Daddy" of the highpowered Fueling set that is drag racing's elite — is scheduled for an appearance at Quinte Dragway Sunday. Garlits — five-time Nationals Champion who wins four out of every five match races he enters — will be the featured attraction on Sunday's final dragging program of the season at the Deseronto strip. (Story on Page 11)

Referee Walkout 'Overdue'

WOODSTOCK (CP) — George Hayes, former National Hockey League linesman, said Thursday the current walkout by league officials in an effort to get recognition for their association "was way overdue."

Hayes, fired by the league after he refused to take an eye test in 1962 after 19 years of service, said in an interview the idea of an officials' association had been in the making since the mid-50s.

Thirteen referees and seven linesmen walked out of training camp in Brantford Monday in support demands that the National Hockey League Referees and Linesmen Association be recognized by the league.

Hayes said the idea had been delayed because there were not enough officials to stand together against the threat of losing their jobs.

But now, with the league expanded and more officials involved, the need for a union had become more pressing.

Five officials remained in training camp after the walkout.

Argo Fans Fight For Tickets

TORONTO (CP) — Youngsters turned up at 4 p.m. at one supermarket Thursday and police were called to quell an angry throng at another as 1,000 tickets went on sale for Saturday's Eastern Football Conference game.

Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts, who have been crowding Hamilton Tiger-Cats for the EFC lead, tangle here in a game that has been sold out for 10 days.

However a supermarket which sells 1,000 tickets for each game at bargain prices through its 34 outlets advertised that the tickets would go on sale as usual. There were 5,000 applicants.

Move Five Up on Cubs

Mets Show No Sign of Cooling

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 30-degree temperatures at Jarry Park in Montreal Thursday night were not enough to cool off Tom Seaver and New York Mets' hot drive for the National League East Division title.

Seaver scattered five hits in shutting out the Expos 2-0 to push New York's divisional lead over Chicago Cubs back to five games.

The Cubs dropped a 5-3 decision to Philadelphia Phillies in an afternoon game—their 12th setback in 15 games—in falling six games back of New York in the loss column. The Mets' magic number for clinching the divisional title was reduced to eight.

Meanwhile, the West Division race remained as scrambled as ever as Los Angeles Dodgers knocked Atlanta Braves out of first place with a 5-2 victory and San Francisco Giants took over the top spot by beating Houston Astros 9-3.

The Giants, however, hold only a half-game lead over the Dodgers and the Braves, while fourth-place Cincinnati Reds are just two games off the pace despite a 7-1 loss to San Diego Padres.

St. Louis Cardinals nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 8-7 in the other NL game.

Seaver, who won his eighth straight pushing his record to 23-7, and Jerry Koosman, who shutout the Expos the night before, have been the mainstays of a staff that now has produced 11 shutouts in New York's last 35 games.

Met pitchers haven't yielded a home run in the last 22 games.

During that span, the Mets have won 29 of 36 games—including 13 of their last 14—in rearing from 8½ games back of the Cubs on Aug. 13 to their present comfortable lead.

About the only one who isn't conciding the title to the Mets is Cub boss Leo Durocher.

"I'm not going to give up, I'll tell you that," said Durocher after Jookie Rojas' homer in the eighth touched off a three-run rally that gave the Phils their victory.

British Lead Narrow

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Britain's Ryder Cup captain, Eric Brown, scenting victory over the Americans for the first time in a dozen years, pulled his youngsters off the back but called on the veterans today to try to widen a slim but important lead.

"In this four-ball competition, it is experience that counts now," the jubilant Scot said, his own naturally optimistic spirits that much higher after the British finished Thursday's foursomes with 4½ points to the United States' 3½.

Twins Stay 9 Games Ahead of Pack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four rookies turned in winning performances in American League baseball action Thursday night—two of them succeeding in holding the West Division pennant race at a standstill.

Vern Geishert, a 23-year-old fastballer recently promoted from the minors by California Angels, left his mark on Minnesota Twins Thursday, saving a 5-3 triumph over the West Division leaders with a 2 2-3 innings of strong relief work.

Kansas City Royals' Mike Hedlund, also 23, tossed his first complete game in the majors, trimming the sinking Oakland Athletics 6-1 for a 3-5 first-year record.

Ray Fosse, Cleveland's 22-year-old rookie catcher, slammed a three-run homer to lead the Indians past Detroit Tigers 6-4 and Johnny Ellis, at 21 one of the New York Yankees' brightest prospects, beat Washington Senators 4-3 with a two-run pinch single.

In other action, Baltimore's East Division kings split a doubleheader with Boston Red Sox. The Orioles won 6-4 behind Mike Cuellar before bowing 5-0 to Vicente Romo.

Geishert, called up from California's Hawaii farm club last month, replaced Angel ace Andy Messersmith in the seventh inning with one out, one run in and the bases jammed.

The rookie right-hander threw a double play pitch to Craig Nettles ending the threat, and yielded one hit the rest of the way, preserving Messersmith's 16th victory.

The Twins remained nine games ahead of second place Oakland in the West, but their magic number for nailing the division crown dipped to five as Hedlund tamed the Athletics on seven scattered hits for his first victory since May 15.

Lou Piniella paced the Royals' attack against Blue Moon Odom with a bases-loaded triple.

Fosse's second major league homer capped a five-run Cleveland salvo against Mickey Lolich in the first inning. Sam McDowell, given the big lump, struck out 13 and shook off 10 Detroit hits on the way to his 17th victory.

Ellis, batting .291 in 17 games with the Yankees this year, brought them from behind in the eighth inning with a bases-loaded single off reliever Darold Knowles. Mel Stottlemyre, checked the Senators on six hits, including Mike Epstein's 28th homer, and gained victory No. 19.

Cuellar set a club record of 23 victories as the Orioles overtook Boston in the first game with a three-run ninth. Curt Motton's two-run homer keying the comeback.

TORONTO (CP) — Jochen Rindt of West Germany posted an unofficial time of one minute, 18.9 seconds — more than half a second faster than the official lap record — in practice sessions Thursday for the Grand Prix of Canada at Mosport.

The Grand Prix for Formula I racing cars goes Saturday on the 2.46-mile Mosport road circuit in rolling hills about 45 miles northeast of Toronto.

Rindt, driving a three-litre Lus powered by a Ford-Cosworth V-8, is one of 20 drivers entered for the $150,000 in prizes.

Rindt's practice time bette ed the track record of 1:19.5 or 111 miles an hour, set last June by Bruce McLaren of New Zealand in a McLaren M6B powered by seven litres of Chev V-8 engine. But new marks only stand when set in actual competition.

Golf's Winner of the Year
GET THE BALL UP

Most American golf courses, whether hard or soft, are best played with the high ball. If the course is hard, a low ball will run for fine distances, all right, but quite possibly into trouble. If the course is soft, the higher ball is essential, for a low-flying shot will be stopped by lush grass.

If you have trouble moving the ball into the air off the tee, try a 1½-wood, which has a few more degrees of face loft than the regular driver. This puts more flight onto your tee shots without you altering your swing at all.

If you will start out with your hands slightly behind the ball at address, and use the 1½-wood, you will probably be very pleased with the results.

Als Practical; Plan for '70

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes realize they are not going anywhere in the Eastern Football Conference and are looking to next year, even though there still are seven games remaining in the current schedule.

"We would be foolish if we didn't think of next year right now," head coach Kay Dalton said Thursday.

He said the Alouettes have not exactly given up on this season but "on the other hand we have to be realistic enough to realize that we aren't going anywhere this season."

Montreal has an 0-5-2 won-lost-tied record this year.

"There's no use bringing someone here to help for a few games," Dalton said. "So now is the time to get a good brand of ball player. If we wait until next year, we'll run into the same bind."

The Alouettes now are looking to late cuts from United States teams and bringing in what the club considers prime prospects.

Three players have shown up at the Alouettes' camp this week. Gene Huey, a high draft choice from St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, met his new teammates at a practice session Thursday night.

Huey, 22, a five-foot-10, 190-pound defensive halfback and No. 5 draft choice of the Cardinals this year, followed Ed Rutowsky and Dick Smith into the Montreal camp.

Rutowsky and Smith practised with the Alouettes for the first time Wednesday night.

Rutowsky, a seven-year veteran with Buffalo Bills of the American League, has played as a wide receiver, running back and quarterback.

Smith, who played for three years with Washington Redskins of the NFL, is a running back.

CJBQ Radio's Jack Devine decided against entering tomorrow's walk-athon via pogo stick after this near-disastrous trial run with a fellow enthusiast. Mr. Devine and friend will be among those using their feet to help raise funds for a community arena for Belleville. (Pogo Sticks courtesy Stephen Licence Sporting Goods.)

Pogo Stick in Walkathon Not Devine Idea, After All

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The Great Pogo Stick Caper has been foiled!

Mr. John Devine who had hoped to get the jump on fellow participants in tomorrow's community arena walkathon by using a pogo stick, has decided after a trial run that blisters are the better part of valor.

Mr. Devine will now join several other members of CJBQ radio's staff—ON FOOT—to prove that physical fitness is, indeed, a lost art.

The motley selection of record-wranglers, and boistyre-isorers have volunteered to play the part of 26-pound weaklings to satisfy the experimental curiosity of four city doctors.

Further requests had been monitored over the local airwaves all week, pleading for the loan of pogo sticks to Mr. Devine, who, when not hunting for pogo sticks, is CJBQ's sports director.

The latter, in his 20th year — of broadcasting — intended to hop through a loophole in the Walkathon Code which does not forbid the use of pogo sticks, Or Sherman tanks for that matter.

Doubtless hoping to borrow on his experience as a member of U. of T's Varsity Pogo-ley team during the Depression Years, Mr. Devine intended to kangaroo past the walkathon pack and he hoops in time for tomorrow night's televised Argo-Ottawa game at 8 p.m.

Yesterday's trial run changed his mind, however, and nearly made some permanent alterations to his anatomy.

Walkathon organizers are investigating a report that Mr. Devine was last seen negotiating with the Bata Shoe Company for a custom-made pair of ball-bearing-soled sneakers.

Mo-Hawks Look for East-West Help

New blood for senior hockey in Belleville may come from all directions.

Belleville Mo-Hawks, who open their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A season at home Oct. 10 to Owen Sound are keeping tabs on the St. Louis Blues training camp in Ottawa for some junior-age prospects, says playing-coach Davey Jones.

Meanwhile, looking west, the Mo - Hawks have come to terms with 20-goal centre George Godson, rugged defenceman Greg Marchen and plugging winger Lorne O'Donnell, all of whom commuted from Peterborough last winter.

The club is also negotiating with Billy Armour, who played his hockey last year with the Eastern League's Greensboro Generals.

Armour was also selected as the Ontario Lacrosse Association's Senior A most valuable player for his high-scoring season with the now-defunct Quinte Merchants.

Right here at home, Jones and veteran forward Ralph Plane have signed up for another season with the Mo-Hawks, who hope to begin their training camp Wednesday or Thursday, as soon as Memorial Arena ice plant problems have been overcome.

Season ticket holders have not been offered seats for the upcoming season for the best of reasons there are no seats!

No seating plan is available for the 800-plus new backed seats which have yet to be delivered.

This season's Mo - Hawks home schedule includes 13 Friday night games (9 p.m.), five 2 p.m. Sunday fixtures, and a pair of 8:30 Tuesday night games.

'Big Daddy' Comes to Deseronto

There's a "Mister" in every sport. In hockey, it's Gordie Howe. Stanley Mathews wins "Mr. Soccer."

This Sunday, Quinte area drag - racing fans have a chance to see their sport's "Big Daddy" in action.

Florida's Don Garlits — five times Nationals Champion who wins four out of every five match races he enters —brings his AA/Fueler to Quinte Dragway at Deseronto Sunday to match high-speed wits with Rhode Island's Jimmy King.

The meeting is a rubber match, in more ways than just tire - burning

King and "The King" have split their two previous meetings to date. The meetings are brief: At their 170-mile-an-hour speeds it only takes about five seconds for Double A dragsters to turn a quarter-mile.

The match race is the highlight of Sunday's card, the final Quinte Dragway meet of 1969 offering a total of $2,300 in prize money.

Also on Sunday's program will be a Lady Eliminator event, to go along with the regular Stock, Street, Super a n d Pure dragging classifications.

Gates open at 8 Sunday morning. Time trials begin at 9, with eliminations at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Senior Saints in No Mood for Second Place

The Quinte Saints served notice yesterday they are in no mood for second-place Bay of Quinte Secondary School finishes.

The Saints trampled Centennial Chargers 48-0 to kick off the district high school senior football season.

Earlier, the Junior Saints had upset the defending COSSA junior finalists Centennial squad 12-8.

Beck Jim Sled raced 75 yards for a first-quarter major to start the Quinte senior ball rolling. Sled added two last-half touchdowns in runs up the middle.

Barry Barnett's 14-yard plunge and a 30-yard scamper by Paul McQuaid helped Quinte sport a 22-0 half-time lead.

Last-half pass receptions by Leo Blake and Red Barnett accounted for the other major Quinte scores.

The penalty-ridden junior game saw several touchdowns on both sides called back before Quinte emerged 12-6 victors.

An end run by Ralph Lepore and Ken Vos' 35-yard punt runback gave the winners their two touchdowns.

An unconverted TD by Roger Mountfort accounted for the Centennial scoring.

Collegians Boot First Soccer Win

The Belleville Collegiate senior soccer team took the first step toward defending their Bay of Quinte Secondary School championship yesterday by downing Albert College 5-2 in the season's opener.

Albert was on even footing for a while in the first half after Gari Mutsevario broke the BCI defence to equalize an earlier goal by the Collegians' Terry Clarke.

A perfect centering pass from Peter Hillier was converted by John Thompson to give BCI a 2-1 lead before the first half ended.

Charles Nesterouski's goal made it 3-1 for the Collegians, but Mark Barrett's breakaway score kept Albert within a goal.

Hillier and Thompson put BCI out of reach with insurance goals.

Madoc's Centre Hastings S.S. Juniors spoiled a perfect BCI afternoon by blanking their Collegian counterparts 2-0.

CN Combines No Longer Departmental Bridesmaids

After a summer of being bridesmaids, the Departmental Softball League's CN Combines have decided they want to be leading the procession.

The Combines — second place regular schedule finishers to their sister CN Turbos — downed the Turbos 6-4 last night for a 3-1 stranglehold on the Departmental League's best-of-seven title playoff series.

"Junior" Day set the Turbos down on six hits, striking out six while giving up only one walk. Day also hit a triple in his own cause.

Rod Bennett went all the way in absorbing the loss, yielding 10 hits, fanning nine, and walking three.

Calbury's triple and pair of doubles made him the leading figure in the Combines attack. Schrieder hit safely twice for the winners.

The Turbos' Ron Conlon homered, with Bovay's triple, and Plumbe's two safeties accounting for the bulk of the losers' attack.

Fifth game in the series is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, presumably at the CNR Park.

Dairy Queens Stop Legion

All good things must come to an end, and for the Branch 99 entry in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, last night was the night.

Their Dairy Queen opponents in the league's best-of-seven final playoff series downed the Legion girls 8-6 to tie the series at 3-1, and mark the first Legion loss in five playoff games.

Dairy Queen's Barb Breadner pitched the win, getting top hitting support from Sharon Hannah, Gloria Bentley, Elda Barnard and Brooks.

Losing pitchers Charlene Quinn and Nancy McCallum each scored once for the Legion, who got other scores from Joanne DaSoe (2), Betty Boomhour and Barb McCracken.

Third game in the series is scheduled for Monday night at the Cheese Producers' Field at 6 p.m.

Fawcett's 73 Low Net

Muriel Fawcett's 73 won her low net honors and the Betty Ingram Trophy at Thursday's "Golden Girls" event at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

A 94 gave Joy Bowerman low gross honors for the day.

Second and third low nets were Flo Mesaszar and Ann Ryan, with Hettie Dyble and Helen Lewis capturing second and third gross honors.

One More Chance!

If as many participants in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are as late for games as they are in being registered, the whole organization would be in an uproar this winter.

BMHA president Tom Cavanagh said today the flood of late requests for registration has prompted the association to hold another registration period next week, with times and place to be announced.

Nearly 1,100 boys signed up in last week's designated registration period.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market inched ahead to a small gain in light mid-morning trading today as it moved into its fifth successive upward session.

On index, industrials were up .24 to 180.50. Western oils slipped 2.10 to 221.52 and base metals .94 to 119.96. Golds were unchanged at 128.19.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 525,000 shares compared with 395,000 at the same time Thursday. Advances outnumbered declines 142 to 109.

Falconbridge, up 7 Thursday, dropped 2¼ to 143¼. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Inco gained ½ to 41¾. Steelworkers at Inco walked off their jobs July 31.

Algoma Steel picked up ¼ to 18¾ and Stelco ¼ to 22¼. Steelworkers at both companies are on strike.

Texaco was unchanged at 27. The company increased its quarterly common-stock dividend to 22 cents from 20 cents.

Home B gained 1¼ to 44. Great-West life 1 to 101, International Utilities ¾ to 34¼, Placer ⅝ to 40¾ and Rank ⅛ to 13¼.

National Containers lost 1 to 16, Husky ⅛ to 16¾ and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to 19¾.

On Thursday the market closed at its highest level of the day after overcoming a small opening loss.

Falconbridge jumped 7 to 146 after touching its high for the year of 146¼ and INCO 11 to 41¼. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21. Inco's Ontario operations have been closed down since July 10 when steelworkers walked off their jobs.

Because Inco and Falconbridge are the two largest nickel producers in Canada, some observer are predicting an increase in the price of nickel once their labor problems are settled.

McIntyre, which holds about a 27½ per-cent interest in Falconbridge, rose 6¼ to 139½.

Western oils, down 25.57 in the last five days, picked up 3.60 to 223.62. Stocks of companies with Alaskan oil lease sales last week and now are apparently awaiting bargain hunter.

Home B was up 2¾ to 42¾, Home A 2¾ to 47¾, Ranger 1¼ to 13¼, Asmaline ¼ to 21¼, Western Decalta 75 cents to $8.00 and Petrol one cent to 59 cents.

Rvenue slipped five cents to $3.70 and Victoria Wood was unchanged at 11¼. Chairman Certain directors and officers of Revenue and Victoria Wood had resigned following Victoria Wood prospectus were withdrawn Thursday.

Similar charge against Victoria Wood were dismissed earlier. However, Revenue still faces charges relating to alleged issues of a misleading annual earnings report.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 20

Your birthday today: The year ahead is full of much talk, many apparent opportunities which go nowhere. Few openings offer serious change of direction. It is time to sort out true from false. Discard outdated unconscious attitudes and sell off useless materials and property. Consider people who leave you this year as no great loss as they have some other destiny to fulfill which you cannot share. Today's natives tend to be intelligent, industrious, and willing to follow a strongly dissident course of action when given reason.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): There is nothing to do but go ahead with the best work you can do under conditions of stress and noise. Cut out any distraction that you can, and keep matters simple. Promises from others fade fast.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Creative work is favored over commercial efforts. Deal with professional consultants. Home affairs are subject to confusion, crossed signals. Be wary of any deal which seems too good.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Joint financial affairs should be left as they are, despite temptations to take risks. Skepticism may spoil a romantic episode, but will save you heartbreak later.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): It is your duty to remain calm while all around you everything surges and everybody frets. Self-important people intrude where they are difficult to cope with. Omit social action tonight and get some studying done.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your knowledge of social customs is essential to progress. Think what you are doing, where it may lead you. Any sort of service received should be checked carefully on delivery.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This period early in your new cycle invites capitalization, people able and willing to invest in you and your future prospects. Search near you, then plan on looking at greater distances if you are not well sustained locally.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Expect complexities and confusion in your home and community today. Hear what everybody has to say before acting then make a definite decision on how things are to be handled. Don't be surprised if you must make a hasty journey incident to family needs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): This seems to be a normal Saturday in all respects except that for once you are likely to say just enough or not quite enough about your affairs causing your listeners pain a completely distorted idea of what you are doing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your money has wings already fluttering, and younger people have wild ideas for scattering it. Keep the evening simple, with little comment and few extras.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Change is in the air, and if some of it does not fit your expectations. Don't upset everybody with much comment. Carry yet. Experimentation with medical symptoms and cures is now the least desirable course — get proper advice from a licensed practitioner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Glamor, deception, indiscretion tempt you to no avail as you are following a better pattern now. Do your important work in solitude if possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is an erratic day at best. You must keep your humor intact somehow. Stay with the steady course you originally set. Friends have stories to tell or pick a good listening spot, not a public area.

Science Fantasy Said Too True

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

A friend of mine, who knows my addiction to mystery stories, wonders why I don't read and enjoy science-fantasy fiction, which he relishes in his hours of relaxation.

Well, in the past I have tried picking up these stories, and I find that they bother more than amuse me. A good gory mystery is a warm and human document, compared with the arid projections of the science-fantasy school.

My objection is not that these stories are too fantastic, but that they are too likely to be true. The cold, mechanical picture they draw about the future seems probable each day — and it's a picture of a universe I could not possibly feel at home in.

The mystery story, on the other hand, deals with life as it is familiar to us. Although it may treat ordinary matters in an extreme and shocking fashion, they remain basically the fabric of our lives.

Jealousy, greed, fraud and force — these are the elements that confront us every day, to a greater or smaller degree. They are the raw stuff out of which human conduct is shaped — and, like Terence, we can say, "I am a human being, and therefore nothing human is alien to me."

But these men with the green beads and the computing-machine hearts are utterly alien to me. And they are more frightening than any murderer could be.

A murderer, after all, is but an exaggeration of the evil that is in all of us: the men of the future are not even human enough to be immoral."

I am sure that a large part of our contemporary unrest and anxiety comes from the persistent feeling that science is taking us too far and too fast.

What I shudder at in the science-fiction stories is a world in which the concept of justice has all but disappeared, and the victors are those who can push the most buttons on the most machines. Such fantasy is too close to the reality of the next war to give me any ease in my easy chair.

Two Road Fatalities

Three Die in Quinte Area Accidents in Past 24 Hours

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Accidental death struck three times in the Quinte district yesterday — killing two men in traffic mishaps and a third in a work accident.

The victims were: Ralph Carlisle Main, 69, R. R. 1 Belleville, struck by an automobile as he herded cows across the Redoersville Road, three miles west of Rossmore;

Brian Smith, 20, Deseronto, thrown from an automobile as it rolled on Highway 133 southeast of Napanee;

Roger Rallison, of Brighton, 35-year-old construction worker who died in a fall from a scaffold while painting a hangar at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

Meantime, a freak accident at the scene of the Redoersville Road mishap sent a 80-year-old onlooker to hospital.

Police said William Bedford, a market gardener well-known for years on the Belleville farmers' market, suffered concussion when struck by a utility pole when an ambulance became snarled in downed hydro wires.

At Picton, provincial police say they have charged the driver of the car involved in the fatality. They would not detail the charge against Frank Hilborne, 46, R. R. 2, Carrying Place.

The mishap occurred at supper time as Mr. Main was reported shepherding cattle across the county road.

Police say the impact, carrying Mr. Main more than 300 feet, was instantly fatal. The car snapped off a mail box — which jamed in the windshield — and hit a utility pole.

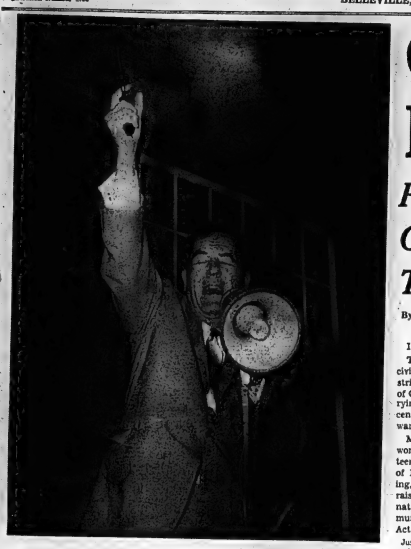
Low-hanging wires from the broken pole scorched the roof of an ambulance despatched to the scene, say police. As the emergency vehicle manouevred it apparently snarled in the wires, jerking the pole, which in turn struck Mr. Bedford. Mr. Bedford is the father-in-law of the dead man.

The Napanee-area accident occurred less than three hours earlier.

Police say Mr. Smith was enroute to work at Milhaven with Ivan Reid, 25, of Napanee, the driver of the car.

The small automobile rolled less than two miles south of highway 2. Both men were thrown from the car and later rushed to Kingston General Hospital where Mr. Smith died.

Mr. Reid sustained cuts and bruises, say police.



Meantime, provincial police say an inquest is likely into the mishap at Trenton base.

Mr. Rallison, father of two, died from a broken neck when he fell 15 feet from a scaffold.

He had been working for an Ottawa contractor painting the exterior of Hangar No. 1 north of highway 2.

Police say a foreman noticed the scaffold was slanting and ordered Mr. Rallison and a fellow worker down while it was moved to a more level position.

However, Mr. Rallison said he would remain where he was while the scaffold was shifted. Then, say police, he changed position, on the platform causing it to tip.

'Great Scott! It's Loaded!'

A startled Mayor Russell Scott, with smoke wreaths overhead, fired starting shot for today's mass walkathon. The mayor had good reason for wincing. The pistol jammed several times — then discharged unexpectedly to start the 30-mile hike around the Bay of Quinte for Recreation Action Centre fund.

Province May Release First Mortgage Money

TIMMINS (CP) — The Ontario government will enter the first-mortgage business unless private lenders make more money available to home-buyers, Economics and Development Minister Stanley Randall told a conference in Northern Ontario development Friday.

Mr. Randall, minister responsible for housing, said there is a $50,000,000 fund available from which the government would finance 95 per cent of all mortgage money needed by those buying homes under the province's Home Ownership Made Easy plan.

"It is not a fact yet, but I think it can be arranged," he said, adding that he has discussed the proposal with Treasurer Charles MacNaughton and other ministers and will discuss it with federal authorities.

Mr. Randall was one of six cabinet ministers and almost 100 civil servants who attended the conference, called to hear northern grievances and suggestions for speeding development.

The delegates, including industrial, business and civic leaders, broke into four seminars on various aspects of development. The conference was to conclude today with spokesmen presenting suggestions from each discussion group to a general session.

These suggestions include lower rail fares, leasing land for quick development by German and Japanese industries, attracting secondary industries and establishing a commission of successful industrialists to plan the economic development of northeastern Ontario.

Mr. Randall told the conference and a reporter later that housing "is still the number one priority in this province."

He said the HOME plan called for conventional lending institutions to provide 75 per cent of the cost of a house, with the government lending another 20 per cent and the home-buyer left to raise the remaining five.

The $50,000,000 fund set up by the government to pay its 20 per cent has not been touched because the private lenders have not produced their share.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Southerly winds have managed to dislodge the cool air over northwestern Ontario. The high pressure area has been moving slowly southeastward. Southern regions will be only slightly warmer today but temperatures should climb to near 70 Sunday.

Citizens on March For Action Arena

Fourth Of Cost Target

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

It's a feat of feet.

Today a regiment of civic volunteers were striding around the Bay of Quinte, hopefully carrying a new recreation centre one giant step toward reality.

More than 1,100 men, women, moppets and teenagers marched out of Belleville this morning, their feet pledged to raise a rich founding donation from their community for the Quinte Action Centre.

Just how much voluntary wealth they can glean to underwrite the $190,000 project will not be estimated until the last of the marchers have toed the finishing line at Memorial Arena sometime later today.

But, project chairman Rich and Hurst estimates if all walkers finished and all pledges paid off, the centre fund could be richer by $40,000.

Mr. Hurst, however, emphasized this was only a rough estimate, based on quick computation of pledges registered at the walkathon start.

But money took secondary place to the initial response for the project.

The optimism of organizers was spurred by the obvious widespread enthusiasm for the walkathon and what it represents.

The pattern of community participation was immediately clear.

Walkers began registering at the arena shortly after six a.m., building to a steady stream within the hour.

By 7.30, when Mayor Russell Scott fired the starting pistol — after it initially jam-

Quebec Crisis Bubbles

MONTREAL (CP)—The Gazette quotes the chief aide of Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal as saying the offer by the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal to provide classroom space for 380 English-speaking St. Leonard children is "an affront to Quebec society!"

It says the statement, and subsequent denials by Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and Mr. Cardinal that any Cardinal aide made such a comment, makes "glaringly public" a growing cabinet rift.

And it adds:

"The current game of who said what followed by denials and counter—denials is just the tip of the iceberg—a cabinet division of major proportions over St. Leonard that is fast approaching a show-down."

News Briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two psychiatrists and a psychologist acting as coroner's advisers say the slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four others at her Bel Air home must have been the work of more than one person.

Coroner Thomas Noguchi said bizarre features of the crime suggested possible severe psychopathy of at least one of the killers, but that other details indicated someone was thinking clearly. He said sex was not involved in the killings but drugs were.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — Mary Jo Kopechne's parents, reported "unimpressed" by statements that blood was present when her body was recovered from Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car, will press their legal fight against an autopsy, their lawyer said Friday.

"Because there is no proof of foul play or criminal conduct — especially those elements — the parents don't want her body disturbed," said lawyer Joseph Flanagan.

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro has signed a law under which hijackers can be returned to the countries from which they came, Havana radio said Friday. However, the broadcast said air pirates will be returned only to countries which have signed bilateral treaties with Cuba agreeing to send back any hijackers who enter their own countries.

Alliance Protests Premiums

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal public servants in Ontario are being asked to "pay more for much less" under the forthcoming medical care insurance plan in Ontario, Trevor Gough, executive vice-president of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, said Friday.

The PSAC telegram to Mr. Roberts says premiums could be reduced "at least 50 per cent" except for the "refusal of your government to properly apply the federal share of medicare costs to defray premiums."

Mr. Gough's statement said the plan after Oct. 1 will also lack coverage for such things as drugs and nursing services, which are covered under present plans. The result will be that people have to "pay more for much less."

"In the interest of good government we demand immediate action toward significant premium reduction. There is no valid reason why our members should pay the proposed exorbitant rates."

To Miami on Inner Tube

Cuban Survives Five-Day Ocean Ordeal

MIAMI (AP) — The survivor of a raft ride from Cuba told Friday of one companion falling amidst circling sharks and another—driven insane by thirst—who "threw himself to die at sea."

Oscar Camp Ferro, 20, suffering from sun and salt water burns on arms he used as paddles, recounted the horrors of the five-day trip which ended on a beach here Friday afternoon.

"I saw the beach and I thought it was still Cuba," Ferro told a Miami Herald reporter from a hospital bed. "Someone shouted to me, and I asked him: 'Are you a Russian?' He said: 'No, American,' and I knew I was safe."

Ferro washed ashore clinging to an inner tube—all that was left of a raft fashioned from three tubes lashed to wooden boards when the three men left Santa Cruz del Norte on Sunday, he said.

"On Monday morning, I had a small can of milk," he said. "That's all I have eaten since we left."

That day the raft overturned in rough water. The three men dismantled it and each grabbed an inner tube. Tuesday all was well. Then rough weather again struck.

"On Wednesday, Guillermo disappeared from sight," said Ferro. "One minute he was there, and the next he was gone."

Ferro said he knew his companions only by their first names.

With sharks circling them, the two held hands in an effort to stick together, he said. But on Thursday Ferro found himself alone.

"Eduardo got very nervous," he said of his second friend. "He started shouting, 'water, water.' All of a sudden he went crazy and threw himself to die at sea. When I saw my friends disappear, I knew I would have to be strong, or I would die too."

Ferro, listed in serious condition, said he was an office worker in the Cuba National Institute of Fisheries who left the island because of "abuse and exploitation."

United Appeal

UCS Benefits, Too

Editor's note: This is the ninth report in a series of Intelligencer features on community agencies receiving support through the United Appeal.

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

An individual's donation to the United Appeal not only supports 14 agencies, but contributes a special way to the future of the community.

Most people don't realize that the United Community Services is, in itself, also an agency, which derives a percentage support from United Appeal funds for operation costs.

Composed and run by volunteers, who, in the words of UCS social planning co - ordinator, Mrs. Edith Fast, are "quite dedicated", the organization is run on a committee basis.

"What the UCS does is actually a combination fund raising, to help keep all its agencies on the move financially, and a wide scope of social planning", explained Mrs. Fast.

The United . Community Services has recently been revamped, no longer staffing a resident executive director.

Now, it is composed of four committees, who will cover all new and continue all present projects of the UCS. The two volunteer co - ordinators are Mrs. Edith Fast and Mrs. Freeman Burrows.

The four committees will fall under the following headings: services to children, health services, well-being services plus prevention of crime and delinquency.

Familiar services such as the Christmas Exchange, Furniture Exchange, the Volunteer Bureau and all other projects will be relegated under one of the four appropriate committees.

The object of the new social planning direction of the UCS is to fill the existing needs in the community, while correlating programs presently being carried out by the "helping" agencies.

Committee members are representative of all the agencies as well as individual citizens who have had experience in special fields and have shown a desire to become involved.

"There is such a great resources of people right here in our own community," said Mrs. Burrows.

The particular aim of the new committees, and co-ordinators is to provide continuity and a liaison between the various people and projects that are going forward right now, and in the future.

"We have not a great deal of work into organizing this whole scheme to keep everything operating," said Mrs. Fast.

"Particularly, we were determined to eliminate the overlap of services, find out where the gaps are, and plan committees there to fill them," she added.

Both co-ordinators admitted they relied on the good advice of the Ontario Welfare Council, as an agency member of the United Community Services, to provide guidelines and recommendations to the local committees.

"The executive director of the Council told us we were most fortunate to have volunteer workers like we have," commented Mrs. Burrows.

The last year was spent in "dialogue," with various organizations in the community.

"We talked about the breakdown between community agencies, and the changes that are needed. There is always a necessity for change—this is something that can never be finalized," remarked Mrs. Fast.

The United Community Services can be considered an outgrowth of the work done by the Belleville Social Services Planning Council, begun in 1964.

This year, the UCS has received no grant from the city for further operating costs.

"We are going to try to make it completely on our own purse, just from the money received from the United Appeal," emphasized Mrs. Burrows.

Looking Into the Future

United Community Service social planning co-ordinators Mrs. F. E. Burrows (left) and Mrs. Edith Fast discuss with United Appeal representative Eric Naylor, what the future holds for their agency. The UCS has recently been re-organized into four committees, which will continue the present and proposed projects of the agency.

Youthful Bank Robbers Plead Guilty, Remanded

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Two Brantford area youths, Dennis Butcher, 18, and Mark Athony Kowall, 19, pleaded guilty in Provincial Court here Friday to the armed robbery last May 28 of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Consecon.

They were remanded to Sept. 24 for sentence.

At the same time the pair will be sentenced on five charges of breaking, entering and theft in the Quinte area, and on charges of common assault against two Picton jail guards during an alleged attempt to escape from Picton Jail a week ago.

The two pleaded guilty, to the breaking and entering and the assault charge.

Also, the two were charged jointly with Richard James Blackwood, 20, of RR 3, Picton, with attempting to escape custody from Picton Jail. Kowall pleaded guilty to the charge, Blackwood pleaded not guilty, while Crown Attorney Richard Sheehy asked that the escape attempt charge against Butcher be dropped.

The bank robbery at Consecon saw $4,317.65 taken by the two youths who made a successful getaway by eluding a police cordon thrown up around Prince Edward County.

Ontario Provincial Police Constable James Ramsbottom told the court yesterday that Kowall and Butcher entered the Consecon bank at 11.30 on the morning of May 28. Kowall armed with a 308 Winchester and Butcher with a .22 calibre Magna.

They told the bank manager, a teller and one customer that "This is a holdup."

The two members of the bank staff and the customer were then forced behind the bank counter where they were guarded by Kowall while Butcher removed monies from the till.

The constable said that less than $15 of the $4,317.65 has so far been recovered.

When the youths left the bank, the manager, teller and customer were forced to lie on the floor.

The pair escaped from Consecon in a red 1960 Buick convertible which swerved off the road on a curve not far from the robbery scene. Butcher and Kowall then ran from the car into a nearby swamp where they hid until dark.

Members of the Picton and Belleville OPP searched the swamp with tracking dogs but found no trace of the bank robbers.

But when it grew dark, the constable said, they found in an old barn near Mountain View, They left the barn during the night, abandoning their rifles and carrying only a hand gun.

Groping their way along Highway 14, they avoided police detection by hiding in the ditch each time a cruiser passed. The pair reached the Bay of Quinte near Rossmore where they took a boat and rowed to Belleville. The handgun was dropped into the bay, said the constable.

Arriving in Belleville the pair took a train to Brockville where they arrived at 5 o'clock the morning after the robbery.

From Brockville the pair took a train to Montreal where they remained a week before flying to Vancouver.

In Vancouver for seven days, Butcher and Kowall were apprehended following the robbery of a trust company in that city.

Constable Ramsbotton and an OPP officer from Belleville went to Vancouver and brought the pair back to face charges in Prince Edward county.

Yesterday, Constable Ramsbottom told the court the pair had claimed they left $1,000 of the stolen bank money in the old barn at Mountain View But when police searched the barn no trace of the money was found.

The pair pleaded guilty to entering Kelly's Sport Shop on North Front Street on May 24 where they took rifles. They also pleaded guilty to entering the Speed Queen cold wash at Trenton where they took $300 worth of clothes, and the Trenton offices of the Beaver Lumber Company and the Leland Lumber Company.

Guilty pleas were also entered on a break and enter charge at Brighton where $86.50 worth of cigarettes and other goods were taken from a service station

In remanding the two bank robbers and Blackwood for sentence, Provincial Judge T. Y. Wills said he wanted to give the matter much consideration.

"I want to give it a great deal of thought because these are young people and it is going to be a substantial sentence," he said.

It is expected the pair will be again remanded when they appear for sentencing in court next week.

Teen Dance Was Among UA Week Events

United Appeal Kickoff Tonight

Church bells will peal a crucial community p l e a throughout Belleville tonight.

The bells ring in the city's 1969 United Appeal — this year bidding to raise $130,000 for community service agencies.

The churches will chime in on officially opening ceremonies, that, hopefully, will set a cracking pace for the campaign.

Climaxing a week of special events — aimed at involving Bellevillians in the campaign buildup — Appeal organizers have scheduled an open-air square dance on Market Square behind city hall.

Square dancing on the square will follow formal opening ceremonial for the fund drive, Mayor Russell Scott will officiate.

Assisting the mayor will be Peggy Kraft, 21-year-old city telephone operator named Miss United Appeal at a beauty contest Thursday night.

Monday, the real work begins in canvassing for funds starts in city plants, offices and commercial enterprises.

The campaign chores get underway in an environment already well adjusted to the Appeal's presence.

The weeklong public-events roster was programmed to touch a broad cross section of the citizenry.

Last night teenagers had their turn — with some unexpected results.

The city's YMCA opened its Victoria Avenue premises through the day to the younger set, highlighting a program of activities with an after-dark dance on its outdoor parking lot.

All went well for little more than an hour.

Then, says Appeal publicity chairman J. K. Fleming, neighbors complained of the noise.

Tonight's Market Square dancers will square off shortly after 8:45 p.m. — the time scheduled for the Appeal's official opening.

If the weather changes drastically it will be transferred to Centennial Secondary School.

Jaycee Parade to Mirror Community's Main Assets

Belleville Jaycees promise an opening parade for Belleville Week that will reflect the entire scope of what is available in the city.

Expected to participate Saturday, Sept. 27 are youth, cultural, recreation and sports groups from the city—all telling visually of their contribution to the community.

About 1,000 people and 20 floats will enter the monster parade, scheduled to set out from the East Hill playground at 2.30 p.m. The route will be down Bridge St. to the grandstand area of the Fairgrounds.

Theme of the parade is the past, present and future. Indians from the Tyendinaga Reserve will take part in historical tableaux depicting the early days of the Quinte region. The Holy Name Society from the Church of St. Michael the Archangel will provide members to depict the early missionaries.

A detachment of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, wearing uniforms of the 1867 era and carrying rifles of the same period, will march in the parade.

Other treats in store for watchers along the route will be the appearance of the 1969 Rose Queen and Miss United Appeal.

The Downtown Business-men's Association has contracted for the appearance of all Don Foster's clowns in the march.

Riding with Mayor Russell Scott will be all the past citizens of the year selected in Jaycee-sponsored campaigns.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department are building the floats. Included among them will be surrealistic creations projecting an image of the future.

Lou DeJong of the Jaycees is chairman of the parade committee. Leading off will be a mounted color party, and the man without whose presence no local parade could be held — parade marshal Lieut.-Col. Angus Duffy.

Parade Preparations

The time draws on for Belleville Week. But the time is now for organizing its roster of events. In the midst of preparation for Sept. 27 opening parade are Belleville Jaycees. Here, posters for the big procession are being readied by Terry Barratt (left), Russ Brady and Gerry Gill.

Fatality Scene On Rednersville Road

Citizens Go on Arena March

med — almost 1,000 citizens of all ages were ready to march toward Trenton on the first leg of the challenge.

Participants were still arriving at the arena after 8 a.m.

The leaders set a crackling pace.

By 11 a.m. Intelligencer sports editor Maurice Switzer, one of the sponsored marchers, reported he was the 300th hiker to make the Trenton turn — three hours, 13 miles, "a chocolate bar and three-tenths of a bottle of foot liniment" from the starting line.

But the participants were as varied as the pace of the fund-raising volunteers.

Youngsters, oldsters, athletes all joined the foot-slogging match.

Dave Coates, co-chairman of the Action Centre scheme, brought along most of the family — six sons ranging from seven to 11 years old.

At least one woman stands to raise $2,700. A railroader reported that Mrs. Jack Payne, wife of a CN engineer, was being sponsored at the rate of $1 a mile by 90 members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Local 189.

Meantime, a pledge-withinpledge contribution rides on today's walkathon from the Belleville Week Committee.

The committee, now actively engaged in rounding off details of the big end-of-the-month civic program, promised three tickets to the youngster in minor sports who produces the most-walkathon cash pledges.

A Dead Heat

The battle of the sexes has taken some new and contrasting forms in recent days.

First there was the United Nations General Assembly opening its 24th session under the presidency of a thoughtful and attractive African women, Miss Angie E. Brooks of Liberia. And secondly, Edward Jarvis has become the first male headmaster of Toronto's Bishop Strachan school.

Miss Brooks who at 41 is assistant secretary of state of Liberia gave delegates what was described as their most searching analysis of its position heard from a new president in recent years.

She deplored "the decline of the United Nations in the eyes of public opinion but nevertheless expressed the belief that the need for the UN was "ever on the increase."

Meanwhile in Toronto the girls of the century-old Bishop Strachan school are all agog over the appointment of Mr. Jarvis. The new headmaster describes himself as very liberal and has already given proof of this quality by dropping an old school rule stipulating the hems of the girls' grey skirts must not be more than three inches above the knee. The skirts, he said, had not risen noticeably.

He describes his charges as "very responsible" They could make decisions for themselves. However he insists on daily attendance at chapel and obedience to the prefects.

"There are times for formality, and times for informality," he said.

We imagine Mr. Jarvis will be a popular leader. He sounds like a man of firm convictions and sensible ideas on discipline, yet tempered by understanding and compassion. Young people will not go far wrong under such guidance.

Overall its a dead-heat for the ladies and gentlemen, with Miss Brooks in charge of the male-dominated United Nations Assembly and Mr. Jarvis keeping order over the young ladies at Bishop Strachan.

Incidentally, the new UN General Assembly president also provides a fashion note. Like most African women she prefers colorful prints with matching turbans, and she likes pendants of African design, bracelets and earrings.

A Country's Stamps

New Zealand, a country whose relatively small confines contain some of the world's loveliest scenery and unique geological sights has been long known as a desirable place to live.

It combines a pleasant climate, scenery, sporting and outdoor life with a modern society and high standard of living. And if the country is far away, down there in the South Pacific 1,100 miles or so east of Australia, it makes its presence felt in a variety of ways.

New Zealand has troops in Vietnam and it is a member of the Southeast Treaty Organization. Under the Colombo Plan it sends materials and advisers to needy countries. Students from overseas study in its universities.

In sport it is known for its great Rugby football teams, left hand golfer Bob Charles and ace racing driver Bruce McLaren.

In one other way New Zealand puts its best face forward on the international scene. That is, by means of the philatelist's art. Its Christmas stamps, reproductions of paintings of the Great Masters, are anticipated eagerly by collectors while just now it has in circulation stamps showing Kerikeri, scene of one of the oldest settlements in the country, and the beautiful Bay of Islands.

It is a good way to show off your country—by means of stamps. And New Zealand, with so much to show off, does it better than most.

Against Odds

Superb performers that they are, the exuberant Les Feux Follets overcame the cavernous and half-empty gloom of Kingston's Memorial Centre the other day to present another of their highly-professional and colorful programs.

Differing almost entirely from their Belleville presentation of a couple of years ago, their Canadian Mosaic 1969 moved through the throbbing mysticism of early Indian and Eskimo legend to the frenetic world of modern psychedelia.

For the performers, though, the unheated Memorial Centre was likely a traumatic experience, after the National Arts Centre in Ottawa where they had already performed. If anyone in Kingston, a university city, is thinking in terms of building a similar (if less costly) edifice worthy of companies of such distinction as Les Feux Follets, they are thinking along the right lines.

A Dollar A Minute

Stanley Burke Spills the Beans on $30,000 CBC Salary

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — . . . Attention, please . . . pensioners . . . working stiffs . . . professional men . . .

Now hear thi . . .

Of course you must have read of newsman Stanley Burke telling the first-person story of why he recently quit the CBC "to devote my time," as he himself put it at a press conference, "to help ease the agony of the Biafran war."

He opened his personal account of his decision and the reasons for it with two sentences.

After his by-line, "By Stanley Burke," they read:

"Why would anyone give up $30,000 a year for two and a half hours' work a night?

"Why throw away the dollar-a-minute I was being paid to read CBC's national evening news?"

What has to hit you between the eyes must be not the strength of Burke's convictions, but the size of the sacrifice.

The disclosure that CBC pays $1 a minute, or $30,000 a year, is a stunner.

Stanley Burke, a former Vancouver newspaperman and more recently a CBC foreign correspondent, was paid that kind of money simply to read the news.

He did no more than that nor less.

He didn't cull the news from the reports of the big and costly CBC staff of correspondents at home and abroad. Nor did he assemble it from the national news wires.

He was not, he so often complained, even consulted.

He was handed a "prepared script, processed in the CBC newsroom, and he read it.

He did not comment on it. He added nothing and subtracted nothing.

And for that he was paid that $1 a minute, with the clock ticking off $30,000 worth of minutes for him in his two-and-a-half-hour-day working year.

In writing his piece, Stanley Burke has done something that Parliament in all its years of trying has failed utterly to accomplish.

He has made known a CBC salary.

Year after unsuccessful year, both the House of Commons and the Senate have asked for such CBC payroll details.

Parliament thought it had a right to know because every year the CBC comes hat in hand to the Commons, pleading for a grant, this year hitting a record $186,000,000.

But while the taxpayers pony up that $186,000,000, the CBC always insists — with unfailing success — that its payroll is none of the taxpayer's business.

And Parliament never has been able to convince CBC otherwise.

Hoping to bring CBC to heel, the government not long ago appointed super-mandarin George Davidson, former deputy welfare boss and secretary to the presidency.

But as routinely happens to all presidents, George Davison was swallowed by CBC. And the broadcasting empire, undisturbed by any one, including Parliament, digs deeper into the taxpayer's pocket.

Carefully, the government insists it is practising the "restraint" in spending that it preaches to business, labor and industry.

But with that $1-a-minute rate of pay for Stanley Burke, the CBC must be outside the guidelines — and perhaps even the financial control — of the government.

How does $30,000-a-year for a working day of two and a half hours stack up with ordinary wage and salary levels in the rest of the economy — that part outside the sky-come-easy-go world of CBC?

The answer, "fantastic," has to be the word for it according to official income figures in the authoritative "Green Book" of the department of national revenue.

Stanley Burke's $1-a-minute $30,000 is more than 10 times the average income of all working Canadians, $2,445.

More than the average salary of doctors and surgeons — who head the national pay list — at $27,347.

More than engineers and architects at $22,111, lawyers at $22,014, dentists at $18,527, accountants at $14,617, who comprise the professional elite.

Next in income line are salesmen at $7,052, teachers at $6,287, civil servants at $6,859, farmers at $5,530, fishermen at $4,796, pensioners at $3,450.

It is more, far more than the average of $5,365 income for Belleville, $5,697 in Thunder Bay, $5,589 in Timmins Sudbury, $5,130 in Red Deer, $6,127 in Grande Prairie, $4,796 in Saint John, $4,723 in Amherst, $4,807 in St. John's, $5,648 in Kitchener, $4,990 in Sherbrooke, $5,079 in St. Thomas, $5,073 in Victoria, $5,080 in Stratford, $4783 in Sydney $5,238 in Sudbury.

And for their income doctors, lawyers, dentists, teachers, farmers, fishermen, and even upper income executives from St. John's to Victoria and from St. Thomas to Grande Prairie work no snap two-and-a-half-hour day at anything remotely like $1-a-minute.

On that you can safely bet your last CBC tax dollar.

"After taking tranquillizers all summer because of the noise, now that school has begun I need them because of the un-nerving silence!"

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women in Canada gained their first limited federal franchise with the passing of the Wartime Elections Act 52 years ago today—in 1917. The act gave the vote to women who had close relatives in the armed services. Complete enfranchisement came in the following year but because the Elections Act of 1918 bestowed only federal franchise, women in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec still had no provincial vote. Provincial franchise came in New Brunswick in 1919, in P.E.I. in 1922 and in Quebec in 1940.

1519—Explorer Ferdinand Magellan began his voyage around the world.

1863—Robert Emmett, Irish patriot and rebel, was executed.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—1st Canadian Army troops took Assendede on The Netherlands border; Finland broke relations with Hungary, Croatia and Slovakia and Japan; first American counter-attack of war on Manila Bay area sank 11 ships and destroyed 205 enemy planes; Canadians took Boulogne following a lengthy siege and three-day street battle.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—carrier planes of United States 3rd Fleet sank 29 ships in Manila Bay area on second day of attack; London was bombed for the fourth consecutive night; Russians cleared isthmus between Lake Peipus and Gulf of Finland; Americans bombed Mainz and Coblenz.

Legalized Gambling Can Spell Trouble

Montreal Star

To the deep thinkers in the Quebec government it must have sounded like a brilliant idea. Make Quebec a haven for legalized gambling. Turn Montreal into a super Las Vegas with glittering casinos and ornate nightclubs filled with happy tourists pouring their Yankee dollars into the Quebec economy and the government's coffers. The idea sounded so promising that the government, apparently, has sent emissaries to Las Vegas to find out how to go about it.

Now that they've got over the first flush of inspiration, we hope our leaders have regained their senses. The last thing Quebec needs now is gambling casinos. We've got trouble enough without them.

Gambling is a form of amusement that is enjoyed by many and we don't have quarrel with their taste. But gambling casinos are an infallible magnet for organized crime.

The toll exacted by organized crime is already apparent enough in Quebec without the government issuing an open invitation to the Mafia to bring in more members. The legalized gambling proposal should be consigned to the bottom of the file of bad ideas.

Focus On Polygamy

Montreal Gazette

There is a long tradition of polygamy in Africa and the simple explanation is that the continent has always had more women than men. It was a man's duty to have as many wives as he could afford — for their sakes.

Many things have changed, including the status of women in the new independent states. When Tanzania proposed last week to make it legal for a man to have more than one wife, the new women's organizations immediately objected.

If men can have more than one wife, they said, then women, being equal, should be permitted to have more than one husband.

That seems fair enough — if they can afford them.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 20, 1949.

City council at their regular meeting approved the setting up of a system of pension payments for employees of the city and passed the necessary bylaw authorizing the scheme.

Ideal weather conditions and public interest in the work of the Canadian Institute for the Blind combined to make a good successful tag day on Saturday, when a total of $980 was realized. The convener for the tag day was Mrs. Harry Rollins.

J. J. Murphy, Metropolitan Life, was elected president at the meeting held at the Golden Acres Inn. An outstanding feature of the meeting was a very lively address by P. C. McGuire C.L.U. of Belleville, regional vice president of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

30 YEARS AGO

September 20, 1939.

Clearing customs from the new procedure under the War Measures Act, and on Sunday afternoon the mail carrier Henry C. Daryaw, which entered port with a cargo of coal was the first ship to be cleared locally under the new regulation. Persons elected were: past prefect, Frank Foley; prefect, Douglas Latimer; scriptor, Gerald Hyde; conqitor, John Locke; assistant mentor, E. J. Suter. Six new members will be initiated at the next meeting.

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Bannerman (nee Harriet McIntosh) have left here to take up residence at Hanover, N.H.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Arthurs have returned to their home in White River after visiting her sister, Mrs. John Ellis, Station Street.

City Treasurer Harry B. Stock is in Toronto to deliver to the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario the city bonds in connection with the recent purchase by the city of the local distributing system.

Not That Way—But This Way!

Hamilton Spectator

Last Friday afternoon, at Blake and Main Streets, a mother watched her small son throw an ice cream bar under a lawn. She ordered the boy to pick it up and "throw it on the road like I told you before, or I'll give you a good smack."

So the little boy learned to throw garbage on the road.

The above incident was reported by a passerby who also noted that a public litter container is located on the same heavily-littered block.

Now we know. Slobs aren't born; they're trained.

Mrs. J. W. Bamford won the door prize at the Riwanis Carnival.

Co-operative Effort

A Success Story in Home Building in B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — If the small house-builder in the Vancouver area is king, as some in the industry suggest, then Larry Boursma rules one of the larger principalities.

In the business only four years, he will construct about 37 homes this year, worth $800,000 to $900,000 to his burgeoning trade.

There were roughly 400 contractors involved in putting up 5,000 homes in the metropolitan area last year, working out to an average of fewer than 12 per year apiece.

Mr. Bourne lives and works in the North Delta area on the southern edge of the city, one of Vancouver's fastest growing residential districts.

He got into house building after 14 years of working in a lumber mill.

"I've always been interested in building houses," he said in a recent interview.

"I used to build log cabins when I was a kid. When I was at the mill, in my spare time I built 11 homes, mostly for my relatives."

He took a course in house design from a correspondence school and got "all As except for one B, I think it was."

He sold his house and moved into a smaller one—he built both—to finance the business and put up $80,000 worth of houses in his first year.

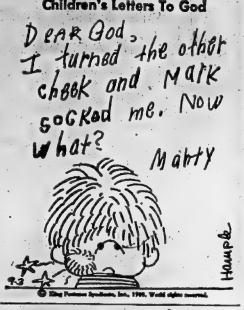
Working out of his home, he can see from his kitchen window two of the 30 homes he now has under construction. The others are also within a short distance.

"What I'm really doing is coordinating," he said. Fourteen contractors work for him at different times, including a bulldozing firm, cement pourers, drain layers and others right up to the carpenters.

Mr. Bourne hires his own men to put up the frame, lay tile, do interior finishing and clean up.

He thinks that is the cheapest way to put up a house and that there was a better way "we'd find it."

He has to sell his homes quickly, and holding on to one can cost him up to $300 a month. Lots are becoming more expensive, so a builder can usually purchase only a few at a time.



To get around these problems, 20 builders in suburban Delta and Surrey have formed a corporation so they can pool money and develop lots.

"We've entered the developing business so we can stay in the contracting business," said Mr. Bourne, who heads the corporation.

Others have tried the mass-development approach, including one ill-fated group from Toronto, but have succumbed to a combination of bad weather, labor shortages, complaints of poor workmanship and lack of adequate land. Some have tried or suggested pre-fabricated housing, but consumers don't want too much similarity in their homes.

Mr. Bourne said he would like to be able to clear $1,000 a house, but leases can be just as common as profits.

ANAF Observed Decoration Day

Army, Navy and Air Force veterans and members of the Duke of Edinburgh Ladies' Auxiliary turned out for the annual decoration day services at the mausoleum in the Belleville Cemetery.

Colors of the Belleville Combined Veterans organizations made a brilliant splash as they billowed in the gentle breezes.

The parade was commanded by Cde. Howard Kokesh, while the colors were led by Cde. George Christopher.

The members marched along to the music of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit Pipe Band led by Pipe Major Don Deming. The parade was turned over to the unit padre, Stanley Gentle, minister of St. Columba Presbyterian Church and the service was opened with a prayer and scripture reading by Envoy Bram Humphries of the Salvation Army.

Music for the hymns was supplied by the Salvation Army band directed by bandmaster Robert Lessels. Bandsman Doug Mason played the Last Post and Revelle during the two minutes silence.

Pipe Major Deming played the Lament between the bugle calls. ANAF president Dick Burns and Branch 90, RCL, president Jack Rasbotte were escorted by RCAF veterans president Jim Lynch. Cde. Pauline Bowden and Col. Phay Wills, representative of the RCL ex-servicewomen's branch as they laid a wreath in memory of their comrades.

Padre Gentle recalled those who have gone before and declared that action that would in any way endanger the peace and freedom for which they had died.

The service closed with the singing of The Queen.

The ANAF Belleville darts league held a meeting last week and the following new executive was elected: president, Jim O'Bryan, first-vice-Russ Bland, second vice Tom Nicholson, secretary Dave Evans, treasurer Dave Feeney, auditors, Reg. Workman and Jim Lynch.

It was agreed that the season would open Monday, Oct. 6 and closing date for registering teams would be Sept. 29.

A meeting of team captains will be called to draw up a schedule and locations of competitions.

A real treat is in store for all members and their guests Sept. 29 when the Unit Ladies Auxiliary host a home-cooked pork loin supper and white elephant auction sale.

The Friday evening socials are still drawing a congenial crowd with plenty of entertainment and good dance music.

ANAF members in the Belleville General Hospital are B. Feather, E. Switzenberg, R. Mondeville, D. Rosette and J. O'Neill. All have been looked after.

Transfusion Sparks Religious Fervor

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Council of Churches, which began as an alliance chiefly of mainline Western Protestantism and grew to include the vast forces of Eastern Orthodoxy, today contains a robust, new infusion of evangelical fervor.

It came with the recent addition to the council's membership of two large and ardently gospel-preaching denominations that concentrate on winning believers, spiritual zeal and the joy of faith.

Their addition means "a blood transfusion" for the Christian co-operative body, says Pauline Webb, a British Methodist and vice-chairman of the council's policy-making Central Committee.

She added that it will counter-balance the council emphasis on social efforts to improve the lot of the poor, and will reinforce concern for evangelism among the uncommitted.

The two new denominations are the 1,100,000-member Brazil for Christ Church, the second largest Pentecostal body in South America, and the 3,000,000-member Church of Christ on Earth, an indigenous African revivalist body.

They were admitted into the 211-member world organization at its central committee meeting in England in August, bringing its membership to 242 denominations with a total of almost 400,000,000 members.

Eastern Orthodox representation now surpasses that of Protestantism.

The African Church, which stresses the gospel mysteries and the psychic phenomenon of healing, was started in 1921 by a powerful Congo preacher called the prophet Simon Kimbangu. He died in 1951 in a Belgian prison where he had been confined for 30 years, but his movement has swelled steadily.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN A. LANGE

Lange – Meades

Rev. S. Gentle officiated at the wedding ceremony in St. Columbas United Church, Belleville, on Friday, September 12, 1969 at 7 p.m. when Tawni Karen Meades, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meades, Belleville RR 5, was united in marriage to John Anders Lange, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vagn Lange, Trenton RR 4. Mrs. R. Batchford presided at the organ and accompanied the soloist Miss Sharyn Lange, sister of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of pure silk chiffon over taffeta with the bodice featuring an empire waistline, Elizabethan neckline and three-quarter length sleeves of re-embroidered ribbon lace. A long watteau chapel train extended from the back of the gown. Her headdress was re-embroidered Alencon lace with pearls and crystal stones caught in a pure silk illusion cathedral veil with embroidered lace edging. She carried a white glamelia encircled with roses.

Miss Donna Lazariuk as maid of honor wore a full-length deep purple crepe gown in empire style enhanced with cap sleeves and mauve satin ribbon sash. She carried a bouquet of mauve mums. The bridesmaids Miss Sharyn Lange, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Carol Harrison and Miss Sally Holton were dressed identically to the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Michael Maroney was groomsman and the ushers were Richard Lange, brother of the bridegroom, Charles Lisle and Gregory Scott.

A reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing an imported lilac brocade sheath dress and matching coat with wedding ring collar. Black accessories and a yellow orchid corsage completed her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing an American Beauty shantung dress with matching coat, black accessories and a yellow orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to points west, the bride chose an antique gold satin brocade dress with matching coat and hat, and brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Lange will live at 224 Glascow Street, Guelph.

Day Care Centres Boon To Mothers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Freedom for women will take a giant leap when day care centres for children become accepted, says a mother of a five-year-old child.

Melody Kilian, who organized a co-operative day care centre at Simon Fraser University in suburban Burnaby, says "Government and business corporations should subsidize day care centres in factories, office buildings and universities."

"It is an old-fashioned concept that women should stay at home while men work," she said in an interview.

"As well as those who prefer to work there are so many women who must work out of necessity."

Mrs. Kilian, a graduate student in sociology, organized a day care centre at SFU two years ago. The centre cares for about 30 children.

"Up until that time there was no place for our children and students were hiring individual baby-sitters. The amount I paid each month almost equalled my rent.

"We formed a group and planned to work through the university. But we realized it would be months if we waited for authorization of a building.

"We knew about an area in the cafeteria so we started there. We just brought our kids and our toys and delegated hours of duty to each mother."

The group has been told it can use the area indefinitely.

Mrs. Kilian hopes business will authorize day care centres in office buildings, and allow mothers time off to work with the children.

This would minimize transportation problems and allow the child to see the mother during the day.

"While I am at university I see my daughter at breaks, take her for walks and eat lunch with her."

She thinks such centres are good for children.

"I don't think the small family concept of our society has been successful. Children are brought up in tiny apartments, cooped up with their mothers who never see anyone either. Until they attend school children's lives are very limited, and I don't think it's healthy."

There's an immediate need for action by government, she says. For example, women should be permitted to deduct child care expenses from their taxable income.

"If a man employs a housekeeper he may apply that expense to his tax deduction."

Style of Cupboard Proclaims Its Origin

The cupboard illustrated was intended for a kitchen. It is approximately four feet high, three and one half feet wide and one and one half feet deep. It fulfilled the function of a counter combined with drawer and storage space.

This cupboard is basically pine with hardwood turnings (likely maple). It was probably finished in contrasting colors when it was new but is now varnished to a dark red-brown.

The style of this piece proclaims its age which must be about mid-19th-century. It has a number of cabinetmaking details but is in general a plain utilitarian piece available in some quantities in Canada.

If the back boards, which are rough in early pieces, are examined, saw marks will give some clue as to date of manufacture. Circular saw marks indicate a date after 1840. Straight up and down saw marks are possibly, but not necessarily earlier. If back boards are planed smooth by machine the piece is likely to be after 1850, probably 1860 or later. If they are planed by or later. If they are planed by hand the article is by an unusually conscientious maker probably in the period before 1840.

The style of the 1820's to 1840's is reflected in the triangular pediment-shaped back as well as the overhanging drawers supported by twin columns, all related, somewhat tenuously to Greek and Roman temples.

The hinges are cast iron, another indication of age. Earlier hinges are wrought iron or brass, later hinges are stamped sheet metal or ornamental cast iron.

The drawer bottoms are chamfered. This means that a fairly thick, usually half inch to inch thick board has been bevelled by hand plane to give a mitred edge to the drawer bottom that has been inserted in a slot in the drawer side. Chamfered drawer bottoms are easily detected by drawing the drawer out an inch or so and feeling the underneath surface with the fingers. The rough mitre is readily apparent. Later mass-produced drawer bottoms are flat. This is a quick way to check for construction in a crowded auction where the drawer cannot be removed.

The hand-work of chamfering was dropped as soon as possible in favor of mass-production, usually by 1900 at the latest. Dovetailing, another early hand operation is apparent in most drawer sides. A patent for mass - produced dovetails was issued in 1860's. Later patents are quite decorative, in some cases the dovetail is semi-circular but all mass-produced dovetails are regular, in contrast to the individual styles of early cabinet-makers.

The cabinet is mortised and held together by tenons, a cabinet-making detail noticeably lacking later in the century. The wood pulls are hardwood, matching the columns, and are wedged in place: a much more satisfactory and durable method of securing them that has withstood a hundred years of tugging. The keyholes once had small escutcheons, missing along with the keys, no longer necessary to lock up the family sugar, tea, tobacco and silver.

Cupboards such as this one are now used in dining rooms rather than kitchens and they cost about $40 or more. Examples in maple or hardwood are likely to cost much more.

Mr., Mrs. Berson Mitts Mark 50th Anniversary

An auspicious event took place recently at Foxboro Emmanuel Church hall, when Mr. and Mrs. Berson Mitts, Foxboro RR 1 marked the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple was married on Sept. 10, 1919 by Rev. G. C. R. McQuade at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Case and Moira. Mr. Mitts resided at Hallowray RR 3 and his parents were Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Mitts.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mitts have been active in all phases of church and community life. Mrs. Mitts was a member of the WMS now combined in the UCW, the Women's Institute, and fraternally of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, Stirling and Chapter 33 Order of the Eastern Star, Belleville.

Along with a lifetime career of farming, Mr. Mitts enjoyed an association of 17 years with the Sidney Township Council, of which he was assessor for three years and 14 years as tax collector. He also served as an elder of the church for many years and for 20 years was Sunday School superintendent of Marsh Hill Church. At present he is elder at Foxboro Emmanuel Church.

The couple's family also greeted the guests and these included daughters Mrs. Burton (Eleanor) Emsley, Tweed; Mrs. Thomas (Dorothy) Riley, Belleville; Mrs. Ray (Lois) Timmerman, Trenton and Mrs. Sonny (Evelyn) Ducette, Foxboro. Eight of their nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren were present.

The Foxboro United Church Women served tea during the afternoon and evening. They also served a tasty turkey dinner at the super hour to the immediate family and relatives a distance.

Of the original wedding party attending the celebrations were: the flower girl, the bride's sister, now Mrs. Norman Clarke of Mississauga, and the pianist, the bridegroom's sister Edna, now Mrs. Stanley Prest of Belleville. A number of other guests from a distance as well as a large number from the immediate area were also in attendance.

There was a profusion of floral arrangements and these were sent from the Emmanuel Church, Eastern Star Chapter, the Rebekah Lodge, Women's Institute and neighbors. Congratulator messages were received from parliamentary representatives, Sidney Township Council and the Mayor of Belleville, J. Russell Scott.

Hindu Paints Batiks

TORONTO (CP) — Bindoo Khanna came to Canada from her native India in April, 1968, hoping to continue as an interior decorator. She ended up painting batiks instead.

Now this attractive young woman is turning up to $350 for every batik she paints, and already her renditions of this ancient Indian art are earning her fame and popularity in the art circles of Toronto.

Mrs. Khanna is a graduate in fine arts and crafts from Santiniketan, a university in West Bengal.

"I chose to paint batiks because oils and water colors are so common in Canada," she said.

What is a batik? It's more commonly known as a wax painting, and has a history of development that dates back to seventh century China and India, where it was adopted, and 15th century Java, where art was perfected.

The painting is done on white cotton or silk treated with melted beeswax in the areas intended to remain white. Then bright colors are added, one at a time, until the pattern is completed. The finished product is boiled, starched, and stretched across a frame.

But since the batik is made out of cloth, it can just as easily be turned into a dress or a scarf. And when it becomes dirty, it can be washed.

Women's Institutes

Cannifton–Corbyville W. I.

The opening meeting of the Cannifton-Corbyville W. I. was held last Monday evening. Mrs. Ellsworth, president, conducted the opening exercises and welcomed the group back for another season.

Reports were given.

Since the convener was unable to be present the program consisted of a round table discussion of ways and means to increase the membership and build up more interest and enthusiasm in Women's Institute work.

The meeting was then closed.

Successful Living

Look Your Best--at Any Age: Advice Given

By DORIS CLARK

"What do you mean, glamorous at 40?" My friend was laughing at me. Saying how unreal the idea was. Yet there are movie actresses and other women — and men too — who retain youthful charm and glamour well into their 60's and 70's.

Here is one case in point: Elizabeth M. is crowding 60. She is the mother of a son and daughter, both married, and she has four grandchildren.

She lives alone and likes it. This way she can entertain her friends and go out whenever she has a mind to.

She didn't always do so well. She had to start in on a career after she was 40. Somehow she stumbled on the fact that people took her more seriously when she took care with her appearance.

This led to a real study of grooming. Now her hair, her trim figure, and her modish clothes, all proclaim her pride in herself and joy in living.

At 60 she has a promising future!

* * *

Dear Doris: My 15-year-old twin says I am stupid because I like a boy, and I sometimes like to talk to her about him. She is more interested in her career in ballet.

I have been lying awake nights trying to think of an excuse to phone this boy, but I have decided against it. I was considering going down to the store where he works. The only snag is, he's supposed to be working there, not having eaters with starry-eyed girls.

Doris, I want to see him very much. I am not ugly (variety is lilac!), although I am a square from some people's point of view. Could you please help me figure something out? Thank you — I feel better already. — Not a Swinger.

* * *

Dear Not A.: Neither are you abnormal or stupid for being interested in boys. One of these days your sister will see somebody she likes too, and then you'll probably have to stuff your ears to go to sleep at nights.

Don't haunt your present glamor boy. Don't phone him. But I can't see anything wrong with walking by and saying "Hi!"

Confidential to Nobody's Business: Only an ostrich puts its head in the sand and hopes the trouble will go away. Capable, thinking people determine to do something about it — whatever it is. In 1969 we benefit by what our researchers and professional people have learned, and get the help that is there for us.

Your husband would think anybody wacky who didn't get to the doctor about a case of measles; but when it's a case of psychological jaundice he thinks he must boil through on his own. Yet social workers have been sorting out and helping solve his kind of dilemma for a long time now.

To seek help is a sign of strength.

". . . WHERE THE HEART IS"

Geraniums were planted
Like Canadian police,
While dancers danced in ivory
Along the mantelpiece.

William Jay Smith in "Still Life".

Do you have a piece of furniture or ornament that holds memories and charm for you?

Such as the very old chest with its original brass handles still intact, once the property of the famed Dr. Cassidy, now the prize possession of his granddaughter, Mrs. A. L. Gaedigner, RR 1, Shannonville?

Or the graceful 18th century mahogany writing desk, "because it belonged to my dear aunt, and I use it constantly," which stands in the Pine Street livingroom of Mrs. J. H. Sloan?

Or the antique platter rimmed with blue which Mrs. Fred Beaby, 49 Ritchie Avenue displays on a wall. In days gone-by it graced the table of a great grandmother of the family.

If you have, you will know such items are as loyal, constant friends, always waiting with a welcome or farewell as one comes and goes.

They become part of one's life and are witness of all the joys, sorrows, fun and hopes of family — life itself. Especially small kinck-knacks, personal things scattered about lend an atmosphere of "remembrance that could easily die" haven.

It is best to keep happy associations, one discovers.

As the years go by and less space is needed, one retains for an apartment, familiar things, which the late Dorothy Thompson said "are happily the most beautiful things, just for everyday use."

It is best to keep things in the mind of the English writer, Ester Meynell, more fascinating than gathering in under one small roof, she said, the pieces of furniture, pictures and ornaments that pleased one's fancy, thus making one small corner of the world, a haven.

"My most treasured, sentimental possession," graciously replies Mrs. J. B. Reynolds, 75 Victoria Avenue, in answer to our query, "is a picture of a beautiful young Child which was a wedding gift from an aunt of the family who lived in Newfoundland.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Repeat of Recipe for Dill Pickles

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Would it be possible for you to send me recipe for Dill Pickles printed in your paper August 1964 as I have lost part of my recipe. Mary Meeks, Mrs. R.

ANSWER: The precise recipe to which you refer is reprinted below. It is gratifying to hear that you are following all of the steps in this Dill Pickle recipe to insure sterilization and thus no spoilage.

Layout like the pickle makers in this section to clip and use this recipe for dills.

DILL PICKLES

(Makes about 10 pints)

8¼ lbs. cucumbers 3¼" to 4" long (one 8-qt. basket), freshly picked
3 qts plus 1 cup water
¾ cup non-iodized salt
3¾ cups vinegar
6 tbsps. non-iodized salt (second amount)
2 tbsps. sugar
6¾ cups water (second amount)
1 tbsp. whole mixed pickling spices
Whole mustard seed (¼ tsp. per pint jar)
Garlic cloves (1 clove sliced per pint jar), optional
Dill blossoms (3 heads per pint jar)

Wash the cucumbers under running water with a scrubbing brush until thoroughly clean. (This take me 25 min.) Cover with a cold brine made of the first amount of water mixed with the first amount of salt. Be sure cucumbers are covered. (These should not stand in an aluminum container.) In morning drain. Combine vinegar, salt (second amount), sugar, water (second amount) and mixed pickling spices (tied in a thin cloth). Heat to boiling. Meanwhile pack cucumbers upright in clean hot pint or quart jars, adding mustard seed, dill blossoms and sliced garlic to each (See above). Cover with boiling vinegar-liquid to within ¼" of top. Seal. Process in boiling water bath, having water come to within 2" of top of jars, for 20 min., counting time as soon as jars are placed in the boiling water. Carefully remove jars. Tighten seals (lower loosen) and let cool in upright position.

WEDDING

BADAME — CASSIDY

TWEED — The wedding was solemnized recently in St. Osetbegh's Church, Tweed, when Mary Joanne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cassidy of Tweed was united in marriage to Vincent Joseph Badame of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Badame of Toronto. Very Rev. Dean C. F. Baker, assisted by Rev. Peter Tobin of Ottawa, officiated. Rev. Sister Wilhelmina was organist and James Marchen soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of French lagoda crepe. The Guipure lace trim with heart cabochons at the sunburst neckline and repeated itself at the hemline of the gown. A cardinal train fell gracefully from the shoulders. Her veil of tulle illusion cascaded from a matching headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses and ivy.

Miss Mary MacDonald, as maid of honor, and the Misses Elaine Boldon, Mary Dillon and Michelle Rashotte, as bridesmaids, were similarly dressed in floor-length gowns of silk organza in two shades of pink. They featured ruffles at the neckline and on the long tight sleeves. Each wore matching rosebud picture hats and carried baskets of white and mauve daisy mums. Little Miss Lisa Badame niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl and was similarly attired to the maid of honor.

George Elaine Cookaville was groomsman for his brother, and the guests were ushered by Michael Cassidy, brother of the bride, John Matlechone and Bruce Rosatier.

For the reception in Club Canara, the bride's mother chose an embroidered silk knit gown in shrimp shade, with beige knit brown accessories. Her corsage was talis mums roses and bronze 'mums. The bridegroom's mother was gowned in mauve silk organza with gold lace trim and matching accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

For travelling to Quebec City and points in New York State, the bride chose a two-piece knit ensemble with brown accessories. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

The couple will reside in Ottawa.

Teen-ager Has Lots Of Time to Mature

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 15-year-old girl who is sick and tired of being mistaken for a boy. The reason is I am flat-chested. Do the creams I see advertised in the magazine do any good? Please don't think this is a silly question not worth answering. I need your help just as much as does the mother or some kid with a bad case of acne. Rush your answer, I'm — MIZZERABLE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR MIZZ: The creams advertised as bosom-builders are a great help — to the manufacturer, so far as I know, no customer ever profited from them.

These days an awful lot of girls are mistaken for boys, not because they are flat-chested, but because they chop off their hair and wear shirts and jeans and pantsuits. Since you are only 15 you've got plenty of time to blossom and bloom. For now, I suggest that you forget about your dimensions, Doll. Besides, it's not what's up front that counts. It's the total picture plus what you've got in your noggin!

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: How come a hip lady like you is giving such old-fashioned advice? When you suggested that Miss Sleepyhead put the alarm clock on a pie tin in the bathtub I couldn't believe it.

Pie tin, indeed! Haven't you heard of the automatic vibrator which is placed under the pillow or mattress? It shakes you awake without disturbing the person beside you.

There are also buzzers for the hard of hearing. These are popular with college students who tell into the wee hours and have trouble getting up the next morning. The buzzer is plugged into a timer and goes off automatically. Please do your readers a favor and tell them about these nifty new devices — CIRCA 1969.

DEAR CIRCA: Thanks for waking me up. I've checked and discovered the devices you described are available, and at modest prices, too. So — all you Sleepyheads — run, don't walk to your nearest appliance store. That old excuse, "I overslept," is clearly out of date.

* *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was nine years of age my mother died. Dad married a nice woman the following year. I never knew the details but they were separated three years later. I am 19 now and have not seen my stepmother since the separation. (There was no divorce). We exchange letters at Christmas but nothing more. I always liked her and could never understand why she and Dad split up.

Last week I had a note from my stepmother saying she plans to be in town for a few days and would like to see me. I have invited her to lunch. The question is, should I kiss her when we meet, or should I offer her my hand? Also, would it be out of line to ask what happened between her and Dad? I'm grown up now and I think I have a right to know. Please advise. — DAHLIA.

DEAR DAHLIA: Don't plan in advance on how you will greet your stepmother. When the time comes, let your emotions guide you.

It would be inappropriate for you to question her about the breakup. If she wants to give you any information, she will do so voluntarily.

South Hastings Banquet Held

Interest is in the South Hastings Baseball League didn't wane with the season's end a week or so ago, if attendance at last night's annual league banquet is any indication.

Players and fans went to the Melrose United Church and the hall after dinner for the league's windup ceremonies.

Featured on the program was the presentation of the Lee Grills and Buck Pearson trophies to Read for their comeback championship win over Shannonville.

The Shannonville players didn't exactly go home empty-handed. They won the Harold Griffin Trophy for capturing their third straight league pennant; manager "Monk" Barberstock shared the Doug's Food trophy for manager-of-the-year honors with Laverne Maracle; catcher Bud Hill won the Gord Thompson MVP Trophy and shared the Wayside Inn Trophy for most home runs (6) with Ken Abrams; and the Hawks' Larry Lewis won Jack Stewart's Most Valuable Pitcher Award.

The Hugh Petrie Memorial Trophy was presented by donor and league president Art Buller to Larry Adams.

BCI Wins First Football Game

Good things come in small packages.

For Belleville Collegiate's senior football team, the small package that gave them their first Bay of Quinte District Secondary School conference win of the season was a short plunge into the line by Paul Hall.

Hall's touchdown and Dave Wright's convert gave the Collegians a 7-2 win over Madoc's Centre Hastings Secondary School.

Madoc's only points came on a safety by Francis.

BCI's junior had an easier time with their counterparts, using spirals by Keith Watson and Andy Ricketts and two singles by Ricketts to whitewash Madoc 15-0.

Yipes! Raimey Only Now In Top Shape

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts coach Leo Cahill gave Ottawa Rough Riders more to worry about Friday night when he announced halfback Dave Raimey will be in top condition for tonight's Eastern Football Conference clash at Toronto.

But wasn't Raimey in shape last Saturday when Argos bowed to the Riders 25-23?

"No," said Cahill in an interview. "If we'd been playing any other team but Ottawa I wouldn't have played him.

"I'd have given him the time off to let a leg injury heal. I wanted him to rest it so it would be in good shape for the rest of the season, but I just couldn't go against Ottawa without him.

"That may explain why Raimey scored three touchdowns two weeks ago against Saskatchewan Roughriders, but remained scoreless in last Saturday's contest while the Argos' other star halfback, Bill Symons, ran for two touchdowns.

The Argonauts need a victory tonight to tie Ottawa for second place in the EFC. The Riders have 12 points, one back of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who could increase their lead to three with a victory Sunday over Montreal Alouettes in Hamilton.

The Rough Riders Friday announced an added running threat of their own—coach Frank Clair rescinded an order that has kept quarterback Russ Jackson from running the ball.

"You're running an awful risk when your quarterback runs," said Clair, "but if that's what it takes to win, Russ will do it."

The Argo coach was pleased by the news from Ottawa.

'All I'd want for Christmas is that Jackson would run against us a lot," said Cahill.

"There are three things about Jackson running, and two of them are bad.

"One is that he could be hurt when tackled, and another is that when he's running, he's not passing."

The third thing, which is not bad for Ottawa, is that Jackson could run for long gains.

While Raimey may have been hiding his time until his injury healed, Argos also face the possibility that Ottawa's star halfback, Vic Washington, may also have been hiding his time.

Washington rushed for 367 yards in the Riders' first three games, but in the last four he has totalled only 69 yards.

"That Washington," Cahill said. "He's just waiting for this game. He'll probably run all over us, up and down both sides of the field, even on the parking lot."

Rookie quarterback John Eckman will start for the Ticats in Hamilton Sunday in place of veteran Joe Zuger who injured the little finger on his left hand in last Sunday's encounter with Saskatchewan.

Zuger will probably still be in the game for punting chores and could even be called on to take over the offence if the Ticats show signs of losing against the last-place Als.

Zuger's little finger and the one next to it are wrapped in a cast which must stay on for at least another two weeks, making it difficult for him to hand off to his running backs.

The Alouettes, already in the process of rebuilding for next season, will throw two new imports against the Ticats.

Dick Smith, 25, a late cut from Washington Redskins of the National Football League will dress for the Als along with Ed Rutkowski, a six-year veteran with Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

The CBC's eastern television network will carry the Toronto game from the 8 p.m. EDT kickoff and the Hamilton game will be televised by the CTV eastern network beginning at 2 p.m.

Pass Interceptions May Play Role

Interceptions may play a big role in weekend action in the Western Football Conference particularly in the game at Calgary where the red-hot Stampeders play Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Calgary, trying for its fourth straight win, will be aiming for a share of first place while Saskatchewan will be attempting to solidify their position atop the standings.

Saskatchewan has 12 points, two more than Calgary which has played one game less.

Not only do the Roughriders lead the league, they have intercepted more passes than any other WFC club—22. Calgary has had 20 passes land in the wrong hands. Only cellar-dwelling British Columbia Lions are worse, having given up 25.

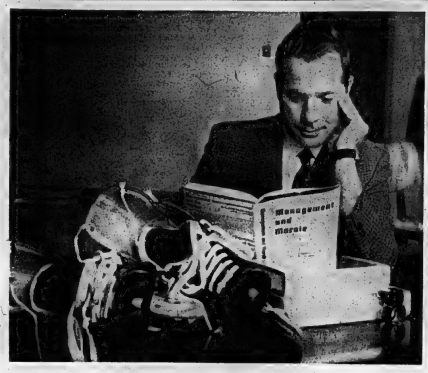
The Lions will travel to Winnipeg for a game Sunday in which the Blue Bombers need a win to regain third place from Edmonton Eskimos.

For B.C., who have only one win in nine games, a victory in the Manitoba city is vital.

Coach Jim Champion said his club still has a chance to make the playoffs, "but we've got to win one to get started."

Champion will attempt to strengthen his defence with addition of tackle Bob Duncum and halfback Jim Nicholson. So far this year Lions have scored only 121 points; they have had poor performances from quarterback Paul Brothers, their tackles and guards.

The Bombers may be without all-star flanker Ken Nielsen who has a sore shoulder. And all-star linebacker Phil Minnick is out with disc problems and will be replaced by newcomer Ed Breding from Washington Redskins of the National Football League.



The Calgary-Saskatchewan game already is sold out to 22,136 fans.

Besides interception problems, Calgary has an imposing injury list. Fullback-punter Dave Cranmer is in hospital while linebacker Don Luzzi and punter Jim Furlong are on the 30-day injured-reserve list.

This presents a punting problem and those duties will be handled by Bill Redell, Larry Robinson or Joe Forzani. However, Redell will fill in at Cranmer's fullback spot.

The Roughriders, who defeated Calgary in their earlier game in Regina, will be without flanker Lance Fletcher who fractured his elbow last week in a game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

His place will be taken by rookie Al Rankin, a graduate of the junior Saskatoon Hilltops.

Doing His Homework

Scotty Morrison, the NHL's referee-in-chief, has lots of time on his hands since the walkout Monday of 13 referees and seven linesmen at the training camp in Brantford, Ont. Morrison doesn't think that all 2 0 of the striking officials will remain out, but if they do he'll get along without them. (CP Wirephoto).

Playoff Game Starts With Colts-Rams Opener

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

All the ingredients will be there—Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Rams, Johnny Unitas and Deacon Jones—for one of those key, late-season National Football League games.

The only difference in Baltimore Sunday will be the game is a season opener as the NFL launches its 50th campaign.

The Colts-Rams game is the big one on a full schedule which also will have Chicago Bears at Green Bay Packers in the NFL's oldest and one of its most bitter rivalries: St. Louis Cardinals at Dallas Cowboys, and Washington Redskins at New Orleans Saints in Vince Lombardi's official debut as Redskins coach.

In other action, Cleveland Browns, visit Philadelphia Eagles, Minnesota Vikings are at New York Giants, Detroit Lions at Pittsburgh Steelers and San Francisco 49ers at Atlanta Falcons.

Miami Dolphins play at Oakland Raiders tonight in the American Football League, while Houston Oilers are in Buffalo against the Bills, Kansas City Chiefs at Boston Patriots, New York Jets at Denver Broncos and San Diego Chargers at Cincinnati Bengals Sunday.

The Sands of Climb

Tommy Aaron of the American team sends up a spray of sand as he hits out of a bunker onto the first green during his Ryder Cup match at Royal Birkdale course at Southport, England, Friday.

Ryder Cup

U.S. Favored in Singles Play

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Britain and the United States, deadlocked after two days of professional golf battling, squared off today in the final 16 singles matches of the 1969 Ryder Cup championship and all the money is riding on the Americans.

Bookies quoted the U.S. at 2 to 1 to retain the trophy it has held since 1927 and has won 14 times out of 17 tries since it was created in 1927.

Sam Snead, the American non-playing captain who at 57 with a fabulous record can claim to know something about this kind of competition, said simply:

"I'm very happy to be in this position."

Eric Brown, the Scottish captain of the British team, said he was equally pleased to go into the last round "at least even and not behind."

The British got off to a fast start in the Scotch foursomes Thursday, winning four matches, losing three and halving one. In Ryder Cup scoring that put Britain in front 4½ to 3½.

The top money winners of the American circuit came storming back Friday in the four-ball (better ball) type of competition.

Out of eight matches, they won three, lost two and halved three. Cup scoring thus put the totals, including the halved points, at eight all.

Snead wheeled out his big guns for the highly important morning round today. He put Jack Nicklaus squarely up against the great British hope—and current British Open champion—Tony Jacklin, so Trevino, the 1968 U.S. Open king who has played as well as anybody here this week, was pitted against Peter Allliss, the veteran Ryder Cupper.

Snead lobbed Brown: "Eric, I hope you come in second."

Belgian Sets Mosport Record

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Young Jackie Ickx had an advantage in the Grand Prix of Canada today after his blazing 114-mile-an-hour qualifying pace Friday in a Ford-powered Brabham.

The 24-year-old Belgian, third in the world driver's championship standings, won the pole position in today's 220-mile race after he was clocked at one minute, 17.4 seconds in his best qualifying lap on the 2.45-mile Mosport road track.

The record-breaking lap puts him in No. 1 spot on the starting grid in a field of 30 Formula 1 drivers, five of them world champions, seeking a piece of the $150,000 prize money.

Ickx's performance in the British car broke the mark of 1:19.5 set in June by New Zealander Bruce McLaren in a bigbore sports car.

McLaren, second in 1969 world standing, could do no better Friday than 1:18.5 in a car of his own design. McLaren has 24 points in the world contest compared with Ickx's 22.

Jackie Stewart of Scotland, who already has clinched the 1969 championship with a total of 60 points, was timed at 1:17.9 in a Ford-powered French Matra.

He takes second spot on the starting grid alongside French team-mate Jean-Pierre Beltoise and German Jochen Rindt of the British Lotus team, both of whom had the same time.

Veteran Jack Brabham of Australia, three times a world champion, was clocked at 1:18.0 in a car of his own design, as was New Zealander Denis Hulme, 1967 world champion, in a McLaren.

However, Stewart won the world title with his victory in the Italian Grand Prix at Monza early this month. Now no driver can catch him even if he wins today's race and the ensuing Grand Prix races in the United States and Mexico.

The race is the third Grand Prix for Canada. This country was given a spot in the world series of motorsport in 1967 in honor of its Centennial. Last year's race was at Le Circuit, Mont Tremblant, Que.

The race is 90 laps around the asphalt-paved Mosport layout, a hilly twisting track with 10 corners.

TORONTO (CP) — Sandford Hawley, 20, Friday rode four winners in an eight-race program at Woodbine race track.

The young apprentice jockey from Whitby, Ont. started his string of triumphs in the first race with Country Dude, who returned $11.10.

He later won the third, fourth and featured seventh races riding Prince Jo Lin, Tinderbox and Mustang, who paid $6.20, $11.20 and $4.60 respectively.

Hawley has recorded 98 wins since the season's opening last March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The international revenue service and Green Bay Packers are locked in a dispute over the government's claim that the National Football League team owes $270,317 in back taxes.

Papers filed in the U.S. tax court show the government lists deficiencies against the packers of $40,671 in 1963 and $229,846 in 1966.

Green Bay claimed the service allowed the Packers only $409 in investment credited during 1963 instead of the club's claim of $41,680. The Packers claimed the money was used for stadium improvements.

The bulk of the deficiency alleged by the government, however, arose from the Packers' returns in 1966 when the service said the club received $351,637 from the agreement under which an NFL franchise was assigned to the Atlanta Falcons.

Tennis Round Has Everything But Goodwill

CLEVELAND (AP) — An edgy air of bitterness and suspicion, instead of the international good will for which the event was created, prevailed here today as the United States went out after the clinching point in the Davis Cup tennis challenge round against Romania.

One of the Romanian players accused U.S. linesmen of making "strange calls." The Americans attacked the player for gamesmanship and rudeness. An imported French referee said a hometown umpire had lost control of the situation.

Leading 2-0 after singles victories by Arthur Ashe and Stan Smith, the Americans sought to sew up the best-of-five series in a 1 p.m., EDT, doubles match, sending Smith and Bobby Lutz against Romania's Ion Tiriac and Ilie Nastase.

Tiriac and Nastase were the victims in opening singles Friday marked by a demonstration and a fistfight at courtside, repeated reversals of line calls and complete confusion among tennis officials.

Ashe, America's No. 1 player, had to push himself to the fullest for a 6-2, 15-13, 7-5 victory over Nastase, a 23-year-old Army lieutenant from Bucharest, while Smith survived a controversial five-setter against the 30-year-old Tiriac, 8-6, 3-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

The latter match lasted two hours, 53 minutes and was interrupted repeatedly by Tiriac's appeals on line decisions.

"Some people called it gamesmanship, but I called it nothing but rudeness," said Smith, a normally mild 22-year-old from Pasadena, Calif.

Donald Dell, U.S. captain, called the Romanian's tactics terrible and said: "Tiriac is good at causing confusion. I thought he was trying to upset Stan. I knew he would try to get away with anything he could."

The referee, who does not call the match but is the final authority on any question, was Philippe Chatrier of Paris, vice-president of the French Tennis Federation.

"I think I made four reversals in this particular match," Chatrier said. "I do not like to do this but it is permissible under a new rule that has been in effect for two years. I have known Tiriac for 10 years. I know his tactics. He will try to cause as much confusion as he can in order to win."

During the Ashe-Nastase match, a demonstrator raced toward the centre court with a North Vietnamese flag. He was grabbed by police. Moments later, on the other side of the centre court, two photographers got into a fist fight and one wound up with a bloody nose.

INTENTIONAL HOOK DEMANDS KNOW-HOW

When your only chance to make a shot come off satisfactorily is to bend it from right to left around a tree or around a dogleg corner, it's time for the intention hook.

Don't change your grip too much, although, if you feel better, move your hands about a quarter-inch to the right so that the V's formed by the thumbs and forefingers point to your right shoulder. Assume a closed stance, with the right foot withdrawn farther than the left from the intended line. The clubface, however, should point at your eventual target.

Your swing should be flatter than usual. The closed stance helps this. Bring the club back well inside the intended line, swing down the same way. If you finish with your hands rather low, you'll have made the properly flat swing for this shot.

Canadiens Open Hockey Season Using Stanley Cup Lineup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The management of the Montreal hockey club will be giving away souvenirs tonight when the Canadiens play Boston Bruins in the Forum.

They will give crested pucks to all youngsters under 16 who attend the National Hockey League exhibition game. But Montreal coach Claude Ruel is hoping the give-away gimmick doesn't rub off on his Stanley Cup champions.

Although it will be the Canadiens' first exhibition game, Ruel is planning to use almost the same lineup as last spring when he won the Stanley Cup.

The only regular missing will be left winger Gilles Tremblay. And even Tremblay had been out of the lineup since last February when a respiratory ailment forced him out for the remainder of the season.

Tremblay is back scrimmaging with the team, but the club is being extra cautious. He will not play tonight, will miss a Sunday exhibition against Philadelphia Flyers in Quebec City and Monday and Tuesday engagements against Detroit Red Wings at Halifax.

In other games tonight, Oakland Seals play Los Angeles Kings at Barrie, Ont., Chicago Black Hawks meet Minnesota North Stars at Minnesota and Philadelphia plays Quebec Aces of the American League at Quebec City.

In exhibition action Friday night, Los Angeles edged Oakland 5-4, New York Rangers clipped St. Louis Blues 4-1, Boston opened their exhibition series with a 6-0 win over London Knights of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and Minnesota beat Chicago 3-1.

Skip Krake led Los Angeles with two goals and Butch Goring, Ross Lonsberry and Bill Flett got the others. Defenceman Dick Mattiuzi led Oakland with two goals while Earl Ingarfield and Bob Dillabough each scored once. It was the first pre-season game for both teams.

Bob Nevin and his linemates provided most of the excitement for the Rangers' first exhibition game. Nevin, Rod Thacuk and Bob Jones scored three of New York's goals against St. Louis. Nevin scored two and Thacuk one while Jones got three assists. Rod Gilbert got the other Ranger goal.

Gary Sabourin got the only goal for the Blues, who played their second exhibition game in two nights. They defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3 Thursday night in Ottawa.

In London, Ont., John Bucyk, Bobby Orr, Phil Esposito, Ed Westfall, Garnett Bailey and Don Marcotte each scored for the Bruins.

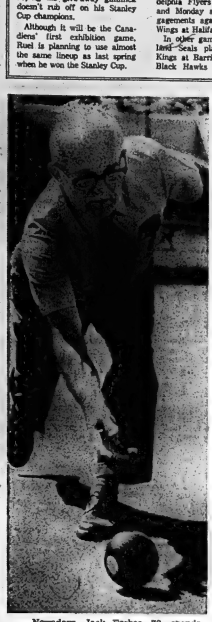
The North Stars scored on goals by Claude Larose, Danny O'Shea and 36-year-old rookie Bob Barlow while the lone Chicago goal was scored by Jim Pappin.

Meanwhile, Kenny Wharram of Chicago, taken to hospital Tuesday with pericarditis, an inflammation of a sac near the heart, was reported Friday resting easily in hospital.

Dr. Myron J. Tremaine, club physician, said in Chicago "it will be three or four weeks before we can even think whether Wharram can play this season."

Horton Stays Retired: Mara

TORONTO (CP) — George Mara, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, Ltd., said Friday defenceman Tim Horton wants $84,500 to come out of retirement and play for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.



Mara said in an interview Horton started out asking for $85,000 but now has come down to $84,500.

"We need him, but not that much," Mara said. "Our earnings are not sensational."

Mara said that Horton, 39, is on the end of a three-year contract which would pay him $42,000.

"We need Horton sure, but we need other people too—young people. I take the position that Tim has retired."

Giants Stave Off Dodgers 'Bid 5-1'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two of the oldest San Francisco Giants and one of the newest Houston Astros did their best to unravel the snarl in the National League West Division Friday night.

Mike McCormick and Willie Mays, two of the three players left who were around when the Giants moved to San Francisco in 1958, played key roles in a 5-1 victory over Los Angeles that dropped the third-place Dodgers 1½ games off the pace.

And Keith Lampard, a rookie outfielder, strode to the plate as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning and belted a two-run homer that lifted Houston over Cincinnati 3-2, sending the skidding Reds three games out and keeping the Astros six back.

In the other action, Atlanta Braves hammered five San Diego pitchers for 17 hits and a 12-3 rout of the Padres. The runner-up Braves trail San Francisco by one-half game.

In doubleheaders Pittsburgh Pirates cooled off New York Mets 8-2 and 4-0, Chicago Cubs nipped St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 in 10 innings, then lost 7-2, and Montreal Expos took two from Philadelphia Phillies 10-6 and 3-1.

That left the Mets four games in front of the Cubs in the east.

McCormick, 11-9, checked the Dodgers on two infield singles for seven innings and finished with a five-hitter. Mays, who singled in the first inning only to see Ron Hunt thrown out at the plate, singled again in the fourth after Hunt drew a leadoff walk.

Willie McCovey lofted an apparent home run into the swirling mist at Candlestick Park but the fly ball hit on top of the right field fence and bounced back onto the field for a 370-foot single, scoring Hunt. Bobby Bonds doubled Mays home and Hal Lanier's sacrifice fly gave the Giants a 3-0 lead.

The Dodgers scored in the eighth on two-out singles by Bill Russell, Maury Wills and Manny Mota, but Bonds hit a two-run homer in the last of the eighth, his 31st of the season.

The Reds were leading Houston 2-1 in the ninth with Wayne Granger working in relief of Jim Merritt. But Granger walked Jim Wynn with one out and Lampard, recently called up from the minors, followed with his first major league homer. Lee May homered for the Reds, his 27th.

Three Houston pitchers—Jim Ray, Jim Bouton and Fred Gladding—combined for 16 strikeouts, giving the Astros' staff a league record 1,124 for the season.

Atlanta kayoed San Diego rookie Mike Corkins in the first inning with a four-run burst and added three in the second and five in the sixth.

Matty Alou drove in three runs with two singles, a double and triple in the Pirates-Mets opener and Willie Stargell cracked two singles and his 28th homer in the nightcap as Luke Walker twirled a six-hitter.

Stargell's homer was the first off Mets' pitching in 24 games and 221 innings.

Jim Hickman's 10th-inning double gave the Cubs and Ken Holtzman their victory over the Cardinals and Bob Gibson. But Mike Torres scattered seven hits in the second game for his eighth straight win.

Home runs by Rusty Staub, Ron Fairly and Jim Fairey helped the Expos wipe out a 6-0 deficit in their opener and Steve Renko checked the Phillies on six hits in the nightcap.

Twins' Knockdown King KOs Opponents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Dave Boswell, who took a knock-down punch from Minnesota manager Billy Martin in a club player dispute six weeks ago, Friday night posted his sixth victory in eight American League decisions since the fight.

Boswell recorded a 2-1 victory over Seattle Pilots Friday to run his record to 18-11 and moved the Twins into a 10-game lead in the West Division pennant race.

Second place Oakland Athletics, playing under new manager John McNamara, co-operated by blowing a two-run lead in the ninth inning and losing to California Angels 7-6.

Elsewhere, Baltimore Orioles clipped New York Yankees 4-2, Chicago White Sox blanked Kansas City Royals 7-0 and Boston Red Sox downed Detroit Tigers 3-1.

Boswell struck out 14 Pilots to keep alive his chances of reaching the 20-victory plateau for the first time in his career. He should get three more starts and needs two victories.

Both Minnesota runs scored on infield outs. The first one came as George Mitterwald rammed into a second-inning double play and the second on Rod Carew's force play grounder in the fourth.

Oakland's managerial change was announced at a hastily-called news conference 50 minutes before the game with the Angels. It is the second time that manager Hank Bauer and owner Charles O. Finley have parted company. Bauer managed the Athletics in Kansas City until after the 1962 season, was rehired by Finley this season and then fired with less than two weeks ago.

The Athletics carried a 6-4 lead into the ninth against the Angels, but Bill Voss' bases-loaded single tied it for California.

Then, Rick Reichardt missed a bunt on a squeeze play and Sandy Alomar was trapped in a rundown, but scored the winning run when Sal Bando threw wild. Jay Johnstone had a three-run homer for the Angels.

Jim Palmer ran his record to 15-3 for the East Division champion Orioles, beating New York.

A bases-loaded walk to Dave Johnson and Andy Etchebarren's two-run single in the third inning gave Palmer all the offence he needed.

Walt Williams drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Ed Herrmann ripped a two-run homer, leading Chicago past Kansas City. Tommy John's shutout enabled the White Sox to tie the Royals for fourth place in the West Division.

Reggie Smith tagged a two-run homer and Carl Yastrzemski added a solo shot carrying Boston past Detroit and Denny McLain. The two homers gave the Red Sox a club record 187 for the season, one more than the mark set in 1964.

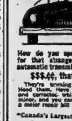
Referees Stand Gets Complicated

TORONTO (CP) — A dispute in which 20 officials are seeking recognition for their National Hockey League Referees' and Linesmen's Association might be resolved soon if some of those involved knew who to negotiate with.

Joe Kane, lawyer representing the 13 referees and seven linesmen, said Friday the NHL governors wanted the dispute settled and he had arranged "a satisfactory deal" with them.

He said the deal was stalled Friday when league president Clarence Campbell and referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison became angry because they were not included in the negotiations.

Kane said: "Last time I talked to Campbell, Aug. 27 I think, he said he had no right to deal with us, that he was just an employee of the NHL.



"He said it was up to the governors, that it was out of his hands.

"So, we phoned the governors and got a satisfactory deal. Now Campbell says he is in charge of negotiation."

Kane met Thursday night with Charles Mulcahy, vice-president of Boston Bruins, to talk over the referees' and linesmen's complaints.

"It's too bad Mr. Mulcahy's unofficial visit leaked out. This may have strengthened Campbell's hand. All the governors want this thing settled but he's holding back."

The walkout left only five of the 25 officials from last season's staff in the Brantford camp along with 14 newcomers.

TRADE SCHOOL

Not Getting Into College Isn't The End Of The World

In fact, it might be the beginning of your world. A bright new and very rewarding world. The world of computer programming.

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them and pay them well.

No, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school. A school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centres and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you during the day, evening — even Saturdays.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step to your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you — if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose? ECPI

For September 21

Your birthday today: Your prestige and social accomplishments rise in the coming year. Plan to pursue your career straightforward without major changes of course in technical or professional matters — merely some expansion and higher level of well-fulfilled social contacts. Today's activities are willing to search for knowledge far and wide, but left alone, they generally seek a discreet, well-protected private life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your Sunday has just enough novelty. A casual remark from a friend can set off a train of thought (and possible bonanzas). Seek impromptu meetings of diverse people.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Once you have joined in an expression of faith, go home and work at what interests you most. Work out details of new ideas for the coming months, look at your budget, review your health program.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make your contribution to the community's well being today. The humilities of colder people cause slight inconvenience. The day sets no particular precedent.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Expansive moods today are justified. Thinking and acting big will bring surprising results — imitatively organize a new enterprise. Leave details for later. You get basic agreements now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Seek interesting people, perhaps some group with a special interest in common. Without going out of their way, family and friends do nicely-for you today. Pleasant surprises are promised.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Reach for further responsibility today. Make your appearance gracefully in the community expression of faith. Continue your forte as a pattern of action to lead you to success.

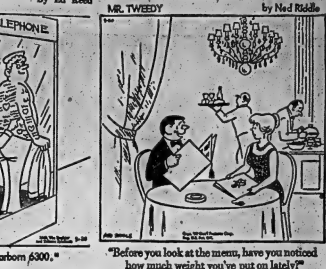
LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This Sunday is mainly devoted to home life and improvements of property. Make surveys to see what can be done with your surroundings. Avoid what you are encouraged by people admiring what you already have achieved.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Figure out something interesting to do today for those you care about. Work on your personal hobbies and other projects highly favored; a new idea is likely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): This quick paced Sunday do the things your habits and the expectations of others demand of you. Then spend your time doing what you enjoy in sports and recreation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your intuition is bright and clear to lead the way in this outwardly normal Sunday. Follow what your own welfare requires without particular regard for the opinions or advice of others. Be firm with young people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Outside interests run smoother than family and inlaw relations. Do as little as the situation permits; don't squabble. Older people pose the largest dilemma, but realize it may be somebody else's problem rather than you to solve.



PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Get out and go to strange and unaccustomed places. Meet new people, take along gregarious friends. Offer a feminine relative advice, if asked.

Meaningful NATO Role Still Open to Canada

Cadieux Explains Forces Cuts

Defence Minister Leo Cadieux tells Ottawa news conference Friday that Canada's land and air forces in Europe will be reduced to 5,000 from the present 9,800 by the fall of next year. (CP Wirephoto)

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said Friday Canada's decision to withdraw nearly half its armed forces in Western Europe will require remedial measures "to maintain the strength of NATO's defence posture in the central European region."

Canada will still be able to play a meaningful role, Brosio said in a prepared statement in Brussels after Canadian Defence Minister Cadieux told a news conference in Ottawa that Canada's land and air forces in West Germany will be reduced to 5,000 from their present strength of 9,800 by the fall of 1970.

The matter is expected to come up at a meeting of NATO's defence planning committee in the Belgian capital next Friday.

Brosio said final examination of the Canadian contribution and the remedial measures will take place in Brussels in December when cabinet ministers attend a high-level meeting of the defence planning committee.

In Bonn, the West German government expressed disappointment at Canada's decision but welcomed what it called Canada's willingness to contribute to Western defences in more than a symbolic way, even though on a reduced scale.

"It is well known that the (West German) federal government regrets every unilateral reduction of North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces which are not part of a well-considered reduction of forces in both East and West," the Bonn statement said.

The present government of Christian Democrats and Social Democrats faces an election Sept. 28 and it can be expected that West Germany's new defence minister, whoever he may be, will make further appeals against the reduction at the NATO meeting.

The West Germans are unhappy with any troop withdrawals from their country because they would start a chain reaction that could lead to a reduction of the 225,000 American forces in the country. Any such move might force West Germany to spend more on its defences.

The drastic reorganization of the Canadian forces also includes withdrawal from the nuclear role in Europe, the early retirement of Canada's only aircraft carrier—the Bonaventure, on which $13,000,000 was spent only two years ago for a refit—and deletion of three famous infantry regiments from the regular force.

They are the Canadian Guards, the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada.

Also envisaged is the formation of a task force headquarters, initially at Camp Gagetown, N.B., for subsequent location in the Far North.

Mr. Cadieux described the North as "an area where a Canadian presence asserts Canadian sovereignty."

In Ottawa, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield denounced the government program as "tokenism," and said it may be a step in the direction of a complete Canadian withdrawal from Europe.

It represented a weakening of Canada's defence efforts "on all fronts."

The NATO plan was a compromise between those who want a complete withdrawal from the alliance and those who believe Canada should make a real contribution to it.

Mr. Stanfield also called it "absurdity" to retire the Bonaventure two years after the expensive refit.

Andrew Brewin, the NDP's parliamentary defence critic, described the plan as a "typical Liberal compromise" that would satisfy no one.

He held that the air division is "useless now" in the nuclear role, and asked: "Why wait until 1972 to dismantle its provocative presence?"

The proposed light air-mobile force should be stationed in Canada, not Europe, the MP for Toronto Greenwood argued.

In Quebec City, Jean Allard, former chief of Canada's defence staff, said the cut over the next three years will not alter the role of French-Canadian members.

Mr. Allard said French-speaking members of the armed forces, who make up one of four brigades stationed in Canada, will officially continue their military role.

U.S. May Reduce European Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert C. Seamans Jr., secretary of the air force, said Friday that curbs on defence spending may eventually compel the United States to cut its five-division army force in Western Europe.

"The time may come when the United States cannot continue to keep large numbers of troops abroad," Seamans told an aviation-space writers luncheon.

"Considering the European example, budgetary restrictions may eventually require some reduction in the five divisions of U.S. troops that have successfully helped to deter aggressions."

Although Seamans used the term "eventually," his statement assayed significance because it comes against a background of U.S. defence department spending cutbacks totaling $4,100,000,000 this year.

The Pentagon's search for economies has led to plans for an over-all armed strength reduction of more than 150,000 men.

Cutback Causes Problems For Servicemen

LAHR, West Germany (AP) — Canada's long-awaited announcement of the scope of cuts in her NATO forces partly took her European servicemen off the hook Friday but set up many new problems.

Thousands of Canadian troops and their families are faced with the prospect of a speeded-up return to Canada, without knowing when.

West German officials in Westphalia glumly look to the loss of about $70,000,000 a year in Canadian spending as ground forces move out.

But around this Upper Rhine headquarters of the Canadian air division—where all remaining Canadian forces will be centred from next year—local officialdom welcomed the idea of more spending although wondering how to house another influx of Canadians.

Commanders of the land and air forces jumped into the problem head on Friday with a series of conferences—timed with Defence Minister Cadieux' Ottawa announcement—to spread the news and give assurance that the moves would be made with as little dislocation as possible.

A lady mayor of Wert in the centre of the brigade's operation—a town where Canadians have always enjoyed warm relations with the populace—grew emotional.

"Many of us will regret it more than you, not only for reasons of the economy but because of the bond that has developed between us," said Frau Dr. Richer. "Our reaction is one of genuine sadness."

Dr. Philip Bruecker, lord mayor of Lahr, diluted his welcome to the incoming Canadians with the practical thought that there may be difficulty in housing them.

The Canadians centred here and at nearby Baden-Soellingen already tax the facilities of these communities and overflow into a dozen other places in the area.

Our welcome is based on more than the economic point of view," Bruecker said. "But they will certainly present problems in accommodation and such other things as traffic control. However, we hope to resolve this by approaching the West German federal and provincial governments for money."

Maj. Gen. Donald G. Laubman of Edmonton, air division commander, told local burgomeisters that he hopes the Canadians—even though the number of servicemen in this area would increase from around 3,700 to 5,000—will not put more pressure on housing.

Laubman expected the land troops moving in would contain fewer family men than the airmen, whose numbers are to be about halved.

There now are about 12,000 Canadians in the Lahr and Baden-Soellingen areas of whom 3,700 are servicemen. The comparative figures for the brigade are 6,000 servicemen, and dependents bring the total to 15,700. There are no figures yet on how many of the over-all total will be moved home, as officers have not yet started making the selections.

The Canadian brigade worked closely and in effect formed part of the 3rd British Army of the Rhine. Removal of the Canadians from that area will leave the British group with a slightly smaller force and this may be why British officials earlier this year criticized the Canadian plan, arguing that this would throw a greater burden on other allies.

Regrets Rifles Deletion

TORONTO (CP) — Col. James Strathy, honorary colonel of the Queen's Own Rifles, said Friday he views the government's decision to delete the famous regiment from the regular forces with "extreme regret and disappointment."

"The Queen's Own is Canada's oldest regiment," Col. Strathy said in an interview. "Our motto is 'In Face Paratis' —In peace prepare—but as always happens in times of peace the country's defence budget assumes less weight."

The Queen's Own was formed in 1860 in Toronto and has since served in every major conflict with the exception of the Boer War.

Says Cuts May Harm Mobility

OTTAWA (CP) — The top officer of the Canadian Guards said Friday that Defence Minister Leo Cadieux's announcement of defence cuts may harm Canada's ability to mobilize for an emergency.

Maj.-Gen. Roger Rowley, who is on leave before his Oct. 25 retirement, said:

"This setback is tragic and not readily logical to me.

"With only three surviving regiments it leaves a narrow base upon which to build the infantry corps if we ever have to mobilize again. And it is the infantry which suffers most casualties in any conflict."

While the other two active infantry regiments scheduled for retirement, the Royal Highland Regiment (Black Watch) and the Queen's Own Rifles, will continue to exist through their militia units, the Guards will not.

The walkathon strung 1,132 hikers along the shores of the Bay of Quinte, and the long trail called for regular relaxation. Here, Lea Reid (rear) and Dennis Sharp take time out along the roadside.

Talks Tonight

U.S. Will Get Russian Reply

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Nixon administration looked to a meeting between State Secretary William Rogers and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko tonight for signs of whether the Russians intend to negotiate seriously on some outstanding East-West issues.

Items for the session included the long-awaited Kremlin answer to President Nixon's bid to begin missile curb talks, the Middle East crisis, European security and Berlin.

Moscow's responses to the U.S. leadership, in Washington's opinion, have added up to a mixture of pluses and minuses —and an unexpectedly long silence on the U.S. notice, given June 17, of American readiness to begin talks with the Russians on limitation of missiles and other strategic arms.

Finnish Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen said during the weekend that the two nuclear powers probably will start the disarmament talks in Helsinki in mid-October.

Some clues to the Kremlin's negotiating stance appeared in Gromyko's speech Friday to the UN General Assembly and in private contacts.

On Vietnam, Gromyko's strong public rebuff of Nixon's plea for help in persuading Hanoi dimmed U.S. hopes for a favorable reaction should Rogers broach the question with Gromyko.

On the Middle East, Rogers expects Gromyko in private may pursue a policy more reasonable from the U.S. standpoint than his public defence of the Arab cause. U.S. Assistant State Secretary Joseph Sisco and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin scheduled another meeting this morning to do some groundwork for tonight's talks. Saturday, the Russians agreed to further Big Four discussions.

A second meeting for Rogers and Gromyko is scheduled Friday, with the Russian as host.

Crackdown Ordered On Hockey Violence

TORONTO (CP) — Referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison of the National Hockey League today ordered an immediate crackdown by referees following weekend hockey violence that sent one player Ted Green of Boston to hospital with a skull fracture.

Defenceman Ted Green of the Boston Bruins was hit on the head during a fight with Wayne Makie of St. Louis Blues Sunday night. He suffered a skull fracture and was in satisfactory condition in hospital Monday after five hours of surgery.

In another exhibition game at Montreal Saturday, 22 penalties were called in a game between the Canadiens and Boston.

For details see first page second section.

Ottawa Backs Pollution Suit

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.* (CP) — Transport Minister Jamieson says the federal government will sponsor one or more Placentia Bay fishermen in a court test case against the Electric Reduction Co. of Canada.

Mr. Jamieson told a news conference here Saturday the decision was made in consultation with Justice Minister Turner and Fisheries Minister Davis.

He said it would set a precedent for future cases involving pollution.

Mr. Jamieson said Erco was "waffling in the maximum degree" by not admitting liability for the fish-kill in the bay early in the year.

Hong Kong Doubts Mao Seriously Ill

HONG KONG (AP) — China watchers in Hong Kong today generally discounted new rumors that Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tse-tung is seriously ill.

Although rumors of Mao's illness have been circulating in this British colony, for more than a month sources here with contacts in China say they have no confirmation of the rumors.

One source, noted, however, that some China specialists believe there may be a link between the rumors and reports that few posters of Mao are being put up in Hong Kong in preparation for the celebrations of China's National Day Oct. 1.

Forty Die at Mexico City

Airliner Crashes in Swamp

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Mexican airliner coming from Chicago with 118 persons aboard crashed in a swamp beside the Mexico City airport late Sunday afternoon. The plane broke apart and an official of the line said more than 40 persons were killed.

More than 60 persons were believed injured.

A spokesman for Mexicana Airlines said the Boeing 727 was carrying 111 passengers, many of them U.S. citizens bound for holidays in Mexico City and Acapulco, and a crew of seven.

A drizzle was falling as the plane made its approach over the dry bed of Lake Texcoco.

Stewardess Graciela Flores Alvarado, who was thrown clear, said the plane started to vibrate violently as it approached the runway. "Then it fell."

The plane crashed about 3,000 feet short of the runway and broke into three sections. The nose section embedded itself in the swamp, burying the cockpit crew with it.

Many of the passengers in the second section were thrown out by the impact, and rescuers said several were killed. Fifteen bodies were lined up in three rows on one rise of ground.

Other passengers were trapped in their seats, and rescuers had to use blowtorches to free them.

Arena Gets $37,000

By HARRY MULHALL

There was the 10-year-old who fell out of a tree rustling chestnuts en-route and broke his arm.

There was the determined type who, because of a leg injury, wheeled the circuit on a mini-bike — and got a flat tire.

There were two who did it without straining a leg, muscle — they came on horseback.

Then there were the 1,100 others — all pedestrians who revamped the image of the plodder.

Combined they've raised nearly $37,000 to offset the cost of a new Belleville recreation centre.

That's the total of all pledges carried to the finish line by Saturday's mass walkathon — a 30-mile stroll around the Bay of Quinte to financially launch the $190,000 Quinte Action Centre.

It may be days before the real financial results firm into a positive pattern. Pledges must now be collected from sponsors and turned over to project organizers.

But last night, John Kanetsky, assistant Belleville General Hospital administrator, and the volunteer who supervised registration of pledges, estimated the hike had gleaned $36,500.

Quinte Action Centre chairman Dick Hurst, delighted by the number of participants, claimed it was the biggest-ever walkathon to march out of Belleville.

Exactly 1,132 hikers raised gold dust as they tramped out various mileages in the walkathon.

Among statistical accomplishments, reported by chairman Hurst:

- Some 771 completed the 30-mile challenge — 70 per cent of the total walk force.
- There were 267 who walked at least half way.
- Record time was seven and one-half hours - - set by 15-year-old Kevin Joudrey.
- First to complete the circuit however, was quartet of high school cross-country runners. The team jogged into Memorial Arena shortly after 1 p.m. — five hours, 17 minutes after crossing the starting line.

They were Bellevillians Pete Green, 17, Dave Grant 18 and Craig Parry 17 and David Robins, 18, of Campbellford.

- Youngest walker to finish was Lori Graham of Deer Street who marked her seventh birthday last week. Along with brother Ronald 12, and sister Linda, 11, she helped raise $170. for the centre.
- Oldest participant to finish was Alex Mountney, 66, with $96. pledged on his feet.

Arabs Enter Debate in UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Arabs enter the UN General Assembly debate today as peace efforts to settle their conflict with Israel are pushed on three parallel tracks.

Jordan's Foreign Minister Abdul Moneim Rifa'i, who speaks in the morning session, is the first Arab who will reply to Israeli ovrign Minister Abba Eban's speech Friday.

Eban proposed that Israel, Jordan, Egypt and Syria renew their acceptance of the resolution that the UN Security Council adopted to end the six-day Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

He also proposed that the four countries declare their readiness to negotiate peace agreements and recognized boundaries.

Misguided Compassion Denies Juveniles Justice -- Sociologist

HAMILTON (CP) — Misguided compassion in Canadian juvenile courts results in child offenders getting less justice than adults, says a brunette sociologist at McMaster University.

"I don't think there should be a law to allow officials to put a child away indefinitely for stealing bubble gum," Lynn McDonald, an assistant professor of sociology, said in an interview.

"But that's what the law does allow. Judges can send a child to a training school for what would be considered a minor offence in adult courts, or even for non-criminal acts like running away from home.

"You have juveniles being sent to what amounts to a children's prison for such offences as truancy. They're better looking than adult prisons, but they're still institutions at which a juvenile loses his freedom."

Miss McDonald said juvenile court judges are guided by "well-intentioned but pre-social-science notions" that child offenders should be given treatments.

But the treatment approach doesn't work, she said. "Where it has been studied it has been found to be ineffective."

Canadian authorities seem "afraid to do the research," but studies have been done in countries similar to Canada.

"The' treatment approach is objectionable also in that it is incompatible with elementary justice and is capable of much abuse. Judges are given far too much leeway in sentencing juveniles. "Treatment" is used as a cover-up for what really are long sentences."

The present system "purports to treat children in their best interests and not to punish them, but in fact it is highly punitive in practice."

Miss McDonald proposes a double solution. First, the treatment approach must be replaced by a "punitive" approach as in adult courts, with judges made aware of their true role and given strict sentencing guidelines.

The second step in the solution, more long-range, involves changing the whole attitude to juvenile misbehavior, laying fewer charges so that fewer children come before the courts.

"I would like to see an unofficial approach taken to juveniles much more often than the official one," she said, suggesting warnings from police and home counselling as alternatives to formal charges.

Miss McDonald said juvenile delinquency is not overly expensive, and the actual rate of juvenile crime is not rising. The "official" delinquency rate is rising only because police forces, larger and more efficient, are laying more charges.

First Aid for the First

First to complete Saturday's Bay of Quinte Walkathon was this quartet of runners — here receiving relief for aching feet from St. Johns' Ambulance women at Memorial Centre. Clocking in from 30-mile trot at five hours, 17 minutes are (from left) Pete Green, 17, Dave Grant, 18, Craig Parry, 17 — all Bellevillians— and Dave Robins, 18, Campbellford.

Church Bells Herald United Appeal Kickoff

The party's over and it's time to get to work — for the 1969 United Appeal!

End of a week-long series of special events heralding the annual community fund drive came Saturday night as the campaign was declared officially open.

Pealing church bells signalled the opening for Belleville at large, taking the cue from Mayor Russell Scott's formal public declaration on Market Square.

The mayor's announcement also signalled the final event in the re-campaign program designed to boost public attention and involvement for the Appeal.

Square dancers swirled across the square, the last event in a week that included a fiddlers' contest, jamboree, teenage hop, an aircraft flypast and beauty contest.

Today, campaign workers roll up their sleeves and get down to the real chores — collecting pledges and contributions to underwrite community service agencies for the next year.

They will seek funds in what Mayor Scott called a community "growing by leaps and bounds" — where industry is earning more than ever.

"We can all knuckle in and make this a better place in which to live," declared the mayor.

Government, he indicated, is no substitute for such community organizations as the United Appeal.

City councils "can do a lot of things," he said. "But we can't legislate and get down to the little things that mean so much to the heart of our community."

Posterity won't judge any community on its public service installations but if it cared for its less fortunate citizens, he said.

Also participating in the official opening was the Appeal's beauty queen, Peggy Knight and the band of the Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

BOWERS — In loving memory of our dear sister, Peggy Ann, who passed away September 22nd, 1967.

Dear sister, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
And in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered — Barbara, Ted and sisters Helen and Margaret.

BOWERS — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Peggy Ann, who passed away September 22nd, 1967.

A wonderful mother, I boast you were,
A friend to all who knew you best alone.
When the time came I suffered too,
For you never deserved what you got.
Sadly missed by mother.

Cherish her with an ever ground love,
Cherish her with memories,
Let sorrow blow in the heartache,
Till you see the sweet child,
Who left us all so lonely and empty.

MILLIGAN — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Kay Milligan, who passed away September 22nd, 1966.

While she has no more life heart,
Her memory we shall always keep.
Inserted by husband Roy and Barry.

RICHARDS — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Frances Ann, who passed away September 22nd, 1967.

He then was on her little heart,
And not entered there,
Her memory remains sweetly on,
That only wishes never on her.
She was with us for a while,
Then left us,
To beautify in skies,
And God's holy angel here.
Our darling one away.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by son-in-law, Ken and sister Tracy.

KELDEN — In loving memory of our dear beloved mother and grandmother, Mabel Ray, who died Sept. 22, 1966 and a daughter and loving Darling Kelden who died sept 23rd, 1946.

Two hearts that beat as one,
In our memory are locked forever,
Tell her how much we miss her,
Only God knows why we miss her,
We often think of happy days,
When we were together,
That family chain is broken now,
But memory still is unbroken,
God has His own home sorrow,
Nor has she travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,
And left the pain alone,
We miss her voice, her smile,
Her dear sweet face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That meant so much to me,
We miss her more than words can tell,
That loved you most almost,
God took you in His tender will,
He loved you best.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by husband Ken, daughter Ethel, Mabel and grandchildren Ken and Barbara.

City Father of Four Third Weekend Fatality

A Belleville man became the Quinte area's third traffic victim in 24 hours when his car collided with a tractor-trailer transport on Highway 37 near Roslin.

Harold Crossen, 42, of 36 Valleyview Crescent, a father of four, was instantly killed when his 1961 automobile was wrecked by the impact.

The crash ruptured fuel lines on the transport and Thurlow township firemen were called to wash down gasoline spewing on the highway.

Truck driver Alex Brown, Ottawa, was shaken up by the mishap.

Provincial police say Mr. Crossen was driving home from Tweed and the crash occurred.

Other victims of traffic mishaps Friday were Ralph Carlisle Mark, 20, RR 4, Belleville, struck by a car while herding cattle on the Redneyville Road, and Brian Smith, 20, of Deseronto, thrown from a car as it rolled on Highway 133, southeast of Napanee.

Mr. Crossen, a machinist at Deloro Stellite, had lived 20 years in Belleville.

He had lived previously at Marmora.

He was born in Niagara Falls, son of Mrs. Myra Crossen, and the late Archibald Crossen. He was a member of Calvin Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Crossen is immediately survived by his wife, the former Ethel Mabel Ray, three sons, Blaire, Paul and Lyle, and a daughter, Jane, all at home.

Besides his mother he also leaves a sister, Jean, of Sudbury.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. The funeral service Wednesday with interment in West Huntingdon cemetery.

Wound Fatal To Area Man

PICTON — Francis William (Butch) Stacey, 62, injured in a shooting accident at his Bloomfield home, on Labor Day, died in Kingston General Hospital Friday night.

Mr. Stacey suffered a chest wound when a rifle he was removing from his truck discharged. He had undergone applications resulting from the wound.

He is survived by his wife, the former Loretta McColl; daughters (Margarette), Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Madoc (Doris), Mrs. Ross Armstrong, Wallace and sons, Keith, Bloomfield; Marvin, Napanee, and Carl, Picton.

Funeral service was held from the Whattam Funeral Home, Picton, Sunday, with Rev. N. Bowering and Rev. A. A. Rigby officiating. Interment was in McPhail Cemetery, Wooler.

Guns Stolen In Break-in At Bancroft

BANCROFT — Thieves looted a sporting goods store here Saturday night of rifles and shotguns valued at about $600.

The theft was discovered Sunday by store operator George Whitfield when he found a door at the rear of the premises had been forced.

The exact number of weapons stolen was not immediately known.

Supply Delays Stall Arena Revamp

Planned renovations at the Belleville arena, consisting of the installation of new folding seats and electric heating units will not be in place until near the end of October.

This was learned Friday from city purchasing agent Gerald Hyde, who admitted that problems had arisen with respect to both installations ordered last spring.

One of the contracts is for the supply of more than 900 folding wooden seats to be installed in the first three rows of the arena.

The other is for the installation of radiant electric heaters to be suspended from overhead to heat the arena seating area.

"The best delivery date now for the seats is toward the last of September," stated Mr. Hyde. "It will take two to three weeks for the arena works crew to install them."

The Canadian Seating Company Ltd. of Toronto is supplying the seats which have to be specially made for the local arena.

The contract for the installation of the heating units was awarded to Hibbard Electric of Belleville, a firm which has since gone out of business.

The contract has now been awarded to Andreynold Co. Ltd. of Belleville, but a whole month or more was lost.

"It's really no one's fault," stated Mr. Hyde, referring to the later than expected date for completion of the two installation. "It just happened that way."

Mr. Hyde said there was just no way that either of the two installation could be completed in time for the Tulsa Oilers game, scheduled as one of the Belleville Week celebration.

The Canadian Seating Company is the only company making the type of folding seats required for the local installation. As it happens, they have other contracts for schools which come before the Belleville contract.

When Hibbard Electric went out of business the company forfeited its $500 deposit.

Andreynold's, a local tender was the second lowest, was $350 higher than the Hibbard bid so the city is actually saving money on the installation.

But, as Mr. Hyde noted, a whole month was lost in commencement of the installation.

Arena

The last walker made it to the arena shortly after 8 p.m.

Sore feet and tired muscles were the immediate results of the walkathon and treatment kept St. John Ambulance units busy through the day, at the arena and along the route.

The only serious mishap, said Mr. Hurst, occurred about the nine-mile mark when a 16-year-old Belleville man momentarily distracted by a treefull of birds.

Hoping to dislodge a handful he took aim with his running shoes. The shoes struck in the tree. Clambering aloft to free them, the youngster fell, breaking an arm.

Will Heighten Building, Eliminating Rock Work

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Builders of the new Bay of Quinte Towers 22-unit apartment building near the top of West Bridge street hill have come up with a compromise to rid themselves of a problem which had stalled construction for close to two weeks.

To get rid of the rock dust problem which had resulted in loud complaints from adjacent property owners, developers have decided to build their seven-storey apartment structure a few feet higher, eliminating a major portion of the originally planned rock excavation.

"We are going to build about three feet higher," stated the construction superintendent "There have been no recent complaints and we are happy."

We want no trouble with the neighbors," he said.

Original plans called for the excavation of close to seven feet of rock in some areas to provide for underground parking.

The changed plans will result in the removal of only a comparatively small amount of rock all of which is hoped can be done with the jack hammer without resorting to blasting.

The revised plans will provide for the same amount of parking — 76 spaces underground and 19 surface — but the basement garage will be about three feet higher.

The revised plan is not expected to greatly affect the cost structure.

In any event, much of the costly rock excavation will be eliminated.

Earlier soil excavation had been completed down to the rock and this week construction crews have been busy erecting forms and pouring concrete for the apartment building footings.

The apartment structure will cover only about one-third of the building site area.

Underground parking will be around the perimeter of the building with the garage covered over and landscaped.

An open air swimming pool will be provided in the northwest corner of the apartment site.

Santa Parade Needs Helpers

Organizers for Belleville's 1969 Santa Claus parade will hold their first meeting tomorrow night.

Former fire chief, Ted Posie, parade committee chairman, has issued a call for community volunteers to man the organization and attend tomorrow night's opening session.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization Dundas Street East.

Ouch! It's A Hot Foot!

Biggest problem for hikers in Saturday's walkathon was fiery feet. Many a hot-foot developed enroute on the 30-mile trip. St. Johns' Ambulance manned roadside units to cool the situation. But removing the sting wrought by the mileage was often another experience — as this young walker found.

Blast Injures Youth

PICTON (Staff) — An RR 8 Picton youth, William Burrows, 18, was injured when a Trans Northern Gas line exploded Sunday morning, three miles north of Prescott.

Also injured was Panko Grandchev of Kingston. Both men suffered cuts.

Mr. Grandchev sustained facial injuries and a fractured nose. Mr. Burrows injuries included a lacerated leg. He was treated and released at hospital in Prescott.

Mr. Burrows is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burrows of RR 8 Picton. He is an employee of the Lakeland Gas Company.

The Winner

A two-hour battle on Moira Lake Sunday ended with Peter Murray, Foxboro fisherman, the winner over this mighty muskellunge. The four-foot muskie tipped the scales at 33 pounds.

Civic Improvement

Belleville Week gets under way September 26 and the formal program covers a wide range of activities, from a masquerade ball and judo demonstration on opening day to the Young Belleville "Happening" at Bleecker Hall October 3 and Industrial Commission night October 4.

But apart from these, the week should — and is — generating some additional civic pride on the part of Bellevillians. At least one business establishment on Pinnacle Street is painting its front (shades of the Norwich Plan in England which we have often advocated for Belleville).

Moreover, we could all make some extra effort toward ending the litter problem, by means of parental guidance to the children and instruction in the schools.

Then there is that other matter mentioned here recently. It concerns unsightly areas of grass and weeds, an example is the area around the disused dwelling damaged some time ago by fire at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets. The ground in the immediate area is unkempt and milk shake cartons and other litter abound. The building itself contributes nothing to that area of the city.

A similar situation once existed at the corner of Moira and North Front streets. The empty house that stood there was demolished and now a city park has transformed this spot at the upper bridge.

With the Dundas Street bridge half completed the question of the disposal of this property is of some urgency — for both aesthetic and commercial reasons. The corner should be serving some positive use, either as a park along the lines of the one at the upper bridge, or for a commercial establishment.

These are some of the matters that should be considered in conjunction with Belleville Week, for they have to do with the betterment of this community.

Arctic Defence

There is something rather comical about Defence Minister Leo Cadieux's solemn pronouncement on the defence of our Arctic sovereignty.

Against whom will this defence be directed? The Russians — are will be about to storm across the polar wastes? Or is it those awful Americans with their big oil tankers?

And what about the area to be covered? There will not be enough men to cover the entire region, let alone keep it under surveillance.

Radar? Certainly extensive electronic listening devices will be required.

Naval patrols? Yes indeed. This would have been the very time and place to get some use out of the aircraft carrier Bonaventure. Its aircraft would be invaluable in patrolling the Arctic; but now, following a costly refit it is to be sold.

It is all rather like closing the barn door after the horse has fled.

And Europe? Well, the Trudeau government may be right in concluding the threat there has receded. At the same time we had better be ready with that home-based mobile reserve for any emergency. Otherwise the Americans, or even, will be left carrying the main burden of Western security.

Meanwhile, it looks as if the Transport Command aircraft at CFB Trenton will be heading north more often, as well as east across the Atlantic.

Who knows, maybe John Diefenbaker's "Northern Vision" will become a reality, with our defence forces spearheading the long-awaited move to open up the far north.

A Lesson

Canada's more uncivil youth, the ones whose tongues are as revolting as their appearance, may take a lesson from the fellow who is spending time in the jug out there in Vancouver. He is cooling his heels for shouting obscenities at Prime Minister Trudeau during his recent visit to the coast. They might also learn something from Mr. Trudeau's own qualities of courtesy and gallantry. He displayed them again right outside his East Block office in Ottawa the other day, shining the shoes of 18-year-old Monique Arsenault who had just done the same for him in aid of the University of Ottawa's cystic fibrosis fundraisers at the weekend. Small courtesies like this go a long way, and it is in the Trudeau style to perform them.

Communist War Effort Declines... While

Nixon Purses De-Escalation Policies in Vietnam

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's announcement to withdraw 35,000 more United States troops from Vietnam is seen here as a clear invitation to Hanoi to de-escalate the conflict at a time that promises the best chance of success at the Paris peace talks since the negotiations began.

Both sides have shown indications of a more conciliatory mood in recent weeks—in Hanoi mainly because of President Ho Chi Minh's death and in the United States because of public opinion which has Nixon walking a tightrope between unilateral withdrawal and negotiated settlement.

While there has been no clear statement from Hanoi's new leaders on war policy, the death of Ho marks one thing clear—the fighting between the Soviet Union and China has had an effect on the North Vietnamese war effort.

Ho's last will and testament called for a get-together between the Communist giants, who have been battling along their borders for months. It resulted in Soviet Premier Kosygin's surprise visit to Peking last week.

Relations between the two countries seem no closer since the Kosygin's visit, with both sides renewing their attacks on each other through the press. In addition, there were public statements out of Hanoi that the quarrel has hurt the Vietnam war effort.

This situation, coupled with a decrease in Vietnam battlefield activity in late August and September, lead determined here to an optimistic view for some action from the Paris peace talks.

President Nixon, possibly with an eye to students returning to classes this week and a proposed march of 30,000 war protesters on Washington, has made what sources here say are at least two determined efforts to demonstrate American desire to de-escalate the war.

One was the just-announced troop withdrawal and the other was the curious cessation of U.S. B-52 bombing raids for 36 hours last week.

The raid cessation, the sources said, was a military basis as well as a more fundamental political intention.

They said the U.S. president saw the faint possibility that Hanoi had determined, even before Ho's death, to use their leader's demise as a pretext for a real de-escalation of the war. To show American willingness to reciprocate, the president ordered the brief cessation of bombing raids in South Vietnam.

What further leads American specialists to believe a change in Hanoi policy is likely is the fact the North Vietnamese have let the size of their troops run down to what appears to be a too precarious position to pursue a long struggle effectively.

In Paris, the Viet Cong guerrilla delegation described the troop-withdrawal plan as "more or less dribbles," but there was more of the sarcasm that characterized their comment when Nixon pulled out 25,000 men earlier this summer.

Perhaps Hanoi's leaders after five years of war are realizing, for whatever reasons, that, as Nixon said in announcing the new troop withdrawal, "... the time has come to end this war."

MPs: Not The Time For a Raise

Montreal Gazette

Prime Minister Trudeau says that he is "very sympathetic" to demands from all members of all parties for higher pay. "If there is a disposition in all parties to examine the subject seriously," he says, "I certainly will be enthusiastic about it."

Such sympathy, and such enthusiasm, might well be in order on one condition — if nothing is done to raise the salaries of Members of Parliament at the present time.

The Prime Minister himself, only a few weeks ago, announced the serious, determined effort by the Government to resist inflation. He spoke of the orders that had gone out to hold the line in expenditures, to the reduce number of civil servants to postpone heavy new commitments.

What making these announcements of policy, he stressed that the Government was determined not only to talk about inflation, and the need to fight it; it was giving a fighting example.

It is not only for the Government, but for Parliament as a whole to give this example. If Members of Parliament, encouraged by a very sympathetic attitude on the part of the Prime Minister, were to increase their pay, nothing could be expected in the country but a wry cynicism. The cynicism would, unfortunately, be justified.

Sound Barrier Problem

Jumbo Jets in Service Soon

Montreal Star

Pan — American Airways' announcement that it will introduce 360-passenger jets to regular service in December comes at a time when airport authorities are scrambling to provide better handling facilities, and while people living near airports or under flight paths are making new protests over fear-ed additional discomfort.

But the headaches provided by the latest breed of jets are primarily in the area of passenger servicing. Longer runways are not required at major airports, and the power plants of the jumbos are no nolsier than the ones with which we are familiar. Moreover, the still-to-come air buses designed for short and medium hauls will be even quieter.

For those concerned with noise factors and possible property damage, the objective should not be the jumbos but the supersonics, even though they are years away commercially. Right now, for instance, the United States treasury faces payments of $180,000 to each of two eight-block area of Kelowna, B. C., for windows shattered when an American fighter plane broke the sound barrier over the town. Had the aircraft been the size of the Anglo - French Concorde, the magnitude of damage probably would have been much greater.

There will be, almost inevitably supersonic transportation within our lifespan, if only to prove technical skill. Unfortunately as John Diefenbaker said, it is a factor which should not concern airport districts since the SST's are supposed to be able to rise miles from take-off before passing the speed of sound. But statements that the supersonics will never fly over inhabited areas are unrealistic. The time for public insistance that human comfort and property rights must take second place to engineering achievement is now, before the new invest era is upon us.

At Last—Disability Pensions For

Canadians Who Survived Jap Attack on Hong Kong

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

Some of the rules limiting pensions to survivors of the Hong Kong battle have for years ago are to be relaxed, according to Veterans Affairs Minister J. E. Dube. They are not to be relaxed too much or too soon.

It was Dec. 7, 1941, that the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and Hong Kong. Perhaps because of the flood of American television that keeps washing across our border, young Canadians probably know more about the attack on the American naval base in Hawaii than they do about the fight put up by two Canadian battalions when Hong Kong was overwhelmed.

Pearl Harbor has become a phrase in the language for a treacherous surprise attack. On the same day the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Canada began their longer and deadlier battle against greater odds.

The two Canadian units were sent to Hong Kong hastily and ill-prepared. They were warned Oct. 8 for duty overseas and sailed from Vancouver Oct. 27.

In the interval they were brought up to strength with 648 reinforcements. Their Bren gun carriers arrived at the dock in Vancouver after their ship had sailed, and never did catch up to them.

The Canadian force consisted of 1,973 soldiers, all ranks. They had been in Hong Kong for three weeks when the Japanese assault came. Those men were not killed in two weeks of fighting spent nearly four years as prisoners.

One hint of the nature of the fighting is the fate of Brig. J. K. Lawson. The last wireless message from him was that the Japanese had his headquarters surrounded and were using artillery at point-blank range. "I am going outside to fight it out," he said.

Nobody knows what happened after that because no eyewitnesses survived.

One hint of what happened during four years captivity is in the fact that of 555 Canadians who did not come home, more than 100 died in the prison-of-war camps and more than 100 died while doing forced labor in mines in Japan.

The survivors of the Hong Kong expedition make a special case. No one came back without having lived through the horrors that were more than many of them could endure. There were no soft spots and no cushy jobs in that particular hell.

It is obvious that every Hong Kong survivor has had his health affected for life. At this late date Mr. Dube is recommending that Hong Kong veterans who apply for a pension and have some degree of disability will automatically receive a basic minimum pension of 50 per cent."

Some niggling limitations are still there, but Mr. Dube comes a little closer to doing, in the name of all Canadians, what is right.

Ontario Action Possible

Ottawa Charged with Failure to Aid Northern Industries

TIMMINS (CP) — Ontario may have to broaden its own industrial incentives program because of the "shocking" failure by the federal government to extend financial assistance to primary industries in the north, Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said Saturday.

Reconsideration of the provincial program, operated by the department of trade and development, will be included in a current government study of new policies for Northern Ontario, Mr. Lawrence said.

These will be influenced by recommendations from three northern development conferences, he said.

Mr. Lawrence was interviewed at the close of the first conference, attended by 400 delegates from northeastern Ontario. Others will be held at Sudbury and Thunder Bay.

Donald MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, asked what new policies the government has in mind Mr. Lawrence said only: "There has to be a change in attitude toward existing policies and an evolution of new ones. . . ."

The mines minister told reporters he had been "shocked and amazed" to learn that a new federal program of regional incentives to industry does not apply to primary industries such as farming, fishing, logging and mining, and that there is a northern limit to the designated area in which it applies.

"I can't believe there should be an exception for primary industry and I don't understand the northern limit, set at the 51st parallel.

"Ontario is heeding its efforts to bringing industrial development for the north, yet the federal program does not extend into the real north."

Ontario will discuss the federal program with Ottawa immediately, and will confer with the Quebec government on the issue, Mr. Lawrence said.

"The 51st parallel is barely beyond Moosonee," he said. "There are huge reserves of minerals, especially iron ore, north of that, and the area now is under active oil exploration.

"To be fair to the federal government, their purpose is to promote the development of high-employment fabricating and secondary industry, but you can't take two steps at a time.

"Ontario already has persuaded mining companies to finish their ore in Canadian smelters before shipping it away, and the obvious second step is to push them into the fabricating processes in this country.

"But first you have to get the resources, then the ingots, and only then by incentives and coercion can you push them into manufacturing."

Ontario's incentives program, which uses low-interest and forgiveable loans to persuade industry to locate in slow-growth areas, also is restricted to secondary industries. Mr. Lawrence said this will be discussed by the cabinet and may have to be broadened.

New policies will concentrate on transportation and provision of capital and decentralization of some government departments will be speeded up, he said.

"I came here with the idea that we need a single department to co-ordinate the northern activities of all departments," he said. "But I now think that perhaps we do not need a department of northern affairs.

"The emphasis here was that northerners . . . want less government, not more."

Canada Holds U.S. Responsible If Nuclear Blast Does Damage

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States government has been advised that Canada will hold it responsible for any damage that might result from an Aleutian Islands nuclear test next month.

K. A. Ritchie, Canadian ambassador to the U.S., advised the state department in Washington Friday of Canada's concern about damage or injury from the underground tests in the North Pacific.

Mr. Ritchie was acting on the instructions of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The one-megaton explosion will occur in a 4,000-foot hole on Amchitka Island and will be similar in size to similar tests in Nevada.

Canadian seismologists have been given an extensive briefing by the U.S. and been assured that there is no risk from repercussions outside the test area.

Canada's fears are that radioactivity may be vented into the air and that a tidal wave or earthquake may result from the blast.

VICTORIA (CP) — A seismological expert says there may be earthquakes and tidal waves along the west coast of Vancouver Island following the planned explosion by the United States of a nuclear device in the Aleutian Islands.

Dr. E. G. Milne, seismologist with the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, said in an interview Sunday it would be "extremely foolish" to disregard the possibility of an earthquake in the wake of a nuclear blast, scheduled for next month.

"Of course it could happen," said Dr. Milne. "There is a major geological fault in the Aleutian archipelago and another along the Alaskan coast.

"It is possible that the explosions could trigger a slippage along the fault—that is, an earthquake," said the seismologist. He declined to speculate on the probability of this happening.

France Shifts Focus To Domestic Problems

PARIS (CP) — Barely five months after Charles de Gaulle quit his presidential helm, France gives the impression of having entered a new, inward-seeking stage in its history.

For the time being at least, de Gaulle and his era seem half-forgotten, although the general, still a formidable face of political life for his successor as chief of state, Georges Pompidou.

Whereas half a year ago France still echoed to grandiose discussion of its world role, most controversy today centres on acute internal problems which anti-Gaullists say were neglected even after last year's social upheavals.

Pompidou's initial acts as president, domestic and grimly pragmatic, were geared to his surprise devaluation of the franc—de Gaulle's 1958 rejection of that monumental step a symbolic barrier.

Ever since the 12½-per-cent downgrading of the franc on Aug. 8, Pompidou's government and all Frenchmen have been so preoccupied with socio-economic problems that de Gaulle-inspired thoughts of international "grandeur" appear remote and unreal.

Even under de Gaulle, many ordinary Frenchmen chuckled in half-embarrassment when asked about such controversial aspects of the general's behavior as his advocacy of a "free" Quebec.

France and Quebec continue to co-operate in technical, cultural and youth affairs. The ties established by de Gaulle will be underlined again with a visit to the province next month by Jean de Lipkowski, a French state secretary for foreign affairs.

But since de Gaulle's resignation from office, relations between Paris and Ottawa have mellowed to the point where the main worry now is reported to be that neither France nor Quebec should lose face over the less-frigid French treatment now accorded federal officials.

The Gaullist Pompidou and his premier, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, brandish the term "new society" to describe the aim of reformist policies announced in Parliament.

These emphasize stepped-up improvements in communications, better work conditions, smoother labor-management relations and greater freedom for France's much-criticized broadcasting system.

But critics question whether these plans can be squared with the expenditure cuts forced by devaluation and by what ex-terms anti-Gaullists call the nation's near-bankruptcy.

Chaban-Delmas and his proposals received a vote of confidence from the Gaullist-dominated Assembly and expressions of grudging respect from a segment of the non-Communist left.

Meanwhile, the mass of Frenchmen ponder the belt-tightening pressures of post-devaluation austerity.

Devaluation has generated observable fears of further hikes in retail prices. This in turn has set off worker unrest such as the recent strikes in the transportation industry.

Discontent remains rampant, too, among owners of small businesses, fed up as they long have been with high and complex taxes and the way they are treated under social-welfare arrangements.

The bitterness erupted into protest shutdowns of shops and cafes earlier this year and lately there have been flare-ups of violence.

Georges Seguy, general secretary of France's biggest trade union organization, the Communist-dominated Confederation Generale du Travail, hinted recently at the possibility of a "democratic alternative" to Gaullism. Seguy also warned that Pompidou's tenure of office could turn out to be less than the statutory seven years.

The union chief's opponents saw in the words a CGT plo to stir social trouble in the interests of political success for the Communist party.

Unrest continues among students. Some complain that reform of educational institutions and methods is not going far enough.

Suspended Policeman Faces Two Charges

BRANTFORD (CP) — Deputy Chief Lester Butcher of the Brantford police department said Sunday that suspended Constable Ronald Stockdale is scheduled to appear before Chief George Kerr today on two charges under the Ontario Police Act.

Constable Stockdale, a 15-year veteran of the police force, was suspended from duty Sept. 12 and charged with violating the Police Act for writing a letter to the editor of The Expositor without permission from superiors.

Constable Stockdale said in the letter that the Ontario Police Commission should publish the full text of a 39-page report prepared by the commission after an investigation earlier this year into the activities of the police department.

An abbreviated 11-page version of the report has already been made public.

Constable Stockdale also faces a charge relating to his alleged partnership in a private business, claimed to be a violation of the Police Act.

The Expositor said Saturday that a second constable, Les Lilli, was suspended Friday after the newspaper published a letter to the editor from him.

In the letter Lolli said police officers had participated in criminal activities including fraud and extortion and that he wanted to see the "full text" of the OPC's report on its investigation.

Both Constable Lolli and Constable Stockdale have accused the Brantford Police Commission of a whitewash because only part of the OPC report was published.

Constable Stockdale says he has engaged a lawyer to fight the charges.

Londonderry Barricades Come Down

LONDONDERRY (A P) — The Roman Catholics of Bogside took down more barricades today as a three-man tribunal opened a public inquiry into the religious warfare that rocked Northern Ireland last month.

As barricades came down today, residents immediately painted a four-inch-wide white line across their street as a symbolic barrier.

The Derry Citizens Association will retain control of the districts, and Northern Ireland police may not cross the line.

Bertrand Hits Boost In Postage for Papers

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand lashed out at the federal government Saturday night for the recent increase in postal rates, which he said has resulted in weekly and monthly publications "dropping like flies."

Addressing the annual convention of the Association des Hebdos du Canada, an association of 107 French-language weeklies, the premier described the increase as exorbitant.

English-speaking Catholics Enroll in Protestant Schools

MONTREAL (CP) — English-speaking Roman Catholic school children in suburban St. Leonard scheduled to start classes today in Montreal's Protestant school system, have had the switch-over delayed a day until bus transportation arrangements are completed.

Robert Beale, president of the St. Leonard Parents Association, said Sunday 343 children in Grades 1 and 2 have been enrolled in two Protestant schools outside the boundaries of the northeast suburb, bitterly divided over a school-language dispute.

St. Leonard, where the Catholic school board a year ago began a program of gradually eliminating English-language instruction in its elementary schools, has no parallel Protestant school system.

Mr. Beale said in an interview that about 60 English-Catholic families have already asked to be removed from Catholic school tax rolls and are sending their children to a Protestant school in Montreal.

Parents of the 343 children who will start classes Tuesday in schools in east-end Montreal still are taxed by the Catholic board, but to get the children into English-language classes an additional $25 a month must be paid to the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal.

This additional cost, about $120,000 over the year, will be borne by the parents association which has launched a fund-raising campaign.

Tonkin Incident Reports Said Misleading, Confusing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Gulf of Tonkin incidents of August, 1964, which led to the massive United States commitment to the war in Vietnam, are "a medley of misrepresentations, contradictions and half-truths, a new book says.

"The weight of the evidence . . . is that the administration acted hastily, upon incomplete and misleading information and then refused to admit error," says Joseph C. Goulden in his book Truth is the First Casualty: The Gulf of Tonkin Affair —Illusion and Reality.

He writes that not even then President Johnson knew what had happened.

A United States destroyer, the Maddox, was patrolling the coast of North Vietnam on Aug. 2, 1964, when she was attacked by three North Vietnamese patrol boats.

Two days later, on a dark night, the Maddox and another destroyer, the C. Turner Joy, again were off the North Vietnamese coast and reported they were under attack. That incident prompted the first U.S. bombing raids in North Vietnam and started the buildup of American forces in Vietnam from 16,000 to more than 500,000.

Whether the second attack actually occurred—and therefore also the U.S. response—has been a continuing controversy, culminating in extensive hearings by the Senate foreign relations committee last year.

"For the Johnson administration, the reopened Tonkin inquiry was an event which contributed heavily to the president's dramatic decision to halt the bombing of most of North Vietnam and not to seek re-election," Goulden writes.

Immediately after the Tonkin incidents, the foreign relations and armed services committees of the Senate heard then Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara and State Secretary Dean Rusk at a closed session. Congress, with little debate, passed the Southeast Asia Resolution later considered by many the functional equivalent of a declaration of war.

52 Enrol At School Of Nursing

Fifty-two young women enrolled Sept. 15 in the second class to be admitted to the Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing here, bringing the total number of nursing students in the school to 90. Students and their parents and guests were welcomed at a commencement tea in Education Hall at Belleville General Hospital.

The nursing course is a two year educational program with a third year internship, following which the students are eligible to write registration examinations and become registered in Ontario.

During the first two years the student nurse's time will be spent equally in the classroom and in the hospitals of the region. The students will receive experience in the nursing care of patients in the hospitals at Belleville, Campbellford, Picton and Trenton.

MEATLESS MEATBALLS — They "look, smell and taste like the real thing," say their developers at the University of Saskatchewan, but the meatballs in that helping of spaghetti psychology student Heather Robertson is eating are made from synthetic meat. The simulated meat product is now ready for industry pilot studies. (CP Photo)

'Meatless Meatballs' Look, Taste and Smell Like the Real Thing

SASKATOON (CP) — "Meatless meatballs" that look, smell and taste like the real thing may soon be on the market.

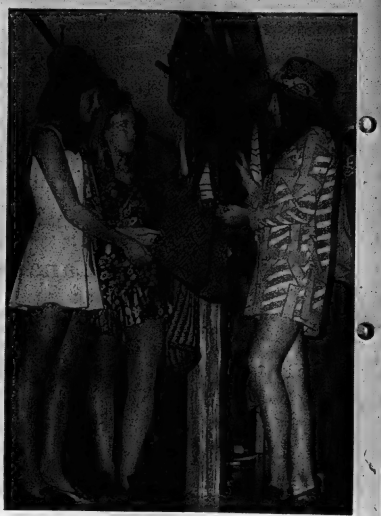
Researchers at the University of Saskatchewan here say that the simulated meat they have developed is higher in protein and vitamin content than real meat, costs less to produce and keeps better.

Dr. D. L. Gibson, head of the Dairy and Food Science Department, said the new product now is ready for pilot plant studies by industry.

Dr. Gibson said the product might be particularly useful in developing countries where protein is scarce.

The simulated meat is developed entirely from vegetable sources by one of two processing methods.

In one method, spent brewers' yeast is dried and mixed with various cereals and herbs.



In the other method, a type of yeast that grows on waste products, such as cheese whey, is used.

"By using the milk sugar in whey as a source of energy, the yeast multiplies and produces more protein," Dr. Gibson says. "The material is then dried and mixed with cereals and herbs."

The process is doubly beneficial—it will provide food and also reduce pollution by food wastes.

Dr. Gibson says that each year in Canada liquid equivalents of more than 110,000,000 pounds of cheese whey solids and about 5,000,000 pounds of dried brewers' yeast are by-products of the cheese and brewing industries.

A high percentage of this now is dumped into this country's streams, ditches and sewage systems.

The New Trend

The new trend is to environment for teen shoppers. Innovation came Saturday in basement of Walker's Stores (above) where company launched trendy sales area, The Joint. The event also previewed Fashion for the 70's, a futurama of fashions to be shown during Belleville Week.

'The Joint' Opening Previews Fashions for Belleville Week

The Quinte district is sporting a trendy look in merchandising trends.

The new marketing mode made a swinging debut below ground Saturday at Walker's Stores' Belleville outlet. Christened The Joint, the operation is grooved to contemporary teenage lines, in cut, color and variety.

At this time there was a preview of 'Fashions for the 70's' . . . at least for the teenagers when mod clothes were introduced to Belleville's younger crowd in a rather swinging manner.

The Belleville teenage models were volunteers doing a preview of mod fashions, and some of these young people will be part of the cast of the rapidly approaching Belleville Week' feature 'Futurama Fashions.

This event is being sponsored and presented by the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority of Belleville and the Saturday show was under the direction of Marjorie Kent, fashion model and co-ordinator of Toronto.

Miss Kent has been retained by the Sorority to co-ordinate the 'Fashions for the 70's' presentation. This was only a sample of the type of show expected on Sept. 30 at Centennial Secondary School. Fashions for men will also be featured during the entire show. Tickets for the show are available from any member of the Sorority and at several downtown locations including the City Hall and the Chamber of Commerce office.

Environment is a key cut by Walker's to unlock new market potential among Quinte swingers.

The idea is epitomized in the new sales area — its Saturday opening jammed and jumping with crowds of curious teens, hailed by rock music.

The atmospheric interior complements the kind of merchandise sought by the teens.

"Our job is to produce the merchandise and the kind of environment they want," explained Walker's president David Woods, a veteran of 30 years with the company.

Modern youth is both style and quality conscious, he says. The environment will be adapted as teen taste demands.

Scheduled for 'The Joint' is a coffee bar and, possibly, even a hairdresser, says Mr. Woods.

The style was conceived by the original pacesetter of trendy merchandising — Britain's Carnaby Street.

Walker's has adapted the Carnaby-concept in several other stores in the province and now has sufficient experience to be confident its designers strike the right atmospheric notes.

Neither is the new look confined to the younger set. As its tastes have influenced modern styles, so also has it wrought changes in merchandising generally, indicates the Walker's president.

One result is seen in the layout of boutiques and gift shops — complete with typical decor — within store complexes.

"More and more people like to shop in an area designed to cater to their needs," says Mr. Woods. It's part of an "attempt to make a better environment for the merchandise we're selling."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I worry all the time you're out there playing football on the vacant lot. I'm so afraid you'll get a back injury or a broken leg. You will be careful, won't you?"

Mother: "We thought a meeting with other neighborhood parents might help solve a problem before someone gets seriously hurt. Let's all insist that the younger boys play touch football only — and that tackling is forbidden."

Don't permit an activity and then destroy its pleasure by constantly worrying about it. If you think something is really dangerous, you should not permit your child to participate.

Writings of Conan Doyle Express Faith

By DORIS CLARK

The children of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle found this note after his death:

"As a man grows older there comes a time when he feels that the shadows thicken around him. He feels his mortal limits, his eyesight contracts, his hearing dulls, the strength which had seemed to be inexhaustible well, has now to be collected before it is used.

"But when that time comes, I know, and I would have you know, that with a true knowledge of what is before us, the shadows all turn gold, and that there is much more of hope than of fear in the prospect."

(From a biography of Conan Doyle by Pierre Nordon.)

* * *

Dear Doris: After a nervous breakdown I quit my job (on doctor's orders). Now I feel fine except for being angry with my husband because of his drinking.

It started with his mother. He was afraid to tell her he had a lady friend. The roof came off the house when she found out I was a widow with two children and not of their nationality.

He says there is no drinking problem; but he drinks 12 ounces of rye a day plus several beers, and spends grocery money we badly need. He is deep in debt.

I could make more money at home by sewing but he won't let me work for friends. — Stymied.

Dear Stymied: Until a man stoks low enough to know his craving is ruining his life, things are not likely to improve.

But is he a marriage partner or a despot? And are you playing the role of peace-at-any-price slave? It's high time for a change of routines.

If you want to have a hand in his salvation, (1) demand the cheque and do the shopping yourself; and (2) take on what sewing you can at home. Consultation with your nearest alcoholism centre could keep you on an even keel.

* * *

Dear Doris: I managed to get the words of two songs: The Prisoner's Song, from an old piano roll; and McNamara's Band from an old Bing Crosby 78 R.P.M. record. I have a couple of hundred old records and the Victrola console to play them on.

By how you know me therefore, I served when others threw away, years before the "antique bug" bit so many others.

I am afraid I will be of no help to you on the "Disaster of Nova Scotia" and the Easter mine accident. Perhaps you could inquire in an Eastern paper. And ask in a Western paper for the "Capture of Albert Johnson". — Poetry Sleuth.

Dear Sleuth: I call that devotion: Running off a piano roll to get the words of a song for us! And the Victrola record. There are some lovely old 78's still around. I have a few myself that I wouldn't part with.

Readers: Anybody know the other three poems we need? The Albert Johnson one is described as "a true tale of a robber and mountie killer." Others are also supposed to have actually happened, and were immortalized — I hope — in poetry.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Italian Recipes Now Popular

By MARY MOORE

Be warned: you are going to see more Italian recipes than usual because my sisters have been on a European tour and were enthusiastic about some of the Italian restaurants they patronized.

Peady bought an Italian cook book and is adding her own savvy to some of the vague recipes in it and producing lovely products.

Anyone for Polpettes? (Meat balls to you and me.) These are made with ground round steak and I want to advise you not to resort to hamburg because it was the leanness of these polpettes that made them into a guest dinner at Peady's home.

POLPETTES
(High cholesterol stay Italian meat balls — serves 6)

1½ lbs. ground round steak
2 slices white bread
¾ cup milk
2 eggs
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup finely chopped parsley
½ tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. Accent
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Grated rind of ½ lemon (do not omit)
½ to ¾ cup grated Parmesan cheese — optional but not used by Peady)

Soak the bread slices in the milk in a large bowl. Add the ground round steak and mix all well by hand. Add all remaining ingredients and mix. Flour your hands and your baking board. Now handling this mixture lightly shape into 30 or 25 balls but do not pack them. Roll lightly in flour on board to cut them. Make a little dent in top o feach. Fry them in about ¼" hot oil (The Italians use olive oil of course.) Brown them on tops and bottoms and sides as well as you can by rolling them around. Do not overcook them — a little pinkness in the centre assures softness and moisture.

Pile in a long pyramid on preheated platter and sprinkle lavishly with Italian parsley.

Dinner Menu

Baked stuffed Veal Hearts, Rich Brown Gravy, Baked Potatoes with Chive Sour Cream, Buttered Kale, Lettuce Wedges with Roquefort Dressing, Peach Crumble, Tea.

Ann Landers

'Don't Call Me Mom' Says Mother-in-Law

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband shoved your column under my nose this evening. "Don't miss this," he said smugly. "It was written especially for you."

The letter he wanted me to see was from Missouri Mule — the girl who stubbornly refused to call her mother-in-law Mom. "Mule" relented when her mother-in-law was on her deathbed. (Enter violins — and don't forget a mop for the tears.)

It so happens my mother-in-law gave me orders the day her son and I became engaged. They were as follows: "Don't ever call me Mom because I am not your mother" I was so hurt I went to the bathroom and cried. From that day on I have called her Mrs. Jones.

The old battle-axe has softened up these past 19 years, but she'll always be Mrs. Jones to me. My husband says I'm hard as nails. Am I? — SANTA FE ROSE.

DEAR ROSE: Tell your husband his mother gave you orders ten years ago and you'll continue to follow those orders until you get a new directive. Place the burden where it belongs — on Mrs. Jones.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A fellow executive has caused me no end of irritation because she consistently arrives late for every appointment. This same woman always manages to be late for every social engagement. Not only does she fail to apologize but she seems uncommonly proud of her habitual tardiness.

Recently I decided to speak to her about it. She informed me (in high dudgeon yet) that people who arrive promptly for business or social engagements are ignorant — and, in a sense, admitting their inferiority. Also, she argued, the person who is Johnny-on-the-spot at the appointed time advertises the fact that he had nothing else to do. This, she insists, is damaging to one's prestige.

I say people who keep others waiting are rude and inconsiderate. Will you please express your views? — AVID READER.

DEAR AV: The person who is consistently late is indeed rude and inconsiderate. Also poorly organized. Intentional tardiness, designed to give the illusion of importance, is stupid. The most important people I know are the most considerate — and the most prompt.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am going to marry a very fine girl in a few weeks. We have gone together for almost a year and are compatible in every way. Only one problem: She has admitted to one serious love affair in her life but she refuses to tell me who the guy was.

I am going crazy trying to figure it out. Every time we run into one of her former boy friends I torture myself wondering, "Is this the one?"

If we are going to have a good life together I think she should tell me everything. I have told her all about my previous affairs — who, when, where, how — every detail I could think of. Now, I'd like the same consideration. What do you say? — V-12

DEAR V-1 say you have a very big mouth. Stop bellyragging the girl and think of something else to talk about.

DODGE 70

BIG DODGE

Here is an automobile that must be seen, and driven. Not only is Big Dodge one of the most handsome cars you'll see this year, it is also one of the quietest and best handling. Big Dodge. New with Torsion-Quiet Ride. A solid Unibody that floats on its undercarriage. Big Dodge. New with a stance that's wider than ever for improved roadability. Big Dodge. A new concept in luxury in the popular price field. A whole new concept that must be experienced.

CHARGER

The 1970 Charger is the car you buy when you're ready for a racey-looking sports type with more room. A car that's as performance oriented as it looks. And you'll find all kinds of fast-moving features like hidden headlights, a Rallye instrument panel, Rallye suspension, racing gas cap, bucket seats or bench, and almost any option you'd care for, including the Magnum 440 cu. in. V-8, and Hurst four-speed pistol grip shift. Charger. An awful lot of car for a surprisingly low price.

CORONET

Here it is: The 1970 Dodge Coronet. The car that's big enough to deliver everything you'd want in a roomy (six-adult-capacity) car, at a price that is very hard to resist. Seventeen lively models, running all the way up to the sporty bucket-seated 500 with an all vinyl interior, carpeting, three spoke steering wheel, a 318 V-8, and more than 20 reassuring safety features. Dodge Coronet. At a price that will drive you right out of the high rent district.

DART

Still Canada's man-sized compact, and for 1970, Dart's got even more going for it. A new look. A longer hood to house new, larger engines. And a whole flock of wild new colours. But best of all, Dart is still what it started out to be. A comfort-packed compact with room for six. Nimble handling. Easy to own. And even with all the improvements, Dart is still priced beautifully within your budget.

Look out sports compacts, here comes the hot new CHALLENGER

This is Dodge Challenger. The only new entry in the sports compact field you'll see this year. It's a car that grips the road with stance that says solid. Engine choices run all the way up to 426 Hemi, or the 440 Magnum.

There are eight in all. Run your finger down the list and stop when you get to your kind of go. Look inside. Check the new lower-back buckets, and the aircraft type instrument panel. Look at the models. Six of them, including convertibles. And all six come with concealed wipers, steering wheel lock, deep-pile carpeting, dual headlights, and more.

Being Tough Costly to Bruins

Maki's Stick Sends Green to Surgery

Boston Bruins general manager MIKE Schmidt made a training camp vow that his National Hockey League club was going to be tough this year.

His players set out during the weekend to uphold that prediction, but the effort proved costly as the Bruins lost two exhibition games and two of their most valued players.

Veteran defenceman Ted Green was taken to hospital in Ottawa for surgery Sunday night after he was hit on the head in a stick-swinging duel with Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues. The Blues won the match 5-1.

Green was out of surgery and in satisfactory condition early today. He had been in surgery more than five hours.

Blues won the game 5-1.

There was still some paralysis but it was too early to tell if the injury had caused permanent damage.

Green, 28, was struck over the head by Maki's stick when the St. Louis player retaliated after being struck by Green. Both players were given match penalties.

The Bruins were without centre Derek Sanderson Sunday after he was injured in a Saturday night match against the Canadiens in Montreal. The Canadiens won a 4-1 decision in the game which ended in a near-riot.

In other Sunday exhibition games, Montreal downed Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 at Quebec, Detroit Red Wings beat Los Angeles Kings 6-3 at Port Huron, Mich., Pittsburgh Penguins and Buffalo Bisons of the American League tied 3-3 and New York Rangers defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 8-3 at Kitchener, Ont.

Saturday, Minnesota North Stars defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 at Bloomington.

At the Bruins' camp in London, Ont., two weeks ago, manager Schmidt said: "Nobody's going to intimidate this club. They just won't be pushed around."

And with only eight seconds remaining in the game at Montreal, Canadiens' Dick Duff tangled with Boston rookie Jim Harrison in front of Bruins goalie Gerry Cheevers.

Harrison wrestled Duff to the ice and Cheevers left his net to take a swing at the fallen Montreal player when Canadiens defenceman Terry Harper stepped in.

Harper and Harrison wound up swinging at each other but were separated then. Then Harrison had words with a fan at the Bruins bench and the Boston players wound up in a fight with the crowd on the ramp to the dressing room.

Through the whole contest, referee Art Skov handed out 32 penalties, including six majors, two misconducts and a game misconduct.

John Ferguson, Henri Richard, Bobby Rousseau and Yvan Cournoyer scored for Montreal with Jim Lorentz picking up the lone Boston goal.

Green assessed the game misconduct just two minutes before the end of the game Saturday, along with a misconduct and a slashing penalty.

The 28-year-old native of St. Boniface, Man., was given another game misconduct for his battle with Maki Sunday. Maki was also put out of the game for his part in the first-period duel as was Boston centre Phil Esposito after he took a swing at referee Ken Bodendiftel during a penalty call dispute in the second period.

Red Berenson and Phil Goyette scored twice each for St. Louis.

Don Marcotte scored for the Bruins who were playing without regulars Bobby Orr, John McKenzie, Ken Hodge, John Bucyk and Ron Murphy. Orr was out with a cold and Hodge is recovering from an appendectomy.

Juha Widing, a rookie who learned his hockey in Sweden, scored one goal in New York's victory over the Leafs. Dave Balon, Jim Neilson, Jean Ratelle and Bob Jones scored the other goals against goalies Marv Edwards and Bruce Gamble. Paul Henderson scored twice for Toronto and Dave Keon added one.

Remember the fairy tale about the princess whose back was so sensitive she could feel a pea placed a dozen mattresses beneath her? That should give you some idea of how every pebble on the Redmerville Road plagued the 1,100 pairs of feet that Saturday put Belleville $36,512 closer to a community arena.

And talk about walking a mile for a Camel!

The 1,132 who embarked on The Great Blister sauntered, plodded, or limped more than the circumference of the earth — 24,901 miles — for a second city rink.

There were more than 700 of us who cancelled the phone call from our brains to our feet and finished the 26-mile route.

It was only nine hours later, but it seemed like a week had elapsed since the chattering multitude thronged off in the morning sun.

This was going to be a breeze, this so-called marathon.

Why this sprinter made the Trenton turn in one chocolate bar, three-tenths of a bottle of liniment flat. No sweat. Why not stop in and take in the matinee at the Century? That would still leave lots of time to jog into Belleville for a hot steak and cold freshie.

Things were still pretty cripper at the Carrying Place halfway point. It's all downhill now," as the captain of the Titanic said.

The Trenton-Redmerville leg was covered in a shade over one pint and two pieces of peppermint.

It was about this point — the 24-mile mark — that one began to get the distinct impression of a familiar feeling—pain.

Did that 1,462 on your back represent your number or how many miles you had walked?

Was that really a piece of coal you just stepped on, or an apple seed?

Then, just when the checkpoint stamp felt like a sledgehammer between the shoulder blades, you saw the bridge.

It might have been the Golden Gate or the Bay Bridge — it didn't matter. You were just going to get across it and if Belleville wasn't there, you'd just calmly sit down and have a mercuary.

Checkpoint stamp No. 29, and you wondered if you would have enough nerve to look at your feet when they pulled the stockings off. Would they put bandages on them or steak seasoning?

Then, hobbling on the pads of your feet — (heel blisters had broken) — you came up behind the boy with the baseball cap.

He was walking on the sides of his suede desert boots. The bottoms of his feet couldn't support even his spindly 12-year-old frame.

But the boy wouldn't let you pass him. He just wouldn't. It took him two tender steps to your one, but he was going to be 29th, not 31st.

And for the first time in 30 miles, you knew what the walkathon was all about.

Als Finally Fly

Montreal Alouette's Dennis Duncan—(25) flies over the Hamilton defence for a second-quarter touchdown in Montreal's 41-35 win Sunday

Now Argos' Cahill Can't Say Jackson Never Did Him Favor!

Ottawa Rough Riders' quarterback Russ Jackson delivered an early Christmas present Saturday to Toronto Argonauts coach Leo Cahill.

"All I'd want for Christmas is that Jackson would run against us a lot," Cahill said before their weekend Eastern Football Conference encounter.

But the Yuletide package backfired on Cahill as Jackson ran a total of 35 yards in leading the Riders to a 34-27 victory.

Jackson was the top ground-gainer in the game as the Rough Riders moved four points ahead of the Argos in the EFC standings.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats remained in second place, one point back of Ottawa, after suffering a 41-35 upset Sunday at the hands of last-place Montreal Alouettes.

It was Hamilton's first loss of the season and Montreal's first win.

Jackson, one of the top running quarterbacks in the Canadian Football League, this season had been following the orders of coach Frank Clair who told him to restrict his running game to prevent exposure to injury.

But Jackson's passing attack had been contained by the Argos the previous week, and Clair rescinded the no-running order.

Jackson gained more than 60 yards running on three plays late in the game, and ended the series with the winning touchdown from the Toronto one-yard line with less than a minute remaining.

"I couldn't believe my eyes," said Cahill. "Second down, 13 to go and he runs for a first down and then some."

A capacity crowd of 33,135 watched as Ottawa picked up two touchdowns by Margene Adkins and one by Vic Washington. Don Sutherin kicked two field goals and four converts.

Jim Thorpe scored two touchdowns for Toronto and flanker Bobby Taylor and quarterback Tom Wilkinson each picked up one. Dave Mann was good on three convert attempts.

Wilkinson completed 13 of 19 pass attempts and led the Argos to a 13-10 lead before he was shaken up early in the third quarter.

Frank Cosentino went in for Wilkinson, and three plays later threw a touchdown pass to Thorpe. A Cosentino pass to Thorpe in the end zone in the fourth quarter accounted for Toronto's final touchdown.

Cosentino was good on six of 13 pass attempts.

Jackson completed 16 of 27 passes tried for 267 yards. Ottawa gained 225 yards rushing compared to 98 for Toronto.

A last-minute effort also won the game for Montreal as Tom Cassesse took a two-yard pass from quarterback Sonny Wade for a touchdown with only 31 seconds remaining.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Als built a 14-7 lead at half-time and 21-14 after the third quarter. They scored two more touchdowns and a convert to go ahead 34-14 before the Ticats clawed their way back to lead the game for the first time, 35-34.

Restic Will Protest

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Joe Restic of Hamilton Tiger-Cats says he will protest a 41-35 defeat Sunday to Montreal Alouettes in an Eastern Football Conference match.

Restic said after the game that officials erred in giving Montreal four downs which resulted in the Als' first touchdown.

It was first thought a penalty had been called against Hamilton when Montreal halfback Dick Smith was stopped on a third-down play. But referee-in-chief Hap Shouldice said there was no penalty.

However, Montreal was given another down and fullback Dennis Duncan dived into the end zone for a touchdown.

The Car Buyers Problems:

THE ART OF DOUBLE TALK

Jim Patterson

"It pays to be honest," the old adage says. And it does too, in the long run. But if you're in the car business looking for quick results without worrying too much about the future, it can be tempting to indulge in a little double talk.

Take price, for instance. It is a normal human reaction for all of us to want to pay the lowest price. Providing low given products are identical, the lowest price signifies the greatest value. That, naturally, is what we want for our hard earned money.

Realizing that a low price attracts prospective buyers, a dealer can take a worn-out car and advertise it at a "bargain" price. But, of course, it isn't a bargain. If he then tries to switch the buyer to a better car at a much higher price, it is almost certain that it isn't a bargain either.

The dealer using the switcheroo technique may feel that the resulting traffic created by his advertising justifies the deception, though this is seldom the case. A buyer lured to a dealer's lot by a false low price, or perhaps a car that doesn't even exist, reacts adversely when he realizes the deception.

A reputable dealer has the cars he advertises. If he wants to their owners reliable service. The irony is that his advertised prices their owners reliable service. The irony is that his advertised prices may seem higher than his unethical competitors. Reality is the only thing higher is the value the customer receives.

British Settle For Draw

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — The British golf world opened up the fall season today wondering in a vaguely amused way if Harold Wilson or Tony Jacklin is the prime minister.

Certainly the fans would have a hard time—at the moment—choosing between them.

Jacklin shot to the top of the sports world popularity poll by smashing American supremacy for the second time this year.

When he walked off the 18th green of the 7,140-yard par 74 Royal Birkdale links Saturday, with 30,000 voices shouting acclaim, the 25-year-old professional could have run for political office with guaranteed success.

It was Jacklin, the lad who went to the United States to challenge the powerful American circuit, who gave Britain a 16-16 tie against the United States in the three-day Ryder Cup competition.

He was never beaten in foursomes, four balls, and singles matches. In the course of events he walloped mighty Jack Nicklaus 4 and 3 Saturday and then held him to a draw in the final and decisive match in the 42-year-old competition.

Not since 1957 has Britain won the Ryder Cup, the professional match play duel, and only three times out of 17 tries have they emerged victorious. This was the first tie and, for that, the British were proud and happy to settle.

"Happy?" I'm delirious," said Jacklin afterwards.

His performance, as a long-hitter who also can putt, was his second triumph of major importance in 1969.

In July, Jacklin splattered the powerful American field in the British Open at Lytham and returned that ancient cup to the land of its birth.

Jacklin has injected a whole new dose of adrenalin in British professional golf, in the doldrums for years.

Giants Retain Narrow Lead; Edge Dodgers in Ten Innings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gaylord Perry went for a streak in San Francisco Sunday and some roughnecks from Los Angeles jumped him. But Willie McCovey went for a walk and arrived home safely.

The adventures of the two San Francisco Giants were the highlights of a 16-inning 4-3 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers that enabled the Giants to maintain their one-half game lead in the National League West Division race.

While the third-place Dodgers were falling 3½ games back, the runner-up Atlanta Braves kept pace with the Giants by whipping San Diego Padres 8-2. Fourth-place Cincinnati Reds stayed four games out with a 4-1 triumph over Houston Astros.

New York Mets increased their lead over Chicago Cubs in the East Division to 4½ games with a 5-3, 6-1 doubleheader sweep over Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cubs nipped St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and Montreal Expos edged Philadelphia Phillies 7-6.

In Saturday games, Pittsburgh beat the Mets 4-0 on Bob Moose's no-hit pitching, Philadelphia downed Montreal 6-4, St. Louis defeated the Cubs 4-1, Atlanta routed San Diego 8-2, the Giants beat Los Angeles 4-3, and Houston shut out Cincinnati 6-0.

Perry took his exercise in the fourth inning Sunday with the Giants nursing a slim 3-1 lead. Jackie Hiatt was on third and Perry on second with two out when Ron Hunt walked.

But Perry, apparently thinking the bases were loaded before the walk to Hunt, headed for third, which Hiatt had no intention of leaving. Catcher Tom Haller fired to shortstop Maury Wills; trapping Perry.

Hiatt broke for the plate and Wills' return throw nailed him easily.

Wills, however, was the goat in the 10th when his two-out, bases-loaded boot of Jim Davenport's grounder enabled McCovey to lumber home with the winning run.

McCovey, the league's home run leader, came up in the 10th with two out and the bases empty. Los Angeles skipper Walter Alston ordered reliever Pete Mikkelsen to walk the big slugger intentionally. But Mikkelsen also walked Bobby Bonds and Ken Henderson before Wills' goof.

The Braves stayed right on the Giants' heels as Ron Reed hurled a six-hitter and Hank Aaron belted his 553rd career homer — a three-run shot — against San Diego.

Gary Nolan checked Houston on four singles and broke up a scoreless game with a two-run triple in the seventh inning.

Tigers' Ontario Import Mows Down Bosox 9-0

Detroit Tigers' rookie pitcher Mike Kilkenny, a native of Bradford, Ont., Sunday fired a three-hitter for his second American League shutout in five days.

The 23-year-old left-hander put down Boston Red Sox 9-0 for his seventh win against five losses. Last Wednesday night he blanked Cleveland Indians 5-0 on five hits.

In other league action Sunday, John Kennedy hit a tie-breaking homer with two out in the ninth to give Seattle Pilots a 4-3 victory over Minnesota Twins and Dave Duncan drove in five runs to lead Oakland Athletics in a 12-2 romp over California Angels.

The loss for Minnesota delayed their drive for the West Division title. The Twins lead the Athletics by 10 games and need either a victory or an Oakland loss to clinch the pennant. Senators 4-3 and Chicago White Sox downed Kansas City Royals 10-2 in other Sunday games.

Saturday, California beat Oakland 7-3, Kansas City edged Chicago 9-8, Minnesota defeated Seattle 3-2, Boston downed the Tigers 6-3, Washington took Cleveland 5-3 and Baltimore Orioles defeated New York Yankees 8-7.

Harmon Killebrew did his best for the Twins' losing cause, slamming two solo homers to tie with Washington's Frank Howard and Oakland's Reggie Jackson for the league lead with 46.

At Detroit, Kilkenny got help from Tom Cash, Tom Matchick and Al Kaline who each batted in two runs.

Cleveland had to wait for Vern Fuller's two-out pinch single with the bases loaded in the ninth to beat Washington. Washington tied the game in the eighth when Mike Epstein scored from third on an error by catcher Duke Sims.

Ed Herrmann's three-run homer capped an eight-run Chicago romp in the third, and moved the White Sox into a tie for fourth with the Royals in the West Division.

Colts Stunned In NFL Opener

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"This was the biggest game of my career," said Deacon Jones, who has played in some big ones.

"We went out and hit. We knocked hell out of 'em."

The defensive Goliath of Los Angeles Rams expressed the sentiment of most of his teammates and of coach George Allen after the Rams stunned Baltimor Colts 27-20 in Sunday's National Football League opener.

In other surprises, New York Giants made Alex Webster's coaching debut a winning one by stopping Minnesota Vikings 24-23, Pittsburgh Steelers upset Detroit Lions 16-13 and Atlanta Falcons defeated San Francisco 49ers 24-12.

In other games, Dallas Cowboys whipped St. Louis Cardinals 24-3, Green Bay Packers blanked Chicago Bears 17-0, Cleveland Browns stopped Philadelphia Eagles 27-20 and Washington Redskins turned back New Orleans Saints 26-20.

Baltimore coach Don Shula pinned the defeat—only the second in the defending NFL champion's last 15 home openers—largely on two fumbles and three interceptions of John Unitas passes.

In the final quarter, Baltimore's Preston Pearson fumbled Pat Studstill's punt and Rams rookie Bob Klein recovered at the Baltimore 16. Two plays later, quarterback Roman Gabriel increased the Rams lead to 27-17 with his third touchdown pass to Wendell Tucker.

The Giant victory over the Vikings, last year's Central Division champions, answered a big question for Webster. The former Montreal Alouette, said before the game: "We don't know how good we are and I want to find out fast."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Arthur Ashe predicted today that the Davis Cup will be thrown open to Rod Laver and other contract professionals in 1971 and his captain, Donald Dell, said he would welcome it.

"There is no doubt that changes must be made in the Davis Cup format," said Ashe, America's top tennis player. "The present discrimination against the pros is ridiculous."

Generation Gap Closed By Grand Prix Leaders

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Young Jackie Ickx of Belgium and Australian veteran Jack Brabham Saturday narrowed the generation gap in motor-sport to 46 seconds when they made it one-two in the Grand Prix of Canada.

The 23-year-old Ickx won the 220-mile race for Formula 1 cars on the Mosport road track with elapsed time of one hour, 59 minutes, 25.7 seconds—a blazing average of 112.76 miles an hour.

Close on his tail-pipes was his 43-year-old boss Brabham, averaging 111.91 with elapsed time of 2:00:11.91.

Racing publicists this year started talking about the generation gap between Ickx and Brabham when the long-haired blonde youth, just two years out of Formula II ranks, entered the organization which builds and races cars.

The Australian, who resembles a business executive more than a racing driver, looks back on a career that extends into the great days of the 1950s when Argentina's famed Juan Fangio was collecting five world drivers' championships.

Brabham, who has held three world titles himself, devotes much of his time now to the engineering side of the sport. But occasionally as he did Saturday, he takes the wheel to show the younger drivers how it's done.

He was two cars behind Ickx Saturday when the Belgian put Jackie Stewart, 1969 world champion, out of the race after the Flying Scot's French Matra had led the field for the 26 of 90 laps.

Ickx' car struck the Matra's rear end as Stewart was trying to pass the other car on a downhill turn. The Matra was left lying beside the track with a broken wheel but Stewart was not hurt.

Ickx then took the lead and Brabham went on to pass West German Jocken Rindt's British Lotus which finished third.

The win meant $20,000 of the $150,000 prize money for Ickx as well as the Player's Award. It also boosted him into second place in world standing behind Stewart whose Sept. 7 victory in the Italian Grand Prix at Monza gave him undisputed possession of the 1969 title.

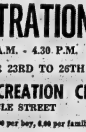
The stunt with Stewart's car also enabled Ickx to defeat the Scotsman for the second time in this year's series of 11 Grand Prix races. Ickx also won the German Grand Prix.

But the Belgian indicated afterwards he was not entirely happy with his Mosport victory over Stewart.

"I prefer a clear, fair win—I am sorry it happened," he said.

He described Stewart as "not a very easy chap to pass."

"I tried to pass him, slid and hit his rear wheels. He could not go again—I was very sorry."



Stewart, robbed of a seventh Grand Prix win in a year of racing—equalling the late Jim Clark's 1936 record, said angrily:

"There was no need for him to pass on the inside on that blind turn."

Both Brabham cars set a lap record of one minute, 18.1 seconds, beating the mark set last spring by New Zealander Bruce McLaren by 1.4 seconds. However, only Ickx' name will go into Mosport records because he set the mark first.

Drag Racing's "Big Daddy", Don Garlits of Florida, seems to be in the saddle of his 2,000 horsepowered "rail" in between match race runs against Rhode Island's Jimmy King at Deseronto's Quinte Dragway. Garlits won two of the three quarter-mile heats, winning the deciding one in 198.7 miles per hour.

Dragging's Big Daddy Turns 198 to Prove It

They don't call him drag racing's "Big Daddy" for nothing, and Quinte Dragway regulars can vouch for that.

Don Garlits showed a full house at Sunday's last scheduled meet of the season at the Deseronto strip why he has five times been the United States' Nationals' winner in drag racing's elite AA Fuel class.

The Florida speed artist shut down Rhode Island's Jimmy King in a best-of-three exhibition match race after King won the first quarter-mile heat.

Garlits came back to clock 197 and 198.7 mile-per-hour times as the two fuellers filled the air with the stench of burning rubber in their brief six second-plus shots down the quarter-mile strip.

King had beaten Garlits in one of their two meetings to date this summer, and yesterday's was being billed as the rubber match.

The winners in each class Sunday at the Quinte Dragway were: Lady Eliminator — Clare Clark (140 mph); Super and Competition — Alec Taylor (137.4 mph); Super Stock — Dennis Currier (124 mph); Street Eliminator — D. Reesor (113 mph); Stock — Don Cloake; Pure Stock — Moe LaBlanc.

Departmental Champs

Combines Send Turbos Dead-Heading

The CN Combines came from behind Sunday afternoon at CNE ball park to mow down the CN Turbos 9-7 and harvest the Departmental Softball League's 1969 playoff championship.

Sunday's come-from-behind victory enabled the Combines to capture the best-of-seven final series from the pennant-winning Turbos four games-to-one.

A single run in the top of the seventh frame enabled the Combines, who finished in second place during the regular schedule, to tie the score at 7-7 and send the game into extra innings.

It didn't take the Combines long to stake their claim as the rulers of the Departmental loop for they tallied two runs in the top of the eighth inning and became league champions when righthander "Junior" Day shut out the Turbos in the bottom of the extra inning.

Day went the eight inning distance for the winners scattering 13 hits and fanning five without issuing a walk while his teammates were collecting 11 hits off Turbo hurlers Ron Conlon and Rod Bennett who struck out 11 and walked half a dozen.

Bob Schrieder, Ray Laing and Glenn Clarke paced the Combines attack with a brace of singles apiece while teammates Bob McMurter, Don Conway, Larry Marshall, Ron Marshall and Warren Calbury chipped in with singles.

Ron Conlon with a double and two singles and Bob Duvall with three singles were the best of the Turbo batters. Zane Plumbe doubled for the Turbos who also got singles from Milt Bell, Brian Plumbe, Bill Nancarrow, Rod Bennett, Gary Williams and Perry Soule.

The Combines have won the Departmental Softball League crown, but they'll play one more game this season. That game will be a benefit affair against the Richard Ellis Juniors of the Commercial Softball League.

Proceeds from the benefit game will go to the Combines' Bob Bardy who suffered a chipped ankle bone in the third game of the series and is off work for four-to-six weeks. The date of the game has not been set yet, pending the result of the Juniors Commercial Softball League final playoff series with City Hotel.

Parsons May Have to Postpone Celebration

Despite the fact that they blanked the Whitley Travellers of Trenton 3-0 Sunday in the championship game of the Belleville Cup playoffs, the Belleville Parsons won't know for a few days if they have won the Belleville Cup.

It was reported that a dispute over a penalty shot late in the game may result in a protest which could result in a replay of the championship game if the Bay of Quinte Soccer League executive so decides.

Halfback John O'Neil started Parsons on the winning track in the first half with a long shot which slipped through the hands of the Travellers' netminder.

Forward Kevin Kirby gave the Parsons a 2-0 lead shortly before the first half ended and then put the game out of the Travellers' reach with his second goal of the night in the last half.

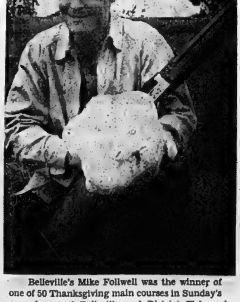
Halfbacks John O'Neil and Don Fletcher and netminder Brent Gallupe were standouts for the Parsons in the rough game which saw one player from each team sent off for rough play.

Game Club Talking Turkey

Some of the Quinte area's most ardent outdoorsmen took aim on Thanksgiving dinners Sunday as the Belleville and District Fish and Game Club staged its second annual Turkey Shoot on the Third Concession of Sidney.

Fifty 10-pound birds were up for grabs in shotgun, .22, and even horseshoe competition.

One of the 12-gauge turkey winners placed 86 of 155 No. 6 pellets in his 30-yard target.



Shooters competed in groups of ten, with the shotgun enthusiasts paying $1 a shot, .22 marksmen got three shots for $1., and the horseshoe heavers hurled 10 shoes for the same price.

Also featured during the day-long event was a demonstration by Belleville Archery Club members Brad Barnes, John Widdicks and Reg. Assistine.

Mayor Russell Scott of Belleville was on hand to blast a 12-gauge load into a pie-shaped card divided into "pieces" made up of names of people who had paid 50 cents for the chance of winning a turkey.

"Pieces" containing the most pellets were turkey winners.

Their turkey shoot is just one event on the Fish and Game Club's calendar designed to promote competition between those who enjoy the outdoors, whether skilled or unskilled at hunting or fishing.

Belleville's Mike Follwell was the winner of one of 50 Thanksgiving main courses in Sunday's second annual Belleville and District Fish and Game Club Turkey Shoot near Wallbridge.

Hugh Wemp Bids For Driving Crown

Hugh Wemp took a run at Roy Buchanan Saturday night at the Fairgrounds in the race for the season's Leader Driver award, but Buchanan stood his ground.

Wemp, who stood third among the drivers prior to the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's third-last meet of the season, moved closer to leader Buchanan when he became the third driver to win three races in one night this season.

Wemp also added a show performance with April Linda in the seventh heat to finish in the money four times in his five races. But Buchanan came through with a win — his fourth of the season — place and show, in his bid to retain his position as the leading driver of the Belleville trade.

Hugh Wemp's trio of wins came with Dandy Duke in the third heat, Hugh Way in the fourth and McGuiness Dream in the ninth and final race.

Buchanan collected his win driving Mountain Flight in the eighth heat, his place with Bridgin in the first heat and his show with Swak in the fifth heat.

Mountain Flight's time of 2:12.3 for the mile tied with that of Al Vance and Brant's Lightning — who took the fifth heat — for the fastest of the cool night in which attendance dropped to 670 persons, who pushed $18,035 through the pari-mutuels.

God's Winner of the Year

HOW TO PLAY THE DOWNHILL LIE

The big problem on shots from downhill lies is staying down on the shot. That is, swinging the clubhead through the ball in a downward arc which will get the ball well into the air. When over you set yourself up for this shot think of this and determine to swing the clubhead in that manner.

A couple of other things—the ball will fly to the right, so aim to the left of your target; to help retain the ball on a downward arc, play it in the center, or slightly back of center, in your stance. At address, level your hips as much as possible by bending your right knee more than your left. Use a club you're confident will get the ball flying. As you swing back, be sure to move your weight to the right. If you leave it to the left, you may swing over the top of the ball and top it.

Above all, stay down on this one and try to move your clubhead along the contour of the ground for as long as possible after impact.

Car 7 Wins Riverview Finale

By CECIL S. PAUL

The faithful stock car fans came to Riverview Speedway on Saturday night to watch the 21st meet of the season. The cold weather wasn't enough to keep them from seeing their favorites run, on the final Saturday night's racing of the year.

The night cylinder Feature, a 30-lap event, had 14 cars coming around for the start-er's flag.

The first five laps of this one had the crowd on their feet. C1, Bob Prudhomme drove a beautiful race coming in first despite the efforts of 711, Ron Herrington, to overtake him. He had to settle for a second in this one, with Larry Stacey in 007 coming in third.

The six-cylinder Feature, also 20 laps, had a field of 14 cars.

X21, driven by Gary Sheffield, led for the entire race, except for the very last turn. Doug Davis in car 5, worked his way up through the pack. In his attempt for 1st X21, Doug hit him and was disqualified. Although he crossed the finish line ahead of the win went to Gary Sheffield in X21.

Davis later said he was satisfied with the flagman's decision.

Tino Tames SACO Bantams Again

Tino was up to his old tricks again Saturday much to the sorrow of the Belleville SACO bantams.

Tino Manganaro, who listed a 9-3 win over SACO among his three complete game efforts in North Bendale's "A" championship win in the July 26th Belleville Bantam Softball tournament, struck out four five singles in hurling North Bendale to a 9-3 win over SACO Saturday at Alemille ball park.

Saturday's win allowed North Bendale to win the best of three OASA semi-final series in two straight games and the

Registration Extended

The city's youngsters have gained a reprieve from the Belleville Minor Hockey Association.

Minor Hockey registration — which now totals 1,094 — has been extended to allow any youngsters who haven't yet registered to sign up for the coming season.

Registration can be made at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street from Monday to Friday of this week between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4.30 p.m.

Scarborough club will now advance into the Ontario finals to defend the OASA. Bantam "A" title which they won last year by defeating SACO in the final series. North Bendale routed SACO 8-0 last Saturday in the opening game of the series.

Manganaro threw third strikes past 11 batters allowing two singles to SACO third sacker Ken Vos and one each to Gerry Munroe, John Romano and Bill Phillips, while limiting SACO to single runs in the second and ninth innings.

Meanwhile North Bendale provided Manganaro with a two-run cushion in the opening frame and added two more runs in each of the fourth, fifth and six frames.

Lefthander Ken Johnson and reliever John Spracklett gave up 11 hits and half a dozen walks while fanning seven. Right fielder Len Charbonneau with a triple and two singles and Manganaro with a double and single paced the winners' attack.

TRADE SCHOOL

Not Getting Into College
Isn't The End Of The World

In fact, it might be the beginning of your world. A bright new and very rewarding world. The world of computer programming.

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them and pay them well.

No, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school, a school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centers and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you around the day, evening — even Saturdays.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step to your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you — if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose?

THANK YOU . . .
FOR PAYING YOUR CARRIER PROMPTLY

Collections by your Intelligencer carrier are timed to provide you convenient service and best meet his school and study schedules. He may begin collecting Thursday and complete his collection on Friday, so that he can pay for his papers on Saturday morning.

Your thoughtfulness in paying him the first time he calls to collect will encourage him in giving you prompt service. It will save him extra work for which he would receive no additional profit.

It will give him more time for school and other activities . . .

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Continual Cigarette Smoking Like Pouring Gas on Flame

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 43 and have smoked cigarettes for 26 years. My doctor says I have a bad case of chronic bronchitis. He said if I keep on I might die. He frightened me very much. Is there really such a menace?—Mrs. W.

Comment: Your letter gives me the opportunity to repeat the "lifesome warnings against smoking." There is little doubt in the minds of most doctors that cigarette smoking over years is like pouring gasoline on a flame.

Smoke keeps on irritating the bronchial tubes and the lung surfaces until inflammatory changes take place. Even the cilia (hair-like) which line the tubes become ineffective. Mucus collects in the lungs and produces the coughing and expectoration.

But that is not all. Undoubtedly your doctor has told you that you are a candidate for emphysema (or, already have it). Perhaps that's why he said you might die sooner than you should if you didn't quit smoking.

Emphysema, in which there is actual destruction of the air sacs of the lungs, is a common complication of chronic bronchitis, often brought on by excessive smoking.

After a while, the patient becomes short of breath. It gets so bad he can't walk a block or two without gasping for air. Or, worse still, he fights for air even when he is at rest in a chair or in bed.

Later, his heart weakens and its right side fails. (Am I being overly dramatic and scary? Not intentionally. If you want the truth, it's only fair to you — and other readers — to tell it as it is.)

Sugar coating won't help the potential emphysema patient who insists in smoking. What I believe me, Mrs. W., you are much too young to throw away at least another quarter century of useful living — on a bad habit that can be broken.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can a person be allergic to cold? When I perspire and walk into an air conditioned room, my body (sometimes from head to toe) breaks out into red, itchy hives or welts.

If I walk into a supermarket, and come near the freezer area, my face, hands, neck and legs will start to itch and red patches of hives will appear. All disappear when I walk into a warmer room or turn on the heat in my car. Should I see an allergist or am I being silly? — Mrs. T.

COMMENT: Not silly. Not funny. Probably true: that you are allergic to cold. This is not uncommon. I agree with your suggestion. An allergist will give you some advice on how to neutralize or overcome your problem.

* * *

For Mrs. U.: As you say, it's likely that those extra 40 pounds have come from constant nibbling between meals. They can add up to a lot of calories.

If you can't stop nibbling, then change your nibbling habits from sweets and other tidbits to nibbling on carrots and chewing celery. It's not the nibbling but what you nibble that matters.

* * *

For Mrs. L.: The fontanel is the soft spot on a baby's head, where the bones on top of the skull haven't yet grown together. Don't be concerned because it hasn't closed in you yearold boy. In some children it closes by 9 months; in others, not until 18 months — or longer.

Obituaries and Funerals

JAMES BRONSON (Bancroft)

TWEED — After a lengthy illness, Bancroft lost one of its most respected citizens when James Bronson died in Peterborough Civic Hospital at the age of 73 years.

Born and raised in Harmon, Mr. Bronson's parents were Simon Bronson and the former Elizabeth Keeler. He spent the majority of his years in Mayo Township, where he was born, as a successful farmer.

During these years he was keenly interested in the affairs of the township and for ten years was Reeve of Mayo Township. In 1935 he became Warden of the County of Hastings. In 1947 he moved to Bancroft, opened an insurance office, and for twenty-two years was a representative of the Manufacturers Life. His interest in municipal and county affairs never faltered and again he shouldered responsibility by becoming a councillor for the village of Bancroft.

Mr. Bronson was a faithful adherent of Bancroft Bible Chapel until ill - health forced him to curtail his activities.

Surviving are his wife, the former Isabel Catherine Stringer, his son, Allan of Bancroft; and a daughter, (Mildred) Mrs. Floyd Caverly, Tweed; (Thelma) Mrs. Jack Peck, Demorestville, (Gladmona) Mrs. Russell Hawley, Bancroft, (Edytha) Mrs. Langdon of Peterborough and (Elsie) Mrs. D. Martin of Oshawa.

Funeral service was held at the Bancroft Bible Chapel by Mr. Doug Robinson and Mr. William Belch. Interment was in Harmon Cemetery.

During his life, Mr. Bronson had amassed a wide circle of friends from all stations of life. More than 300 people gathered to pay their last respects at the funeral. Acting as honorary bearers were past wardens Bill Davis, Calvin White, Clarke Rollins, Leo Grills, Thomas Burnside, Clayton Hall, Charles Long, Jack Brown, Les McLaren, Harold Varty, Fred Mitchell and Arthur McCarey, as well as Bertrell Bateman, Warden Don Rodgers and Earl Hawley. Deputy Reeve of Bancroft and Gerald Caldwell, Superintendent of Hastings Centennial Manor.

Active bearers were: Ross, Gerald and Blair Bronson, Walter Jones, Brett Grigg and Conrad Brownson.

Writing in his column — "Outdoors In North Hastings, Charlie Hunt made the following reference to Mr. Bronson — Another well-known sportsman in the person of Jim Bronson has passed on to the happy hunting ground. Born and raised in this district he was one of our best known and best citizens in every respect. His honesty and fair dealings with everyone he encountered were the cornerstones of his existence and few men can be remembered by so many hundreds, indeed thousands, of friends who took pride in stating simply "I knew Jim Bronson, he was a good man." His fruitful old deer rifle will miss him this fall, and the community will miss his leadership for many a year to come. Our sympathy goes out to Mrs. Bronson and her family.

Council Informed Installations Delayed

MARMORA — The Marmora Village Council began the year with high hopes of carrying out water extension installations, the rebuilding of Forsythe Street from the village limits to Highway 7, co-ordinating sidewalk installation in co-operation with the Hastings County Road Rebuilding Plans from No. 7 north, and a start on the river park north of the bridge.

Although the Council has taken all the steps necessary to facilitate these improvements, the fact of the matter is that permission has not yet been received from the Water Resources Commission and the Municipal Board for the water extension, and it has just been learned that only preliminary work on Forsythe Street may be carried out this Fall and completed after May 1, 1970.

Because the park is being planned on a long term program and because fill from both the water installation and the road work will be required before much work can be done there, there is less concern in this area.

Although this year's Council has been handicapped by the untimely death of Ed McNamara, and prolonged illness of Bill Monk as well as that of the clerk - treasurer, Miss Miriam Savage, nonetheless, every effort has been made to keep these works on schedule, and it is hoped that the citizens of the community and the merchants on the main street will be understanding, and, with the Council, patient-await authorization for these projects.

County Councillors Visit Historic Home

NAPANEE — Last week the members of the Lennox and Addington County Council came for dinner at Allan Macpherson house, which is owned by the county and maintained and administered by the County Historical Society.

County Council members thoroughly enjoyed themselves and their dinner, from the apple juice to the pie, ably, deftly carved by Dr. Allan Hawley and all good things that go with it, on to the pie in variety.

After dinner, Warden Harold Crediton complimented the women on the dinner, and spoke of the spotless condition of the house and the attractiveness of the gardens, both of which they had toured before dinner. Each room had been made gay with flowers to welcome the guests. Mrs. Hugh Ramsay had the assistance of Mrs. Frances Walter, the curator, in arranging them.

Arrangements for the event had been made by the women who are members of the board of management; Mrs. Norman Hutchison, president of the Historical Society, Mrs. David Smith, and Mrs. Ramsay. They were assisted by Mrs. Arnold Rogers, Mrs. R. G. Fretts and Mrs. Lorne Clark.

During the morning 26 pupils of the Napanee District Secondary School made a tour of the house.

'I Met A Man Who Had Some Money And Became A Producer by Accident'

NEW YORK (AP) — "I be-money," came a producer by accident." The remark is typical of the remarked-before Kramer, writer-director-producer whose work has been nominated started his career as a backlot factotum for an Academy carpenter and who for nearly a award but never won an Oscar quarter of a century has been

"After the Second World War, one of the most controversial I met a man who had some figures in an industry whose first motto is, "Don't make waves."

Kramer, however, has been rolling the waters since 1948, when he made Home of the Brave. Hollywood's first important film about anti-Negro prejudice.

Although his latest film, The Secret of Santa Vittoria, is a comedy drama, the producer has preferred to make pictures dealing with the social and individual problems of mankind in a world racked by fear, greed, selfishness and injustice.

Among them have been The Defiant Ones, High Noon, Inherit the Wind, Death of a Salesman, The Caine Mutiny, On the Beach, and Guess Who's Coming to Dinner.

Kramer is unruffled by the fact he has no Oscars to adorn his mantle.

"They're a real help at the box office," he acknowledged. "But I can't visualize myself weeping over whether I ever won or lost anything."

But at 55, white-haired but trimly built as a boxer, Kramer is annoyed at the implication of some critics that he is beginning to pull his punches and has gone soft.

Sure, my attitudes have changed a lot," he said. "They damn well better change because the world has changed a lot in the last 25 years.

"Then I was part of the literature of pre-revolution ,and now the revolution is here and I don't quite know where I belong.

"Men of reason and progressive outlook must come to grips with themselves and help redraw the lines—maybe this is the function of what I call the discarded liberal."

Kramer may feel he has been discarded by more radical elements in the fight for social justice, but he disavows any idea that he is a "tired liberal."

Adult Rehabilitation Workshop Opens Doors to First Trainees

NAPANEE — The Lennox and Addington Adult Rehabilitation Centre, or workshop, as it is popularly called, opened its doors to its first trainees Monday morning, and manager-director Bill Pollard stated that evening that the three youths and two girls who attended were happy to find themselves usefully employed.

Mr. Pollard is planning to make furniture refinishing the first project for the young men, and stated he can see completed cleaning off a wide pine picture frame, removing the paint and sanding the wood ready for finishing. As they gain skill, they will progress to more difficult pieces, and eventually to all types of such work, he believes.

Equipment now is scanty and simple, but adequate. Later on there will be need of an electric sander and an electric saw. Unless interested organizations or friends donate these items, they must be purchased by the Association for the Mentally Retarded, which is responsible for the centre. So far they have only a salvaged workbench and the scrapers and sandpaper necessary for the hand work.

For the two girls there is a table, and today they began their work in crafts, making the first of the articles Mr. Pollard hopes to be purchased at the pre-Christmas bazaar. He is appealing for materials which are probably lying idle in many homes such as Christmas cards, bright ribbons, pine cones, and old copies of the Reader's Digest. He will pick up any of these materials if you telephone him.

A third girl is hoping to come, but must wait her doctor's decision about attending during cold weather.

Later on an electric sewing machine will be needed for the girls, and the OSTOC Club is hoping to fill this need by making use of a grocery store sales slips, which it continues to collect.

Mr. Pollard is full of plans for other forms of work. Gardening is to be started this fall, preparing beds and putting in bulbs. He is planning, also, to have them care for house plants which he has already been offered.

Only the trainable retarded attend the centre, and in his visits to other workshops, Mr. Pollard has learned that once such people learn a skill they never forget it, and their concentration on their work, which is their life, often makes them produce more work in a given time than a normal person can or will produce. These special people can be left alone and will not take time off for other things. He has great faith in their potential.

Just now attention will focus on training in refinishing furniture, as Mr. Pollard has a market already lined up. People have been approaching him wanting such work done. A woman who does canning has offered to teach it to the trainees.

For the small office, Mr. Pollard needs a desk of some sort, and is hoping one will be donated. But the needs for the work of the trainees comes first, he says.

The dream of the Lennox and Addington County Association for the Mentally Retarded came true Monday.

Little Fauss, Big Halsy

It's No Hell's Angels Epic

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yes, this picture is about motorcycle racing, but please—it's not about the Hell's Angels," said Canadian director Sidney Furie with emphasis.

He had good reason for making the distinction. Furie had returned to Hollywood after spending 13 weeks and $2,500,000 of Paramount money in filming Little Fauss and Big Halsy. The title roles are played by Robert Redford and Michael J. Pollard, who do not portray motorcycle gang leaders.

They roam the country racing cycles for money at tracks.

"These motorcycle racers are a special breed of fearless men," said the director, formerly of Toronto. "Until now, their story has never been told in films."

Furie and his producer, Albert S. Ruddy, chose to tell it in a way that is favored by more and more film-makers nowadays: on the road. The company shot in and around Tucson and Los Angeles, ending production at the impressive new Sears Point Raceway at Sonoma, Calif., north of San Francisco.

Not a single shot was made at Paramount studio.

"I'm not anti-studio," said Furie, who first achieved fame in England with The Leather Boys and The Ipcress File.

Mr. Ed Picture, The Lawyer was filmed on the studio, and m yoext one probably will be.

"But I think Little Fauss and Big Halsy needs to have an authentic feel to it, and you can't get that in studio sets. We even shot interiors of motel rooms in actual motel rooms. You can sense the difference on film."

Producer Ruddy, making his feature debut after creating Hogan's Heroes for television, noted the advantages of location filming. The film avoided the studio overhead, which can amount to 30 per cent of the total cost. And there is a certain esprit which comes with a company that lives and works together.

"It pays off—we finished eight days ahead of schedule," said Ruddy.

Furie seemed to have solved his technical problems, but what about the matter of educating the public that Little Fauss isn't about motorcycle gangs?

"That doesn't worry me," he said. "Audiences are so smart nowadays that they can 'sniff' what a picture is about before it opens.

"They either want to see it or they don't. And if they don't, no amount of publicity and advertising will convince them."

Prudential Finance Creditors Will Sue Ontario Government

TORONTO (CP) — Creditors of the bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd., voted Sunday to sue the Ontario government and the Ontario Securities Commission for negligence in the collapse of the Toronto-based company in 1966.

The lawsuit proposal won unanimous support from 600 persons at a general meeting of the Prudential Finance Creditors' Association of Ontario.

Harry Westlake, association president, said the Ontario creditors will attempt to collect 100 per cent of their own losses, but residents of other provinces will have to take separate action.

He said the Ontario action probably would not come before the courts until next September.

The 8,500 unsecured creditors hurt by the collapse are still seeking repayment of about $20,000,000.

J. L. Biddell of Clarkson and Co. Ltd., trustees for Prudential, told the meeting they will be paid five cents on the dollar in November and a final payment in late 1971. Total payments will be about 15 per cent of losses.

The creditors decided to sue after being read two letters from B. C. Howard, chief legal investigator of the securities commission, explaining that prosecution of four principals of the bankrupt company has been blocked by a legal technicality.

A lower-court decision, upheld on appeal in January this year, dismissed 27 charges against the men because they had been signed by the minister of financial and commercial affairs, not the attorney-general.

"This was the best-kept secret in Ontario in 20 years," Mr. Westlake said. "We were appalled and shocked. . . .

"We found out only by writing to Mr. Howard."

The creditors' legal adviser, James Renwick, deputy leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, told the meeting the lawsuit will be probably be appealed regardless of outcome and will cost the association between $30,000 and $50,000.

The cost will be met by assessing Ontario creditors $3 for $1,000 dollars lost in the collapse.

Mr. Renwick said the negligence suit will be based on the claim that the securities commission knew Prudential was bankrupt after meeting with the company's officers in June, 1963, but permitted the company to file a prospectus and sell notes until its collapse three years later.

Many Employees Leave Strike-hit Nickel Firm

SUDBURY (CP) — Many men have quit the strike-hit International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. plant here but how many is a matter of argument between the company and the union.

Union spokesmen say other mining companies are doing their best to get men to leave Inco by advertising for miners and setting up hiring teams in downtown hotels.

About 18,000 Inco workers struck here and at Port Colborne, Ont., have been on strike since July 10 and an additional 2,200 went out one day later at nearby Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd.

Meri Day, recording secretary of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America, said in a weekend interview that 2,-000 men have asked pickets for permission to go through their lines to get severance pay and quit.

A spokesman for John Pigott, assistant vice-president of Ontario operations, said the number is 750.

Rev. J. James Delaney, a Roman Catholic priest whose church is near Inco's main office at Copper Cliff, said the company is incorrect or mistaken.

"I know what is going on here," he said. "The men go back and forth in front of my church as they go to the pay office. At least 2,000 have gone, and they are the youngest, best men."

He has been attacking the company in every Sunday sermon and parish bulletin since the strike started.

The Inco company made $80,-000,000 in the first half of this year but it doesn't want to part with a cent, . . . Increased profit is OK, a raise for cabinet ministers is fine, a bonus, a stock option for directors is beautiful. But as soon as the lunch-pail boys want something to fatten the pay of less than home pay, somebody screams inflation!"

At Falconbridge, Weir Reid, an executive of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, said 200 men have quit and several hundred more are working out of town on temporary employment permits.

He said 66 men had a farewell party in a group in the union hall after being hired for a mine at Chibougamau, Que.

Results of the strike here have been varied.

A spokesman at the Sudbury office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission said an additional 5,000 persons have been laid off in subsidiary industries — trucking, contracting, the railways, the retail and wholesale trades and the restaurant business.

When a municipal tax instalment fell due July 21, 11 days after the strike began, everybody paid, said Sudbury's chief tax collector, Gino Pollesel. When the final payment came in August about 89 per cent did.

Robert Bowen, chief building inspector, said the most building permits in the city's history have been issued since the strike started, chiefly for repairs to strikers' homes.

Most retailers, however, feel the loss of qualified miners and smelter men to other companies will speed Inco into making a settlement. They think the loss of trained men is more serious in the eyes of the company than the complaints of customers who are running out of nickel.

Average wages under the old contracts at both companies were $3.08 an hour.

Your Car

Specialist's Attention Needed For Fluctuating Speedometer

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"For the last year I have been widowed and I have three small children. My late husband left me a modest estate and while not wealthy, with some part time work I can get by. I have learned to drive the family car (a six cylinder Ford which is five years old), and while it is a financial burden it provides transportation to my summer cottage that the children enjoy, so please don't suggest selling it.

I need your advice on two things. First, the car needs a new set of tires. One man quoted me $80 to install new tires but my regular service station tells me that at this price they would not be safe, and that the least I should spend is $140.

Except for the 40-mile run to the cottage at speeds of less than 80 mph, all my driving will be in the city. The car travels about 4,000 miles per year and at the most, I'll only keep it for three more years.

Next, the brakes need relining. One guy gave me a price of $35 for new linings and other odds and ends. But again my regular service station wants $50 to do the job. They claim that the brakes might fail if some a n r i of wheel cylinder work is not done. I can't afford this extra expense. What is your opinion?" — H. W., Hamilt o n, Ont.

Your regular service station is right on one count and wrong on another.

Regarding tires, either they don't know what they are talking about or they are trying to push you into a premium tire that you really don't need. Today, government ruling is such that regardless of price, all new tires must meet minimum safety standards. Since your car is of intermediate size, you drive on short trips at less than 60 mph, you only expect to travel another 12,000 miles, the $80 tires will be more than adequate. With proper care they will still be in good condition when you dispose of the car.

When it comes to the brake work, I agree wholeheartedly with your regular station. It is likely the four hydraulic wheel cylinders have never been overhauled before and to ignore them when the brakes are being relined would be false economy. The brake f l u i d could leak out of one or more of these cylinders a few miles after the job is done, resulting in complete and sudden brake failure.

If the master cylinder has never been overhauled — and it is doubtful that it has, it too should be dismantled, inspected and repaired or replaced, depending on condition.

When replacing the brake lining on my car the wheel cylinders are overhauled on each occasion, and a new master cylinder is included during the second reline. With the hydraulic system, preventive maintenance is far more logical approach than waiting for sudden failure.

Strictly Personal

He Made Up for Bad Days

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

With my accustomed celerity, I changed the flat tire in something under an hour and rolled into the nearest gas station to see if the old spare was still taable.

The service station man—whom I had never seen before — put a patch on the tube. When I asked "How much?" he waved me off. "It's on the house," he said.

My curiosity struggled with my gratitude, and the former won. "It's very kind of you," I burbled, "but why are you doing this for a stranger?"

"Well," he said, "yesterday morning I woke up as mean as a beaver with a toothache. If my own mother had come in here dying of thirst, I don't think I'd have given her a glass of water. I hit everybody who came in sight.

"This morning I woke up feeling fine. So today I'm making up for yesterday. Favors for the customers — kind words for the help. That's how I pay off for the bad days."

As I drove off, I reflected on the rarity of this attitude. Few of us balance our emotional accounts as promptly and scrupulously as this gas-station man.

We talk about "guilt" and "repentance" in a grand sense. We wait until we have done something really bad in order to make up for it. We permit our debits to grow to staggering proportions and then we are overwhelmed by them.

This man sensibly settles his accounts day by day. Tuesday's bouquet to the world (at least in part) for Monday's crankiness; the slate is wiped clean, the books are balanced, and there is no lingering residue of remorse.

And I am sure he does this not because of any profound psychological knowledge, but because of any pietistic principles, but simply because his inborn wisdom tells him that this is the way to feel good over the long pull.

"Mental hygiene" is a pompous phrase, but essentially it is as simple as physical hygiene: a matter of day-to-day care in little things. That tiny patch the gas-station man put on for free saved not only a dollar—it saved him a week's worry about yesterday's meanness.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

FOR TUESDAY, SEPT 23

Your birthday today: This year the Sun changes from Virgo to Libra in the tropical zodiac at 1:07 a.m. (EST) today. In other years the change has been at different hours, occasionally on the day before or day after, depending on the year and the astronomic facts of the time. The year ahead for today's Virgoans is complex and involves basic change of career; for Libras born today the year is much smoother with the changes focused more on personal life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): It is wiser not to telegraph your intentions today. Work from the protection of institutions, physical or symbolic. A search will reveal facts which can be turned into cash.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cultivate your friends and associates. Offer an apology where you feel it might be appropriate from the other fellow's view and proceed. Observe your regular health care activities rigorously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Tidy up the loose ends, push directly through the day's work without becoming involved in side issues. Older people will help with details of neglected matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Self-improvement programs and progress necessary you must today. The challenge is to find the time and energy to change yourself from within while carrying on the routines. Celebrate your success a bit tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The chances are that you are attempting too much change and improvement in too short a time. Strike a balance with mate or partner to avoid future distress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Settle any imbalance in your relations with those you care about you, while the opportunity is strongly favored. Distant conditions must be taken into account for accomplishment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your ability to see both sides of everything serves to an excellent degree now. Begin to follow a more independent course. It is your responsibility to make sure it is really independent instead of merely different from conformity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Life is pleasant enough today with a chance to advance the welfare of mate and associates while doing well for yourself. Avoid haste, concentrate on details of creative quality. Serious study is suggested for the evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec 21): The morning finds you at odds with yourself over some casual thing; your unconscious conflicts do not permit simple acceptance of your own deed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Attend the affairs of all those who depend on you for advice and guidance. Daily routines promise to be just that, no large demands or problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Confidential matters come to your attention and require early solutions. Home improvements are favored, no matter at what level, so see what you can do.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your friends all have too many ideas about money and how to invest it. Your social needs bring more people into your life as time goes on, including occasional individuals who do not see life in your terms at all.

Urban Renewal Study Ends to Aid Plaza Bid

Council Gives Backing To Economic Research

Belleville city council has moved to discontinue the $36,000 urban renewal study being carried out by town planners Procter and Redfern and will hire another firm of consultants to do an economic study to be ready in time for the Oct. 27 re-hearing into the north-end plaza question.

The action was taken yesterday following receipt of a letter from Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. which said the firm was convinced that there was little hope for Ontario Municipal Board approval of its plaza project as long as the urban renewal study was in progress.

Two weeks ago in a closed caucus session council voted to suspend the urban renewal study until receipt of Procter and Redfern's preliminary report, expected sometime after Sept. 19.

Yesterday, however, this report still had not been received at city hall, although Mayor J. Russell Scott said the firm had advised the city it was in the mail.

The mayor said that according to the Cambridge Leaseholds letter, this firm was convinced the plaza would again be turned down by the OMB if the city's renewal study continued. He said the same would apply for the proposed Four Seasons motel on the city's waterfront which is being opposed by a north-end motel operator.

"We must decide either to stop the urban renewal study and get the plaza, or continue the study and lose the plaza" he said.

Alderman Kenneth Soden moved to stop the present urban renewal study

Jordan Canal Again Open

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Water is flowing through Jordan's Ghor irrigation canal again as the result of another secret deal between Jordan and Israel.

Informed sources said Israel for the second time had agreed to let Jordan repair the canal unmolested in return for Jordanian agreement to enforce the Arab-Israeli ceasefire in the Jordan and Beisan valleys. Eyewitnesses reported that a 30-man crew began temporary repairs Monday and that the water was flowing again by late Monday afternoon.

The United States acted as the go-between in the negotiations, which Jordan requested, the sources said.

The 40-mile canal transports water from the Yarmuk River to northern Jordan's fertile valleys. Israeli commandos blew up a section of it on June 23 in retaliation for Arab guerrilla activity in the area. During July the United States was a go-between at Jordan's request, and Israel agreed to let the canal alone if Jordan curbed the guerrillas.

Shortly after the canal reopened, however, guerrilla activity resumed along the border. Israli jets hit the canal again Aug. 16.

Despite the new agreement, an Israeli spokesman reported a rocket attack Sunday night from Jordan on a kibbutz four miles south of the Sea of Galilee as its residents observed Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement.

Russia Pledges To Reply Soon

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Kremlin has sent word that it will reply "soon" to President Nixon's bid to begin U.S.-Soviet talks on curbing the nuclear arms race.

This message from Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to State Secretary William Rogers Monday night fell short of U.S. hopes. It meant indefinite further delay on the already much-delayed disarmament parley the two powers agreed long ago to hold.

Probe Asked Police Report Assailed

"How come the new shows look like the old shows when they were new?"

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A Brantford police constable suspended Sept. 12 and now facing two charges under the Ontario Police Act has called for a public inquiry into the city police force.

Constable Ronald Stockdale, 36, a 15-year veteran of the force, says he wants the inquiry to show details of a special investigation earlier this year by the Ontario Police Commission.

The constable was interviewed Monday after he appeared before Chief George Kerr and was granted a week-long adjournment on Police Act charges of communicating to the public press without permission and being a part-owner in a private business.

Constable Stockdale said he wants the public inquiry so the commission will be forced to release its full report on the Brantford police force.

He claimed the commission secretly reviewed details of criminal activities by some force members, but released only an edited version of its findings to the public.

Safeguard's Daily Cost Over Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Army will spend $1,300,000 a day from now through Nov. 3 on Safeguard anti-missile research just to keep the big project alive pending full congressional approval.

The expenditures were authorized by the army Monday. Specifically, the Army awarded $55,000,000 in Western Electric, prime contractor of the system, to use under an outstanding research and development contract totalling $249,650,000.

Money for that contract technically is provided in the defence budget for fiscal year 1970, but the budget has not completed the legislative route through Congress.

350 Dead Rioting Controls Relaxed

AHMEDABAD (Reuters) — Indian troops and police controlling Ahmedabad, where the death toll in Hindu-Moslem rioting neared 400, today relaxed an around-the-clock curfew for the first time since it was imposed Friday.

The last official figures given for the death toll were 94 in Ahmedabad and five in Baroda, 100 miles to the southeast, but unofficial reports from hospitals, police and mortuaries put the deaths at more than 350. About 700 persons were injured.

The curfew in this city of 1,600,000 people was lifted for three hours today in the areas worst hit by the rioting, sparked by a minor Hindu-Moslem incident, in two districts west of the Sabarmati River it was relaxed completely.

Thousands lined up outside stores and bakeries for food. Cars, rickshaws and other vehicles reappeared on the streets.

Ahmedabad, the Gujarat state capital, was fairly quiet overnight. Ban on gatherings of more than four persons and the carrying of arms and explosives will continue in force.

Michigan Posse Turned Back By OPP from Canadian Island

WALPOLE ISLAND, Ont. (CP) — A Michigan sheriff and posse, armed with shotguns and hand guns and accompanied by a tracking dog, landed by boat and helicopter on this Canadian Indian reserve island Monday, but were turned back by Ontario Provincial Police.

St. Clair County police said they were on the trail of a man wanted in connection with the shooting death Sunday of a policeman at Romeo Mich.

The United States policemen were told by provincial police that a warrant issued for the arrest of Vernon H. Jones, 36, of Dryden, Mich. could not be applied to Canadian territory. .

They were also told that a Canadian warrant obtained under extradition agreements would have to be secured before arrest on a murder charge could be made.

Walpole Island is at the mouth of the St. Clair River in Lake St. Clair.

The St. Clair County police said the tracking dog traced the man from a truck abandoned in Marine City, Mich., to a dock where a boat was stolen.

The 14-foot craft, powered by a 75 horsepower engine, was reported on the north side of the island at noon Monday and spotted by police in a helicopter.

Provincial police and RCMP searched the island Monday without a warrant. They were expected to get a warrant today to continue their search.

Jones is a Canadian Indian and a native of Walpole Island.

Marriage Postponed

U.S. Security Check Irks Martin's Daughter

TORONTO (CP) — Mary Ann Martin, daughter of Paul Martin, Senate government leader and former external affairs minister, has postponed marrying a United States Peace Corps volunteer to avoid a U.S. government security check.

Miss Martin said in a letter to a friend here that her fiance, Michael Bellamy, 26, of Cleveland, is "as remote from classified information as a janitor in the House of Commons."

He is an English teacher at Chandigarh, about 150 miles north of Delhi, India.

Miss Martin, a French teacher in India, met Mr. Bellamy last Christmas and they had planned to marry before he finishes his tenure with the Peace Corps next April.

The U.S. Embassy at Delhi insisted on the security check although the marriage was approved earlier by the area director of the Peace Corps.

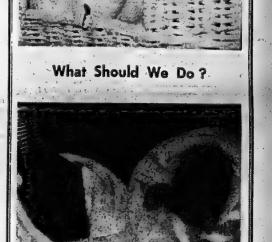
"I felt indignant fury," Miss Martin said. "He's not a diplomat . . . . did the bureaucrats in the American Embassy . . . not consider that Canada and the U.S. were good enough friends that my father's name should be recommendation enough as to my moral character?"

In Ottawa, her father would not comment on the situation.

A spokesman for the U.S. consulate here said the "alien" spouse in such marriages cannot legally live in the U.S. without a visa and "administrative clearance" is necessary before a visa can be granted.

Rejection of visa applications can be based on membership in the Communist Party or a criminal record.

If the couple decide to live in the U.S. the security check still would be necessary before Miss Martin could obtain a visa.



They are reported uncertain at this point where they will live when they are married.

Hastings County Education

'We're So Far Ahead, It's Not Funny'

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Public education in Hastings County is in better shape than in most other jurisdictions in Ontario.

That message was brought back from the meeting with Minister of Education William Davis in Toronto last Monday by the county's director of education and board chairman, James Clarke.

"We are so far ahead of other boards in the province, it isn't even funny," remarked Mr. Clarke. "We find at these sessions most boards are so negative that sitting through a meeting is depressing."

The minister's stern warning to overall education spending could be dangerous if taken too literally in Hastings, director of education Eric Ruseeres warned.

The county's per pupil cost for instruction and educational services equals the provincial average, he said.

"But we are way down on all other expenditures, including cost of administration," he said. "I hope the department of education remembers this."

Hasting board's budget estimates for 1969 allow $23 per pupil for administration. The provincial average in 1968 was $73 per pupil.

"If we are to provide the quality education that you want, we must be allowed to raise this figure," Mr. Ruseeres told the trustees. "Hastings County should not stop its operations to the same extent as the richer boards."

"Our board put its priorities down in clear order at the start," he added. "This is lacking in other boards across the province."

Another point in the county's favor noted the director was the way its trustees "managed to retain their sense of humor and relish their job, when others across the province were on a crying jag over curtailing of educational spending."

"With education taking 42 per cent of the Ontario budget this year, the minister is naturally anxious to restrain spending," noted Mr. Clarke.

"Did you ask about expenditures on community colleges?" queried trustee Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Tweedsmuir.

"In this county, it costs 15 cents on every dollar in the budget to get the children to school before we can begin to educate them," Mr. Ruseeres reminded the board. "If we had that $1,000,000 for special education and psychological services, think what we could do."

School Board Saves $55,000 on Insurance

Savings promised under larger units of school administration have occurred in one Board of Education operations.

Students May Help Build New Wing

Students at Centre Hastings Secondary School may help build their own $2,000,000 addition.

The possibility was brought up at the board of education meeting in Madoc last night by Douglas Graham, head of the school's technical department.

He sought assurance in a letter to the board that students were protected by insurance when they were on the construction sites.

Later, he said clearance from two unions was required before the students could join workers in actual construction, but he hopes occupations students will eventually gain on-the-job training in working on their own school.

With protection assured science, technology and trades students at three levels — five-year, four-year and occupations — will begin to visit the construction site during classes to observe electrical and structural steel installation and bricklaying procedures.

A saving in premiums for insurance protection of $55,000 over a three-year period was reported to the board last night at its meeting at Madoc Public School.

"In this era of inflation, when many of the new county school boards are being accused of spending taxpayers' money recklessly, cost reductions are unusual," said Paul Fleming, chairman of the insurance committee.

"When such reductions amount to thousands of dollars, are about one-third the former costs and are accompanied, with greater benefits, such information should be made known to the ratepayers and to the department of education," he continued.

The board's insurance requirement were tendered and the contract awarded to Dale and Company Ltd. for an annual premium of $27,526.

The board had been paying premiums of $53,903 a year.

The savings this year in premium payments is $18,377. In the three-year period for which most of the policies are written, the savings will amount to about $55,000.

Communication History Explained to Rotary Club

One day last Christmas, Lee Kursewicz of the Bata Shoe Company asked a young woman employee of Batawa post office "Why do people send Christmas cards?"

Mr. Kursewicz was mailing some cards of his own. She replied, "Doesn't the time go well?"

Another time a man might say to his wife, "Are you going shopping today," and receive the reply, "I am probably going to do the laundry."

The Bata company's vice-president and general manager gave these illustrations of how people can never be sure whether their message is getting through.

Children for example, asked where they were going might reply simply, "Out," without giving any details. Or "What are you doing?" Answer: "Nothing." And so on.

Addressing Belleville Rotarians yesterday on the subject of communication, ranging from the poor pictures and smoke signals Indians used to the modern practice of holding seminars, not to mention the most common mode of all — the telephone Mr. Kursewicz said people retain only 30 per cent of what they hear and 40 per cent of what they see.

With the aid of slides and a printed questionnaires, Mr. Kursewicz tested a group of 30 Rotarians on their visual impressions of different advertising material. Their answers, while of generally similar character, differed frequently on specifics.

It all went to prove Mr. Kursewicz's enjoinder to his audience not to take what they hear as gospel and always to check facts.

There was, for example the Bata employee for whom he had ordered a stogy window. After many false starts and recalculations, and hang-ups in communication — despite every effort to get the storm window to its destination — it finally arrived, at the home of his brother.

In general Rotary business president Bob Lanning announced the club was donating $100 to the walkathon fund for the new recreation centre area.

Executive Elected

Jae Rollins was selected president of the local Boy Scouts Association at the annual meeting Monday night in St. Thomas Church hall.

Groups other than Scouts made use of the Vanderwater site. It was also noted that Scouts and leaders and committee members helped in the building program.

The speaker of the evening was Herbert W. Page, regional commissioner for the greater Toronto region who spoke on the latest trends in the world Scout program.

The ladies auxiliary of St. Thomas Church catered for the dinner and Bob Wilson chaired the meeting.

OPP Identify Skeleton As Drowned Hunter

A skeleton found in Wesleman Lake three weeks ago has been satisfactorily identified as the remains of a hunter drowned in 1955.

Results of laboratory tests yesterday indicate the skeleton was that of Gerald Appleby, a Frankford area man, aged 35 years at the time of his disappearance during a storm on the big lake 60 miles northeast of Madoc.

The tests, coupled with clothing found near the bones, satisfactorily established identification, said OPP Dstret Inspector R. L. Bender.

Appleby was crossing the lake with his father, Clayton, and a third man, when their boat was swamped in a sudden storm.

Both Appleys drowned, the older man's body being found by searchers shortly after.

The skeleton was spotted Aug. 30 by an American tourist, sightdiving in the area of the drowning.

Police searched the lake bed for three days to recover the bones and pieces of clothing still intact.

What About That One?

Mrs. Muriel Andrews, of the Quinte Arts Council, confers with Victoria and Grey Branch Manager Jack Mosley, making another choice for the company's art display scheduled for Belleville Week. The 25 paintings, by Canadian artist will be on public view during business hours at the Victoria and Grey office.

Trust Firm Art Show Belleville Week Feature

Bellevillians with a taste for art will go home more than satisfied if they visit Victoria and Grey Trust Company during Belleville Week, Sept. 26 to Oct. 4.

The art form will not consist of depositing money, but viewing some 25 paintings that will be on display for the public during the big week.

The paintings, explained Victoria and Grey branch manager Jack Mosley, are from a collection which has been in the company for many years.

"We are receiving invaluable assistance from Mrs. Muriel Andrews and Mrs. Alaneen Murray of the Quinte Arts Council — I don't know what we would do without them," said Mr. Mosley.

Choices had to be made from more than 138 paintings, a collection which Mrs. Andrews termed "most comprehensive — an excellent investment".

The majority of paintings are done by Toronto-oriented, nationally recognized artists, such as Ralph Allen of Kingston, Franklin Arbuckle, A. J. Casson and Allan C. Collier.

The two artistic task masters have a wealth of experience to back up their choices. Mrs. Andrews is the past president of the Belleville Art Association, and Mrs. Murray represents the Association on the Quinte Arts Council.

"I'm sure the public will enjoy these paintings. We have attempted to choose a variety in the type of paintings that will be shown," remarked Mrs. Andrews.

The idea for the display as the company's contribution in Belleville Week, came from general manager and vice-president of Victoria and Grey, R. R. Merifield.

Paintings will be brought from eastern and western Ontario — where they are now hanging in company offices.

Mrs. Andrews was firm in her view that the showing will be a success. "I think the company will see that quite a few people are interested and will take the time to stop in and look."

Parks Permits No Longer Needed

PICTON (Staff) — Those lazy, crazy days of summer ended at Outlet Provincial Park yesterday with the closing of all toll booths.

Visitors to Outlet Park, the Sandbanks and North Beach provincial parks can now drive through without securing permits or daily passes.

While none of Prince Edward County's Provincial Parks officially closes until Thanksgiving weekend, many park facilities have already been shut down.

A few picnic tables dot the parks, but most of them have been stacked for the long winter's nap.

A spokesman for Outlet Beach Park remarked that 1969 seemed a very good year for the camper. "We noticed more campers than usual on the move this summer."

Highest attendance for a single day this summer was recorded at more than 10,000 sun worshippers, according to superintendent R. J. Davison. The figure is quoted for park attendance on civic holiday, Aug. 1.

Only the regular maintenance staff now remains on duty at the park, welcoming visitors stopping to say goodbye to summer.

Would Use Facilities for Hospital, Picton Mayor Battles Homes Sale

PICTON — Despite an announcement that 251 Picton Heights homes, once married quarters for army personnel at former Camp Picton, will be sold privately, Mayor H. J. McFarland continues to plan a hospital for the site.

"As it stands I have been in touch with Ottawa and the provincial government and together they are negotiating to see what can be done," said the mayor this morning.

He added "there will be no private sale of the homes by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation until completion of the negotiations.

An earlier press statement indicated the houses might be offered for sale next month.

Remarked Mayor McFarland: "My thought is to secure a hospital at Picton Heights for the aged and mentally ill."

He explained that the facilities of former Camp Picton could readily accommodate from 600 to 1,000 patients from Prince Edward and outside points.

The mayor stressed the overall suitability of the proposed hospital location and referred to its inspection by several government ministers including former Ontario health minister Matthew Dymond.

"They were very impressed," said Mayor McFarland.

He pointed out the site is removed from noise and traffic and emphasized the attractive surroundings.

Mayor McFarland announced that if the hospital plan materialized, a medical doctor would be in attendance at all times, not possibly, a psychiatrist.

"At least 40 to 50 registered nurses, nurses' assistants and helpers would staff the hospital," he said.

The vacant homes at Picton Heights would provide housing facilities for staff members and families. The churches and 11-roomed school could be used as well.

"I can't see why the government would sell these homes, for if they would get off their fannies here is something worth $15 to $20 million and ready to use," emphasized the mayor.

Picton Heights includes a 30-acre field where a hospital addition could be built if conditions warranted future expansion.

The Picton mayor is not convinced that the homes in the former military camp would sell readily even if they do become available.

He remarked "some are double homes, some are single and there is likely to be friction among the purchasers."

The mayor reflected that in close community living it could be essential for everyone to co-operate in lawn mowing and general outdoor upkeep.

"It would become a slum area unless the proper people moved in," he added.

The mayor said he understood the asking price for the homes was from $9,000 to $12,000.

If new hospital facilities for the aged and mentally ill are built, the mayor thinks costs would fall onto the taxpayer. On the other hand, if Picton Heights is used, no such expenditures would be necessary.

The mayor stated, however, that he did not oppose private sale of the homes providing they could be used in the proper manner.

He mentioned the continued vacancy and said if the houses were left unoccupied and unheated within a month dampness could heave the plaster.

Today Mayor McFarland expected to leave for Ottawa where he will "try to get them moving."

Concerned for his taxpayers, the mayor said "there is an ill-rumored school vacant in that camp, yet we have just built two school additions with taxpayers' money. How crazy can you get?" he said.

"Here we are with everything to accommodate people at Picton Heights. Imagine the money that will be spent if a hospital comes to locate on the former Picton Camp."

He referred to grocery purchases and to money spent in the county by relatives and friends visiting patients.

Receives Humanity Award

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Mayor Harvey J. McFarland was the recipient last week of a national human relations award plaque at a banquet in Winnipeg to honor Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker.

The Picton mayor was one of 40 invited head table guests at the banquet, sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews (central region). More than 1,000 attended the banquet.

During the banquet Mayor McFarland was cited for his contribution in promoting understanding and co-operation among the people of Canada.

"Mayor McFarland has been eminently successful and influential in maintaining the friendly human touch demonstrating the brotherhood of man under the fatherhood of God, not only by practising it in his personal relations, but by inspiring others to do so," reads the plaque.

Dope Combat Successful

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A U.S. government spokesman says Operation Intercept is doing what it was designed to do—disrupting the contraband-trafficking and reducing the supply of narcotics, other dangerous drugs and marijuana in the United States."

The government has said the crackdown will continue indefinitely.

Shops on the U.S. side of the border, which normally have a large Mexican clientele, reported business almost at a standstill Monday. Many employees who live in Mexico were up to three hours late for work.

Mexican border cities reported tourist trade sharply down.

Officials of the seven U.S. federal agencies co-operating in the drive said they never expected to seize much contraband or make many arrests when the program, announced last week, went into full operation Sunday.

A government spokesman said: "A smuggler would have to be pretty stupid not to take a vacation knowing something like this was coming."

Weekend visitors to Mexico sat in cars up to six hours waiting to get to the inspection gates. Auto exhaust fumes made many ill.

Low Rental Housing Development

PICTON — Picton's 30 low-rental housing units currently under construction by the OHC will be completed by mid-December. The attractive homes are located on Maple Ave. and Disraeli St. Two units are also being erected on Barker Street. Pictonians interested in taking up residence in these modern dwellings must contact the property management department of the OHC to receive application forms. Rental costs are based on the individual's income.

24% Apple Crop Increase Predicted

PICTON — Prince Edward County's apple crop will increase 24 per cent this fall, mainly in variety McIntoshes, according to Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for the Ontario Department of Agriculture in Picton.

Last year in Prince Edward County the yield was recorded at 254,900 bushels. This figure also included produce from about three orchards in Lennox, Addington and Frontenac counties. This fall, apple yields are expected to rise to 314,850 bushels.

Why the marked increase? Mr. Cobbledick said it would be difficult to pinpoint the reason, but a heavy bloom followed by a heavy set could be the result of good pollination.

The apples are now five to seven days behind normal maturity throughout county orchards. Sizing of the apples is a difficult task due to the increased yield.

Mr. Cobbledick estimated that in Prince Edward County there are currently about 100 orchards where apples are grown commercially.

Shortage of pickers could become a problem this fall. In former years many from Camp Picton worked during the apple harvest. With sale of the military base this year, these pickers are unavailable.

Mr. Cobbledick remarked, "These workers will be missed but we won't know to what extent until we start".

It is hoped that with the wind-up of the tomato crop this month, factory workers will turn to apple picking in Prince Edward orchards.

Builders Seek Re-zoning Approval

The Quinte Home Builders' Association would like to see new zoning in certain sub-divisions to provide for a higher density of construction and a reduction on the setback requirement for strictly residential streets.

A list of five recommendations asking for new zoning and other changes were presented to council yesterday by Association president Don Kellar.

Mr. Kellar said his association thinks at least 50 per cent of the lots in certain sub-divisions would be acceptable with 40-foot frontages. This, he said, would create a higher density and reduce servicing costs.

His association also asked that the setback requirement on strictly residential streets be reduced from the present 25 feet to 15 feet.

This would cut down on the cost of lateral service and would allow for more backyard space and better land use.

Changes were also asked in zoning regulations to allow maximum usage of available land for apartment construction.

It was pointed out that the physical nature of all lots do not necessarily lend themselves to one building only.

A builder's capacity to arrange mortgage money could, labour present zoning, restrict the size of the building he might undertake. Immedia i e financing may allow only for a six or 12-unit building. Future expansion is frozen if no other buildings are allowed on the same lot even though a high rise could have been built if money had been available, he said.

The brief said smaller buildings are more economical to build, resulting in lower rents.

The builders' brief was referred to a special committee who will discuss the proposed changes with the traffic committee and planning director.

Property Values Soar On City Real Estate

The city of Belleville has $1,800,000 worth of real estate requiring fire insurance coverage.

This is the suggested valuation of the different city-owned buildings for which insurance renewal was approved yesterday by city council. The valuation is approximately $300,000 more than under previous insurance coverage.

Annual cost of insurance premiums will be $3,357.50.

The most valuable piece of real estate owned by the city is city hall, with an appraised value of $350,000. Next is the arena, $343,000; police headquarters, $256,000; public works garage, $186,000; and the Ben Bleecker Auditorium on the fair grounds, $122,000.

The former Salvation Army building on Pinnacle Street saw the biggest jump in appraised value, an increase — from $20,000 to $60,000.

Committee Hopes To Break Even

Belleville Week Committee hopes "to at least break even" on the cost of staging the program of events to make people more aware of the city's industries.

This was indicated at city council yesterday by Ald. Gerald Joyce. In answer to a question he gave a resume of the Belleville Week committee program and financial arrangements.

"To put people's minds at rest I can say that we hope to at least break even," he said.

Ald. Joyce said the sale of booster buttons was the committee's main source of income, with at least $3,000 expected to be raised this way. The reason for the button program was people involvement and money, he said.

Various industries and organizations had offered money for specific projects, said Ald. Joyce.

REAL ESTATE

WHAT MAKES A HOUSE DIFFICULT TO SELL?

ED McKINNEY
Sales Rep. C.R.E.
Realty Ltd.

There is no single answer, of course, but an experienced realtor can usually spot a problem property ahead of time and suggest a remedy.

I don't mean a place that is simply dilapidated. I mean one that has some basic physical fault, such as no space for a garage, no back yard, an obviously poorly-planned interior, or something of that sort.

Perhaps it is something outside the property itself. It may be an objectionable situation next door — a supermarket, a drive-in restaurant or school — any of which could destroy the peace and quiet of the place.

If you own such a house and want to sell it, seek the counsel of a knowledgeable realtor on how the problem may best be remedied. A high fence may bring the desired privacy to the property. A poorly-planned interior can be remodelled. An obvious drawback can often be minimized by shrubbery or an inexpensive addition.

Get the cost of doing the job and weigh them against the advantages of selling your house quickly at a better price.

Whatever can be done, it is far better to do it than tell a prospective buyer how easy it would be for him to do it when he wonders why you haven't done it yourself.

Mod Teachers

Public school teachers, The Globe and Mail noted at the beginning of the fall term, are getting better looking every year. And they mean some pictures of the comely Toronto girls to prove it.

"With the dowdy schoolmarms obviously out, it's enough to encourage drop-ins," the newspaper said.

But if they are prettier, more with it and mod . . . are they any wiser than those who went before?

Certainly some of the stories that flitter out of school would make you wonder. If the youngsters are naughty, the teachers also have their idiosyncracies.

At least one troublesome boy got strapped the first day at school this September — so who says that great chastener and leveller has lost its effectiveness in today's permissive society? Indeed, we had formed the impression that a teacher practically had to sign in triplicate before witnesses and send it off to the Department of Education before administering the strap or whatever it is they use nowadays.

Occasionally one hears of some devious, perhaps even sadistic method being used to keep small children in line. But happily this is rare and certainly is not countenanced by school authorities. But teachers can be cruel without realizing it. Take the matter of comparisons; whoever coined the phrase "comparisons are odious" knew what he was talking about, for there are teachers who will say of two brothers or two sisters of varying ability, "Oh A is so different from B," meaning of course that one or the other is a better scholar. And they will say this to the parents.

Parents want to know the truth about their children's ability at school, but teachers need to be tactful and compassionate about it. These are qualities of understanding which should go along with those good looks.

NDP Win

The NDP win in the Middlesex South provincial by-election in itself is only a ripple on the surface of the Conservative party's comfortable and long - standing dominance of Ontario politics.

But it will certainly be taken seriously by the Robarts government, for it could have far-reaching implications. NDP leader Donald MacDonald described his party's win as "a microcosm of the whole province," indicating the whole province was ready for a change.

Mr. MacDonald is probably being overly - optimistic, although there are signs that Medicare costs and possible tax increases relating to regional school boards programs, as well as changes in tax assessments are rankling with the electorate.

The new member is Archdeacon Kenneth Bolton, 62, of the Anglican Church. He is one more entrant to politics — and the NDP party — from the ranks of the clergy. Federal NDP leader Tommy Douglas and party colleague Stanley Knowles are two others. It represents an interesting alliance, this one between some members of the clergy and the party of the left in Canada.

Mr. Greene Back

It is good to see Joe Greene, federal minister of energy, mines and resources, back in action again.

Mr. Greene, ill for several months after two heart attacks, appeared at a news conference last week to speak on the subject of Canada's sovereignty in the far north.

The minister urged the Canadian public not to lose their perspective over the United States' oil tanker Manhattan's voyage through the Northwest Passage. He said the economic benefits will reflect on all North America and the question of national control of the waterway will be decided within the next ten years.

Mr. Greene looked a bit frail, yet he spoke with firmness as he reiterated his belief that Canada's sovereignty was not being threatened. We hope his health will stand the testing rigors of office. The minister is still a comparatively young man and in the circumstances he should guard his health well.

A Fine Effort

It was a remarkable effort, that round-the-bay walkathon which has raised an approximate $37,000 toward the cost of a new Belleville recreation centre. More than 1,100 set out on the 30-mile hike and some 771 finished, including seven-year-old Lori Graham and Alex Mountney, 66, the oldest entrant to complete the course. There is a lot of determination involved in such a feat, not to mention muscle. It brings a sense of achievement to those who participated, as well as dollars for a worthy cause. In every respect it was a fine effort.

Former Civil Service Deputy Himself

Mitchell Sharp One of Group to Police Big Spenders

OTTAWA — If and when the federal government gets down to the job of tightening the nuts and bolts on federal spending, the wrench will be in the hands of the five men of Prime Minister Trudeau's powerful "inner cabinet."

It's the special committee on "Priorities and Planning."

It exercises the supreme authority of the veto — and, of course, the stamp of approval — of every one of the federal government's projects and programs.

It has the final decision on how much is to be spent on what.

This is the charmed circle of the "inner government," a cabinet-within-the-cabinet.

Its chairman is, of course, "Himself," the prime minister, who, alone, more than any Man-in-the-East-Block since Mackenzie King, rejoices in the unquestioned power to giveth or taketh away.

Around him, in this inner core of command, are such key men as Finance Minister John Edgar "Ben" Benson, Treasury Board President Charles Mills "Bud" Drury, Regional Economic Expansion Minister Jean "Little Napoleon" Marchand, Privy Council President Donald Stovel "The Big M" Macdonald, and External Affairs Minister Mitchell William Sharp (what's HE doing in that kind of company?)

Likeliest reason for Sharp's inclusion is not just that Pierre-Trudeau seems to think he still owes him something for his support in the leadership race and insists he is "great."

It is simply that "Sharp Mitchell," as they once called him, of all the members of the cabinet best knows where the departmental deputy ministers have their administrative bodies buried.

He was a mandarin himself once, for eight years the deputy minister of trade and commerce schooled by the autocratic old master-of-all-departments, C. D. "Trader" Howe.

Sharp, as an old deputy himself, will be, quick-like-a-fox, onto the tricks and slick administrative sleight-of-hand that the mandarins use to slip their swollen spending programs by the treasury board and the special cabinet committee on "Priorities and Planning."

There is nothing, but not a single thing, any power-loving deputy minister hates more than not being able to spend as much as he thinks his best-possible of all departments should.

Because, if you are a mandarin and not a Big Spender, how on earth are you going to build a big departmental empire.

No way, man, just no way.

Former Prime Minister Lester Pearson, also an ex-deputy, routinely engaged in these cut-backs, phase-outs, and assorted lop-and-chop exercises in the sacred name of government economy in which Pierre Elliott Trudeau currently insists he is vigorously engaged.

But Lester Pearson never managed to pull it off, simply because he didn't really believe it could be done.

So despite all the pious dedication to cutting down spending, nothing happened — except that government costs went up and up and up, dragging along the cost of living and pulling down the value of the dollar.

In a rare moment of utter candor — and not often do deputies tell it the way it is — Lester Pearson revealed how the Big Spenders pull the wool over the eyes of the cabinet and all its committees.

You have your heart set on spending, say maybe $300,000,000 on your department, so you put in for a program of $600,000,000, he related in his revelation of what-makes-government-tick.

The treasury board and cabinet may, if they are perceptive and enormously lucky, cut you back to $350,000,000 and you are still $50,000,000 to the good.

You've got your basic 300 and the other 50 is to play with, Empires are built that way.

He told it with a grin and a who-cares-shrug at a press conference, as a sort of lesson in government psychology.

It is simple. You just "stuff" your departmental spending program with some projects you don't really want and definitely don't need — and you make the treasury board and those cabinet committees feel real good when they lift the sacrificial chainsaw and think they are saving millions.

With Sharp keeping a we're-wise-to-you-guys sharp eye on the Big Spenders, Pierre Trudeau's special cabinet committee on "Priorities and Planning" just might be in the business of economizing.

Letter to the Editor

Ratepayers and Urban Renewal

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Almost unnoticed, a small group, under the banner of "continuation of urban renewal studies", have, after three meetings announced themselves as the West Hill and East Hill ratepayers' association.

Despite an attendance that was never much in excess of 40 persons at any of their meetings, they elected a slate of officers. The odd thing about this being, that apart from the office of secretary-treasurer, all other positions were filled by a so-called nominating committee. This is all very nice but hardly reasonable what you consider that this group will allegedly be speaking for some 16,000 citizens.

A study conducted by the city Assessment Department this past week reveals the following figures applicable to eligible voters in the City of Belleville as of September 1965:

Foster Ward: 549
Parkdale: 1,100
Hillcrest: 546
East Hill: 9,654
West Hill: 6,962

In all a grand total of 18,854 for the entire city, of which the East and West Hill accounts for 16,596 voters, or, almost the whole of the voting population.

It does seem a little incongruous that a ratepayers association, representing almost all the eligible voters would be necessary to press for such a cause, especially in the light of government attitudes on urban renewal at the moment. I was under the impression that we had a duly elected council for such things. With this in mind, it is hard to believe this group has been formed for the sole purpose of pursuing the issue of urban renewal.

There is a proper place in any community for such groups as this, when they restrict themselves to their immediate locality and use their organization to press for improvements and facilities peculiar to that area. However, on issues such as the urban renewal question, survey it has been frequently demonstrated that our city fathers are democratic enough to entertain representations from any person or group of reasonable numbers. In this case, this group is purporting to speak on behalf of almost the entire electorate. If credence can be given to these people, and they continue to campaign under the banner of East and West Hill it would appear that we are witnessing the birth of yet another pressure group whose activities may well embarrass the authority of our elected city council.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

United States President Truman notified the world 20 years ago today—in 1949 —of a major alteration in the balance of international power when he announced the Soviet Union had exploded an atomic device. Within weeks it became clear the Russians planned to use their possession of the bomb as a strong bargaining issue in international affairs. Georgi Malenkov, a rising Soviet politician who was to succeed Stalin on his death, warned that with the bomb Russia would ensure the end of capitalism in a third World War. He added that Russia did not want war and planned to use the bomb to preserve peace.

Rideau Canal System Needs Modern Facilities

Kingston Whig-Standard

The Dominion Government could speed the next ten years improving the Rideau Canal system without in any way spoiling its beauty or its historical authenticity. Unfortunately, the Ottawa bureaucrats seem unable to grasp the difference between their idea of "efficiency" on the Rideau and what the system really needs both to preserve its unique quality and to provide the public with adequate facilities.

Various governments have spent very large sums of money repairing, restoring and recreating the buildings and atmosphere of days gone by. Why then destroy an existing historical site that extends for over one hundred miles? The argument that there is a need to speed up the passing of boats through the Rideau Canal locks may appeal to some bureaux, but they are certainly in the minority. Anybody who is in a hurry should not be going up or down the Rideau.

What fascinates those who care about such matters is the brilliant way in which a small force of Royal Engineers in the nineteenth century brought the waterway — functioning Rideau Canal system out of wilderness of bogs, lakes and forest land. The locks themselves are beautiful in their functional suitability for the job they were intended to do. Their smooth walls are made of handcut limestone quarried in the area as the work progressed. And today they stand as true and as sturdy as they did when they were built. The public has made it clear that it doesn't favor anything that will spoil the historic significance of the locks on the Rideau.

What boaters want on the Rideau is better facilities for their comfort and safety. They want clean, modern rest rooms with running water, a great deal more docking space where they can moor their boats overnight and electrical outlets along these docks so that other amenities could be added to the Rideau system without changing its character. But there must be no more electrification. Let the Rideau Canal be preserved as an historic site and a waterway to be used only by those who enjoy a retreat from all the automatic and efficient machinery that is so much a part of our daily lives.

Starting to Feel Pinch

Benedict Proctor metal worker Roy Clark holding copper tray company turns out by dozens as luxury item after it's mounted and silverplated. Strike at Sudbury has cut copper and nickel supplies and threatens to close down B/P three Benedict Proctor plants affecting 200 employees.

Trenton Firm Feels Nickel Strike Squeeze

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff-Reporter)

TRENTON — The strike that paralyzes the big International Nickel Co. of Canada plant at Sudbury could deal a crippling blow to the Trenton economy before it is settled.

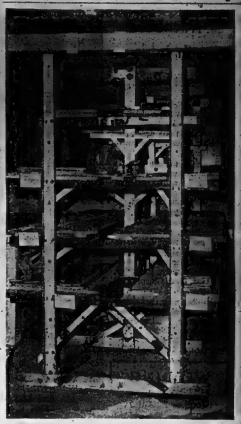
And one of the two silverware manufacturers in town — Benedict Proctor — is feeling the reaction already.

The other, Morton Parker Ltd., has stockpiles of copper and nickel adequate for four months because supplies are received from a source not idled by the strike.

But Christmas this year may mean no work for some and the gloomy expectation of looking for a change of employment for others unless the United Steelworkers of America and Inco management come to an agreement before long.

The local Benedict Proctor Manufacturing Co. which employs 80 silverplate workers started to feel the affect soon after 16,000 Inco workers at Sudbury and 1,700 at Port Colborne went out on strike July 10. The local concern obtains the bulk of the copper and nickel raw materials used in its products from Inco.

Then the situation worsened for Benedict Proctor soon after when an additional 3,200 went on strike at Falconbridge, near Sudbury.



It was this decision that tied up the biggest part of the world's nickel mining. (Inco is also a major producer of copper.)

Benedict Proctor started in Trenton in 1917 at its present location. It is now controlled by Burke and Wallace of Toronto with Canadian William A. Rogers and Oneida both Toronto based plants manufacturing silverware for them under franchise. The group of three employs 200.

The company considered the backbone of the Trenton economy in depression years continued to show strength as a steady employer while old industries expanded and new ones developed.

The repercussions from the United Steelworkers of America strike at Sudbury, however, is giving Benedict Proctor management here reason for worry.

"The Christmas gift trade is our thing a company spokesman explained today. The plant is just getting into peak production to fill all the orders we got. The full capacity operation expected in November looks like it'll turn into slim pickings now with supplies short. Although the situation is almost critical some stocks will be saved for our customers of long standing."

Dwindling Supplies

Shelves nearly bare as copper stocks at Benedict Proctor's Trenton plant dwindle, as nickel and copper supplies become scarce.

More Recreation Facilities Urged for Senior Citizens

Senior citizens' housing should have more recreation facilities.

That is the feeling of city Alderman Arthur Keegan who last night proposed that the Ontario Housing Corporation be asked to provide more recreation space in future buildings.

The alderman told council that last year when residents at the senior citizens complex on Turnbull Street held their Christmas party, an outside hall had to be rented because there is no recreation hall at the home.

He felt it was only reasonable to expect a residence of this type should have a recreation hall for the holding of such functions.

Council passed the resolution, asking that such accommodation be considered for future buildings.

Pearls Are Leading Fashion Accessory for the Fall Season

NEW YORK (CP) — Pearls are the leading fashion accessory this fall and will be even more important when the social season gets into full swing. Then the long pearl necklaces or the dog-collar styles will add glamour to late-day and evening dresses in the lovely new brocades, rich velvets, crisp crepes and flowing chiffons.

Pearls are so important for fall-into-winter that many designers are even using them as garment decorations such as the court ladies did in the 16th century.

For example there's Donald Brooks and his "embroidered with pearls." Pearls of different sizes from five to 13 millimetres—13 is the highest number in the pearl-measuring scale—are embroidered in graduated rows on scarcely shaped black wool crepe or velvet dresses. The fitted top of one slim black velvet is embroidered in a sunburst of these graduated pearls.

Bill Blass even has a huge pearl-bordered kerchief to wear over the head or as a scarf or a hijibe belt. In Toronto haute couture designer Maggy Reeves uses a pearl-and-gold design to accent the Juliet look of the sleeves of a long black velvet gown.

But the most sophisticated surprise in pearls comes from Burlington, a maker of stockings. Its new body stockings take to jewels, to be worn under diaphanous tunics and cover-ups. They are called Heavenly Bodies and are intended for at-home parties.

One ornamented style features pearls rimmed with gold clusters on a nude body stocking. It sells for the price of a dress. Another, called Jupiter's Bride, is white embellished with pearls interspersed with rhinestones.

But most people will wear pearls more prosaically as necklaces or brooches. Masses of pearls are the thing now—triple, at least, and with outsized pearls. The strands are in varying lengths but all are long.

Or, in the manner of the Roaring Twenties, you can concentrate on one extremely long strand. The closer it plunges to the knees, the more fashionable it is. Or you can knot it once, but low down.

Pearl strands are a perfect foil, in creamy or matching color, to fall's new subdued colors and give a million-dollar look to shaped grey jersey daytime dresses. Also popular this fall is a combination of long gold chains with the pearl copes. And for evening you can forsake the long strands of the 1920s for the dog-collars of the elegant 1880s when pearls encircled the throat.

Naturally in this welter of pearls the pearls themselves are not real. Real pearls are too expensive. And it is difficult and costly to find sufficient pearls of the exact size and color to make a perfect necklace.

There are cultured pearls, almost as beautiful and not as expensive. Cultured pearls are a modern process. The idea is simple. A small grain of sand accidentally produces a pearl in an oyster. So why not forcibly introduce round beads into oysters? Carrying out this idea, whole oyster beds become impregnated with small beads. The oysters went to work and cultivated pearls were the result.

Now, of course, there are also fake or simulated pearls. The Spanish island of Majorca is one of the best-known centres for these. It has a thriving tourist trade in its manmade pearls.

Natural pearls have a long fashion history. In Oriental legend they are a symbol of health, beauty, energy and thought. Today they are regarded as the birthstone of those born in June. Many people are familiar with the legend about Cleopatra dissolving her pearl ear-ring in wine as a love potion to drink to Antony. But actually pearls do not dissolve.

GOING TO THE DOGS — Designers are borrowing ideas from the canine population to produce their fall fashion accessories. Here a model displays a dog-collar choker of pearls with matching earrings iced with rhinestones. Pearls are considered so important this fall by designers that they are even using them as garment decorations. (CP Photo)

What's in A Name?

Choice of Name Causes Confusion

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

Egos and etiquette, law and good business get all tangled up when wives, widows or divorcees talk about what they call themselves.

Once it was easy. Married, you were Mrs. John Smith. Widowed, you were still Mrs. John Smith. If you called yourself Mrs. Mary Smith or Mrs. Johnson Smith (using both your maiden and married names), you were saying you were divorced.

Now the rules are not so clear, unless there is a legality involved. Often it depends on where you are. A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press finds many women style themselves Mary Smith at work, paid or voluntary. Only at home, being social, are they Mrs. John.

For the most part, they and their husbands accept the change when it is just business procedure Feelings vary when the growing custom spills over into social life.

One Montreal couple put their investment firm in the wife's name because they think it is a positive advantage to their business. It made Margaret Frappier the first woman elected a member of a stock exchange in Canada and got them publicity they might not otherwise have had.

Mrs. Frappier says her husband, Jean-Louis, "has never felt any element of conflict—I guess because he is a confident person in his own right."

Kathleen McCallum, an Edmonton alderman, says a woman in business or politics "is an individual, not an extension of her husband."

On the other hand, Mrs. McCallum says, she does not like getting invitations addressed to "Mrs. Kathleen McCallum and escort." She says she tries to keep those out of the sight of her husband, Alex.

Professional feminist Mary Van Stolk of Edmonton says the "Mrs. bit" is disrespectful, that it tells you nothing about the woman. She considers all women should be identified and treated as individuals.

Mrs. Van Stolk, a divorcee, is author of Man and Woman, a book about the roles of each sex and their implications.

Laura Sabia is casual about it all. As politician and radio personality in St. Catharines, Ont., she is Laura. In formal invitations to her home, she is Mrs. M. J.

"I don't think my husband objects. It's never come up. After all, what's in a name?"

Mrs. Sabia was the prime mover behind the effort to have the royal commission on the status of women set up.

Eileen Dailly is a politician and champion of women's rights who thinks it is "a step in the right direction" when women use their own first names.

New Democratic Party member for Burnaby North in the B.C. legislature, Mrs. Dailly is wife of Burnaby alderman James Dailly.

One woman who prefers the traditional way is Mrs. George Miller of Calgary, president of the Canadian Save the Children Fund.

"I feel there is a correct way (to address a married woman), a convenient way and most people follow this."

Nancy Poole agrees. A lawyer and art gallery operator in London, Ont., Mrs. Poole says she is legally Nancy Poole and legally Mrs. W. R. Poole.

"But I'm not Mrs. Nancy Poole."

Voice of Women members vary in their individual approaches, but Voice president Lillian Zaremba says that when they present a case to government officials they use their names the formal way, as Miss Mary Jones or Mrs. John Jones.

Organizations as a whole also differ. Some list members by their own first names, some by their husband's. Elsie Hey Hall, president of the Edmonton Business and Professional Women's Club, says a new lack of formality has something to do with the choice, but she points out a drawback.

"When women use their own Christian names, I can never find them in the phone book later."

All the women interviewed say they are called Miss occasionally—and don't care.

Isobel MacAuley of Halifax says she gets a mild amusement from it since she has been married 36 years and has seven grandchildren.

Mrs. MacAuley is a businesswoman and president of the Progressive Conservative Women of Canada. She says she has even had mail addressed to Mr. Isobel MacAuley, including an invitation to join the YMCA.

Dorothy Dearborn of Saint John, N.B., says her husband usually enjoys and respects her separate identity.

"We are one unit in conjunction with family affairs, but he is Fred Dearborn in his business and I am Dorothy Dearborn in mine. Sometimes mail has been addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Dorothy Dearborn, and that bothers him."

Therese Casgrain says she used her husband's name while he was living, but now uses her own because it seems more natural. A widow for 19 years, Mrs. Casgrain is a politician and campaigner for women's rights in Montreal.

Lita-Rose Betcherman summed up the situation for many working women. She says most of them are listed under their given names by employment offices, insurance companies, banks.

MR. AND MRS. ALEXANDER MANJURIS

Manjuris — Eggleton

The Sacrament of Holy Matrimony of the Hellenic Orthodox Church was solemnized at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville on Sunday, September 14, 1969, when Dorothy Eggleton, daughter of Mr. Bray Noyes and the late Mrs. Evelyn Noyes was united in marriage to Alexander Manjuris, son of Mrs. Freda Vasil, Belleville, and the late Mr. John Vasil.

A wedding service in two parts — the betrothal service and marriage service was performed by Rev. Paul Michaelides assisted by Rev. A. L. Sutherland. Frank Martin played appropriate nuptial selections. The bride, bridegroom, best man held lighted candles throughout the marriage portion of the service.

Given in marriage by her brother Earl Noyes, the bride wore a pale yellow imported crystal peau gown featuring a lace bodice with round neckline and short sleeves, highlighted with a matching train. Her headdress was a pearl crown from which extended a silk illusion veil, and she carried a bouquet of Woburn Abbey roses interspersed with mauve miniature carnations.

Maid of honor Miss Anna Zamanis wore a full length gown of mauve peau de soie in A-line style with matching headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow mums and gladioli. Mary Trikilas and Gena Christopher as bridesmaids were attired identically to the maid of honor. The little flower girl was Marina Yeates who wore a two-piece white lace dress and carried a basket of yellow and deep mauve poms.

The koumbaros was George Zegouras, while koumbara was Anna Diane Zegouras wearing a green A-line dress with silver accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The ushers were George Manjuris and Dan Noyes. The ring-bearer was Steven Eggleton.

A reception for 200 guests was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, where the bridegroom's mother welcomed the guests wearing a two-piece black crimplene dress with matching jacket complemented with a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip through southern Ontario and Quebec, the bride chose a pink dress with matching coat and hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Manjuris will reside in Belleville.

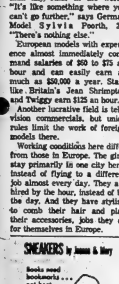
European Girls Popular Models In New York

NEW YORK (AP) — That perky girl with the winning smile on a North American magazine cover who looks like the girl next door but chances are she's European.

Models with years of experience in Paris, London, Rome and Milan have come to New York steadily during the last decade and have become an established part of the fashion scene.

Wilhemina, a German model who has her own modelling agency, says one-third of her models are European born. The Stewart Agency says one-quarter of its models are European. And Jerry Ford of the Ford Modelling Agency says one-quarter of Ford Models are European and they account for one-half of the agency's business.

"They have a sort of girl-next-door, high-fashion look," explains Wilhemina. "They have intrigue. They come with a totally new face to the American photographers yet they have experience and interesting portfolios."



Ford says another reason for the European models' success is that they are hard workers, punctual and businesslike.

New York is the top of the fashion industry and the place where models earn more money than any other in the world. "It's like something where you can't go further," says German Model Sylvia Poorth, 21. "There's nothing else."

European models with experience almost immediately command salaries of $60 to $75 an hour and can easily earn as much as $50,000 a year. Stars like Britain's Jean Shrimpton and Twiggy earn $125 an hour.

Another lucrative field is television commercials, but union rules limit the work of foreign models there.

Working conditions have differ from those in Europe. The girls stay primarily in one city here. Instead of flying to a different job almost every day. They are hired by the hour, instead of by the day. And they have stylists to comb their hair and plan their accessories, jobs they do for themselves in Europe.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I don't see how you can concentrate with that noise."

Daughter: "The music helps me relax and study better. Math is boring when I do it without something interesting going on."

No matter what a teen-ager may think, it's almost impossible for anyone, except a genius, to concentrate on learning in the midst of noise and activity. It's up to parents to guide the child into a more sensible routine.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

'Wishes Are Horses; Beggars Do Ride.' Anonymous Quote

By DORIS CLARK

Our wishes are not idle fiddle things — not the kind that I mean.

I do not speak of little wishes, but of the deep soul wish, your ultimate goal, the reason of your being. It moulds every thought of your mind; it directs your every act; it underlies your every being and becomes its foundation at the vital moment. It is you. You know your own secret. Have you guessed its power?

It may be that when you had to turn from your heart's desire and take up the unlovely task set you by unbudging circumstance, you thought your deep wish dead? It never dies. It burns brightly under the blanket of suppression and negation, shooting up into flames that light and re-form whatever your mind conceives, whatever your hand finds to do.

Stronger and stronger it grows, faster and faster with the years it speeds, until you find yourself mounted upon it and riding, swift, straight and sure, toward the last barrier.

Wishes are horses. Beggars do ride. — Anonymous.

Dear Doris: We have an excellent Baby Sitters Training Course.

We feel very keenly that much more attention should be given to the training of competent baby sitters, as all too avoidable accidents occur, through lack of education in the care and handling of small children. — P. G. McLaren, Canada Safety Council.

Dear Mr. McLaren: Babies are so precious! And the type of training you offer not only helps the sitter with her sitting; it also gives her a preview of some of the things she is going to need to know when she becomes a mother.

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband is a very heavy drinker every day. We have five children. The oldest nine; is depressed with his father — can't stand him drink any more and says he is going to run away. I'm fed up with such a life.

I asked for separation but my husband said not over his dead body. He doesn't beat me or the children but yells and swears.

If I get separation, on what grounds, and where do I go? — Depressed and Unhappy.

Dear Depressed: The law recognizes not only physical, but mental cruelty. Then there are child protection laws which can be invoked where a home environment is bad. It may be that separation is the answer for your situation.

Our child care agencies and alcoholism foundations are there to help families like yours. Apply to The Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 311 Front St., Belleville.

Ann Landers

Powder Room No Place For Male Youngster

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This afternoon while shopping in a well-known department store, I had to go to the ladies room. I walked into the private booth, stumbled over something and almost broke my neck. That "something" turned out to be a boy lying on the floor looking up into the next booth.

When he saw me he stood up. I was shocked. That kid was nearly as tall as I was. He had to be 11 years old I yelled, "Get out of here and go to the men's room!" He stuck out his tongue and shouted, "I don't have to mind you. You aren't my mother."

... I don't think I was anything in your column about this problem. Please say something. — STILL BURNING.

DEAR BURN: I've never had the problem before! You handled it beautifully, Madame. I couldn't have done better myself.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a healthy, alert, clean student who will be 18 next birthday. I live in Ohio and am bored out of my gourd. The farthest away from home I have ever been is Steubenville, 200 miles away.

Do you know of a kind-hearted columnist who would be willing to make a gift of $200 so I could go to New York for a long weekend? Sorry I don't have money for a stamp so you'll have to answer in the paper. — HAVE SUITCASE, WILL TRAVEL.

DEAR WILL: I'm glad to know you have a suitcase. Sorry, chum, but I haven't located that money bush you are dreaming about.

There's an old-fashioned activity called "work" which might provide the solution to your problem. People who want things badly enough often resort to it. I've done a good bit of it myself and I recommend it highly.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure you will never publish this letter because it goes one of your sacred cows, but I'm going to write it anyway. I can truthfully say, my secret lover has made my marriage more tolerable but happier.

When I married Daniel in 1950 we were both young and foolish, and I was pregnant. After five years and three babies we were fed up with each other, had money problems, sex problems and in-law problems.

Last year we moved to this city. (Don't name it please). The move meant more money, a bigger house and new friends. Within two months I was madly in love with his new business associate. The feeling is mutual. Mr. Marvelous and his wife have the same kind of marriage my husband and I have. Boring. Mary and I have decided that divorce is out of the question. Daniel doesn't suspect a thing. Neither does Mrs. Marvelous.

We meet once a week in a nearby village. He satisfies my every emotional need. I love being with him. Dreaming about our tryst keeps me cheerful, fulfilled and good to my husband. No advice, please, just wanted you to know how one woman solved her problem. — HONEY BUN.

DEAR BUN: This is a solution! Please keep my address handy, Hon. You may be writing again.

A Cheese Omelette Recipe for One

By MARY MOORE

Keeping your cool is no idle admonition. On a 95-degree summer day my brakes seized at an intersection and I nearly had an accident. Fortunately a service station was right around the corner and they came to my rescue. To calm down while I waited I enquired about a restaurant and all along, in a lovely dining room ate a perfect cheese omelette.

CHEESE OMELETTE FOR ONE

2 eggs
¼ cup shredded or grated mild cheese (not packed)
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce shake of salt shake of accent
shake of onion salt
2 tablespoons hot water
1 tablespoon butter.

In a heavy 7" frypan gently melt butter. Combine all other ingredients in a small bowl and beat with rotary beater until foamy — about fifteen turns of the handle of your rotary beater. Now turn up the heat under the frypan until the butter turns gold and turn the egg mixture into the very hot pan and cook without moving it for at least one minute until sides bubble and set and are gold. Then lift one side with curved spatula or rubber scraper, tilt pan to make liquid portion on top flow to bottom of pan. As top becomes softly set, tilt pan and coax and roll omelette from handle side to far side and out and over onto preheated plate. When I tested this golden-crusted beauty for my dinner late one evening I served a salad and a slice of oatmeal bread with it and I thought I was eating a gourmet dinner. Give yourself this concealed lift when you are left on your own some evening.

Spectacle and Fragrance in the Garden

The unmistakable fragrance, vivid colors and assured stature of the hyacinth have endeared it to gardeners for generations. Hyacinths are members of the lily family. They are dainty yet dignified and stately flowers. The dense spokes of delicate bell-like florets, strongly supported on sturdy stems are suited to any garden, large or small. They can be planted formally in beds or borders or in informal groups near the house, along garden paths or at the base of walls. They are delightful, too, in raised beds.

Hyacinths combine admirably with early tulips and narcissi and their beauty is enhanced when interplanted with pansies, violas, white Arabis, golden Alyssum and other Spring bedding favorites. They come in such a wide range of colors it is easy to choose the shades you like best.

Hyacinths are easy to grow. Plant them in September or October in well-drained soil 6" deep and 6" apart for spectacle and scent in the garden.

Council Votes to Halt Urban Renewal Study

and hire the firm of W. W. Urban Consultants to do an economic study of the area, but the following discussion saw some of the sharpest exchanges heard in council in many months.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey claimed that the Cambridge Leaseholds letter was one of pressure to force the city to cancel the urban renewal study.

She also said the city had a firm contract with Procter and Redfern and asked whether it could be cancelled.

The alderman objected strongly to the fact that Ald. Keegan apparently had previous knowledge of the Cambridge letter, while other councillors learned of it only as they arrived at city hall for the meeting.

"It makes me sick, it is not cricket," she complained.

But Mayor Scott and Ald. Keegan were quick in their objection to Ald. Jeffrey's statement.

Mayor Scott said Ald. Keegan learned of the letter at noon when he happened to call at his office. Any other alderman had the same privilege.

In answer to Ald. Jeffrey's question regarding cancellation of the Procter and Redfern contract, the mayor said the study could be stopped. The cost to date would be $45,000.

Earlier Ald. Keegan referred to the withdrawal of government funds from urban renewal projects and said that even if the study was continued it was unlikely there would be any urban renewal project started in Belleville.

"Unless we receive a definite commitment from the government, urban renewal is just a pipe dream" he said. "There is no alternative but for the city to cancel the study," he maintained.

The alderman said he had been prepared to go along with completion of the urban renewal study but the Cambridge letter had changed his mind.

Ald. Donald Williams said he was not opposed to the plaza, but he did object to having to make up his mind so quickly on the matter of cancelling the urban renewal study.

Procter and Redfern recommended the hiring of W. W. Urban Consultants to do an economic survey of the area, which they felt would more than satisfy the information requirements of the Ontario Municipal Board at the October hearing.

Mayor Scott gave assurance that although the report would be hirin'd the new firm of consultants, Cambridge Leaseholds would pay the costs of the survey.

Information contained in Procter and Redfern's preliminary report on urban renewal will not be lost. Council was told that the report would be of value in preparing the city's official plan.

Also council was told that work on the urban renewal study could be ordered resumed at any future date.

Voting to hire the new firm of consultants were Mayor Scott, and Aldermen David, Ellis, Joyce, Keegan, Orr, Rus sell and Soden. Opposing the motion were Aldermen Boyle, Jeffrey and Williams.

Transit Meeting Centres on Lease

A special committee of city council will be appointed to meet with Belleville Transit Commission to discuss negotiation of a lease with the Rawson Bus Company for garage space and to explore the possibility of acquiring city-owned facilities.

Mayor J. Russell Scott sought to have the committee's responsibilities expanded to include investigation into the feasibility of a joint garage headquarters for the Transit Commission, Public Utilities and the city works department.

However, the amendment was turned down, with council giving approval to the original motion.

In presenting his amendment, Mayor Scott said more liaison was needed between the arious city departments.

He thought water and sewer installations should be made by the same department, eliminating the necessity of equipment duplication.

Quite often, he said, the utilities excavated for water service installation for a new building, only to have the city works department come along a week later and dig up the street again for sewer installation.

"It is time to take a good sound look at things and maybe save some dollars," the mayor said. "We can't have two departments doing two things in opposite directions."

Ald. Glenn David recalled that a joint service department for the PUC city works and transit commission had been discussed in council some years ago, but was turned down.

"Now we have buildings all over the city," he said.

Four Die from Gas In Evicting Skunk

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP) — Two adults and two children died Monday during an apparent attempt to clear skunks from under a house at nearby West Bay Indian reserve.

Police said a fifth was backed up to a side door of Daniel Migwan's house and a piece of tailpipe was connected to the car's exhaust. The pipe was then run through a door and down a hole in the floor. All doors and windows had been sealed, police said.

Dead are Daniel Migwan, 22, his two children, Marlene, 2, and Daniel, 3, and brother, Joseph, 36. Daniel's wife, Theresa, after they suspected something was amiss.

They found the four bodies and Mrs. Migwan who was semi-conscious.

Neighbors of the Migwans said the family had had trouble with skunks getting under the house in the past.

Police are continuing their investigation of the incident.

Little Current is about 80 miles southwest of Sudbury on Manitoulin Island.

French Leftists Unmoved

PARIS (Reuters) — Union leaders and left-wing politicians today appeared unimpressed by President Georges Pompidou's call for a united front to end unrest and put the economy back on its feet.

Pompidou made the appeal the keynote of a televised news conference Monday. But the reaction to it today heralded a continuing struggle by the Parisian government to win youth through its post-devaluation economic policy. The franc was devalued by 12.5 per cent Aug. 8.

Pompidou spoke as crucial wage negotiations in the public sector got under way—but the heels of a wave of wildcat strikes which hit the government-owned railways and paralysed Paris public transportation.

Pompidou called on all Frenchmen to join in the effort to make France a more modern industrial power, but union leaders and spokesmen for the Communist and Socialist parties immediately attacked the president.

Jacques Duclos, who ran a strong third as the Communist candidate in the presidential elections in June, accused Pompidou of asking workers to give up legitimate demands and increase their savings only to finance capitalist investments.

"It's not a boy, it's a girl — and I'm its Mother not its Father!"

Car Sales Increase Unlikely

TORONTO (CP) — With the suggested list prices for 1970 model autos announced and the cars in the showrooms or on their way, Canada's vehicle makers are keeping their fingers crossed.

The big question is how the public will receive the new offerings—and preliminary indications are that the salesmen are going to have to work hard for their bonuses.

Since the auto industry looms so large in the over-all Canadian economy, their success or failure will have important repercussions.

At this time last year, industry officials were cheerfully predicting sales increases of between four and six per cent.

In the first eight months of this year, only General Motors of Canada Ltd. has managed to gain over the similar period a year ago among North American producers.

GM Canada sales for the period totaled 340,000 units, compared with 333,000 a year ago. Last year, however, GM sales were affected by a strike which closed its Oshawa, Ont., plant for six weeks.

In the first eight months of this year, Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. sales are down to 158,000 units from 162,000, Chrysler Canada Ltd. to 92,000 from 110,000 and American Motors (Canada) Ltd. to 13,000 from 15,000.

Faced with these figures and a widespread expectation of an economic slowdown late this year and in at least the first half of 1970, sales forecasts are few and far between.

In setting their suggested 1970 list prices, the auto makers obviously were trying to hold increases to a minimum so potential customers would not be scared off.

Although they don't like to talk about it, they were equally careful that any increase would bring them criticism from people concerned about rising price and cost trends.

On the other hand, the companies are being squeezed by generally poorer profits and rising costs for labor and materials.

Ford Canada said its average suggested list price is going up $98 or three per cent, while Chrysler Canada reported an increase of $99 or three per cent.

GM Canada said its average price would rise $117 or 3.5 per cent.

Rookie Gets A Lift

Rookie halfback Jacques Burelle, 21, of Ottawa, who is five-feet-five and weighs only 150 pounds, uses his helmet and an assist from two of his teammates to reach their height during a workout of the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees football club. Helping are Bob McCulla, 26, (left) and Bob Rouleau, 22, both of Ottawa. They weigh 260 and 240 pounds respectively and are six-feet-four and six-feet-five inches tall. Thorpe Catches Few But Takes Them a Long Way

TORONTO (CP) — If you can believe the official Eastern Football Conference statistics — and the head statistician is a former income tax accountant — Jim Thorpe of Toronto Argonauts is one of the most dangerous pass-receivers to grace the league in years.

He hasn't caught the most passes — that honor belong to Margene Adkins of Ottawa Rough Riders and Tommy Joe Coffey of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Thorpe, with seven, shares with Coffey the lead in touchdown passes caught.

But dig deeper, Adkins has taken 40 passes for 981 yards and a 24.5 average. That means he has averaged nearly 25 yards every time he has caught the ball.

Coffey has also 40 receptions, for 681 yards and a 17.3 average.

Thorpe, in his first year out of college ball, has caught only 17 passes, but he has rolled up 377 passing yards for a 33.8 average. His longest gain was 87 yards.

But it's still Coffey leading the scoring parade in the East on eight touchdowns, 31 converts, eight field goals and five singles for 86 points.

Dave Rainey of Toronto, leads the rushing with 562 yards; Russ Jackson of Ottawa is the top passer with 2,348 yards on 221 throws, nearly 500 yards better than Tom Wilkinson of Toronto.

Joe Zuger of Hamilton is the top punter with 3,214 yards in 2,766 for Dave Mann of Toronto. Zuger's average is 48.1, Mann's 46.7.

Hockey Canada Formulates Five-year Development Plan

WINNIPEG (CP) —Hockey Canada president Charles Hay announced Monday that a five-year plan is being formulated to develop hockey in Canada. That means the national hockey team.

In an announcement reminiscent, of one made a number of years ago by co-national team founder Rev. David Bauer, Hay told a news conference the program is being prepared and details would be released soon.

The thinking behind the plan is that promising players would be given bursaries to attend university while playing on the national team.

This was the same formula used by Father Bauer, but the major difference between the two plans is that Canada may be permitted to use professional players in the future.

The precedent was set this year when the International Ice Hockey Federation decided to allow Canada to bolster its national team with nine professionals.

Hay also answered one of the pressing recent questions when he said Hockey Canada would operate out of Winnipeg, now and in the future.

Hay said a full team of 18 players would operate out of Winnipeg but "we can't get nine pros and keep them in Winnipeg all winter . . . we haven't got the money."

The Russians are coming for an eight-game series Dec. 17 to 30, and Czechoslovakia will play a five-game series from Dec. 26 to Jan. 4.

Canada will play Russia in Winnipeg Dec. 17 and 18 and the Czechs Jan. 3 and 4.

A fifth game will be played either against the Russians or Czechs at the Lakehead on a date yet to be fixed, Houle said.

For Stick-Swingers

Bowman Wants Severe Suspensions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Scotty Bowman of St. Louis Blues said Monday the National Hockey League has to get tough with stick-swingers to prevent injuries such as the skull fracture received Sunday by Ted Green of Boston Bruins.

But he defended Wayne Maki, the Blues player who inflicted the fracture during an exhibition game at Ottawa. Green will be out at least two months, possibly four, and Maki has been advised to keep silent pending investigations.

Bowman gave Maki's side of the incident in a telephone interview from Ottawa, site of his team's training camp.

"When Green started swinging, what else could Wayne do? He reacted naturally.

"I'll stake any of my players to a life suspension if they swing the lumber flagrantly. But where does it stop with Boston? They act like they are trying to live up to the clippings as Bobby Orr and the Animals."

Bowman, whose own playing career was ended by a fractured skull from a high stick while a 19-year-old forward with Montreal Junior Canadiens, added:

"The NHL hasn't explored enough avenues to control stick-swinging. Fines haven't stopped it. Suspending a guy for a few games is nothing.

"It might be different if a player was suspended a full year without pay.

"Players are well warned for gambling in the NHL. If they are caught betting they know they are gone for life. Perhaps threatening lifetime suspensions would curb stick-swinging and clubbing referees."

Bowman described the incident "the way I saw it."

"Green hit Maki on the head with his stick and cut him a little. Then Maki gave Green a little jab on the temple. It wasn't a vicious two-hander like you might have heard. Green fell down, but he got up with help and skated to the clinic in the Ottawa Arena.

Neurosurgeon Dr. Michel Richard said Monday Green was in satisfactory condition, and partial paralysis of the face and slight loss of feeling in one hand was clearing up. He will stay in hospital 10 days, and will return in about two weeks to have his skull patched with a plastic plate.

Meanwhile the results of another high stick were being felt in Barrie, Ont., where Los Angeles Kings announced that defenseman Brent Hughes would be sidelined at least two weeks with a scralched eyeball.

Hughes was in hospital there Monday after being clipped by a stick during an exhibition game against Oakland Seals.

The Bruins, minus Green, traveled to Peterborough, Ont., Monday to take on Toronto Maple Leafs in a pre-season game.

Boston came up with a 5-1 victory on two goals by Phil Esposito and one each by Wayne Cashman, Tom Webster and Don Marcotte. Mike Walton got Toronto's only goal late in the third period.

In Monday's only other exhibition game, at Halifax, Detroit Red Wings scored three third-period goals to beat Montreal Canadiens 5-3.

Bruce MacGregor scored three for Detroit, with the others going to Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio. Montreal marksmen were Mickey Redmond, Jacques Lamaire and Yvan Cournoyer.

Week-long Walkout Ends --NHL Officials Sign Contracts

TORONTO (CP) — Scotty Morrison, National Hockey League referee-in-chief, today signs 20 referees and linesmen to 1969-70 contracts.

Senior officials Bill Friday, Vern Buffey and Bruce Hood represented the 13 referees and seven linesmen in talks Monday that ended a week-long walkout by the group.

The 20 left training camp in Brantford, Ont., last week demanding that the NHL recognize their Referees' and Linesmen's Association.

In the meeting Monday with Morrison and NHL director Brian O'Neil, the group won a seven-point agreement which did not include recognition of their association.

However, Joe Kane, lawyer for the holdouts, said the association did, in effect, receive recognition.

"They have been recognized because the NHL has acceded to demands brought up by the association," Kane said. "The NHL did not come up with these proposals—we did."

Kane did not sit in on Monday's meeting, but was on hand to provide legal counsel. He has called a news conference for 10 a.m. today.

The seven points agreed on:

1. A contract for 1969-70 will be offered each official and will provide for salary of not less than the amount paid the officials during the 1968-69 season, exclusive of playoffs, exhibition and all-star games.

2. The NHL will make the entire payment to the pension plan for officials officiating in the NHL.

3. The NHL will make the entire payment to an approved medical insurance plan for each official.

4. The NHL will pay the maximum portion of life insurance premiums for officials to the same extent as for NHL players.

5. The per-game schedule of fees will not be less than what was offered by mail contract and telegram to the officials.

6. In addition to all expenses, the NHL will pay the officials the fee agreed upon at Monday's meeting and there will be no limit on money earned from exhibition games.

7. The per-game fee for Central Hockey League playoff games will be increased as mutually agreed upon.

The biggest gain the officials made in the agreement was the base contract which guarantees them at least as much as they earned in the previous season. Up to now the officials were guaranteed only 75 per cent of their previous season's earnings with the remaining 25 per cent withheld until the end of the season pending a satisfactory performance by the official.

The agreement made no mention of an earlier demand by the officials for increased fines and penalties for players who attack referees and linesmen.

However, the NHL is considering stiffer penalties for players following a Sunday night exhibition match in which Boston Bruins defenceman Ted Green suffered a skull fracture in a stick-swinging duel with Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues.

Green underwent surgery and will be in hospital for about two weeks. However, a team spokesman said Monday there was "a reasonable chance he may be as good as ever" and may be able to return to the ice for the last two months of the season.

All-time NFL Team Reflects Superiority of Modern Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Johnny Unitas, running backs Jimmy Brown and Gale Sayers and flanker Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hirch formed the backfield on the all-time National Football League team selected Saturday to commemorate the league's 50th anniversary season.

The 10-man squad reflected, in the opinion of the Hall of Fame selectors from each of the NFL cities—the superiority of the modern ball player to the oldtime pioneer. All but three of the all-stars played in the last 20 years.

The only oldtimers to make the squad were Jim Thorpe, in the specials category as the star that never diminishes," tackle Cal Hubbard, who played with New York Green Bay and Pittsburgh, and split end Don Hutson of the Packers.

Others selected as No. 1 at offensive positions were John Mackey of Baltimore at tight end, Jerry Kramer of Green Bay at guard and Chuck Bednarik of Philadelphia at center.

The top defenders were Gino Marchetti of Baltimore at end, Leo Nomellini of San Francisco at tackle, Ray Nitschke of Green Bay at linebacker, Dick (Night Train) Lane of Detroit at cornerback, Emlen Tunnell of New York Giants at safety and Lou Groza of Cleveland as the kicking specialist.

The entire team, with five decade squads honoring players from each period of NFL history, is featured in a book by First Fifty Years, published by Simon and Schuster Inc., in conjunction with the NFL.

Unlike best two of his contemporaries—Sonny Jurgensen of Washington and Bart Starr of Green Bay—plus a host of other standouts.

But his record 23,180 yards gained passing and record 254 touchdowns gave him the edge over quarterbacks he still plays against. Runners-up were Sammy Baugh of Washington and Norm Van Brocklin of Los Angeles and Philadelphia.

The selection of Brown, who set one-game, single season and career rushing records while with Cleveland, came as no surprise but during the preliminary phase of selections the other berth appeared to be wide open.

It went to Sayers, the Chicago comet whose breakaway ability propelled him to the top in four seasons, over Red Grange and Hugh McElhenney.

Runners-up to Brown were Bronko Nagurski of Chicago and Joe Perry, whose best days were spent with San Francisco.

Hirsch, the first of the Cincinnati flankers as a member of the Los Angeles Rams, grabbed 343 passes for 6,299 yards and 53 touchdowns during his career, gaining recognition over Boyd Dowler of Green Bay and Lenny Moore of Baltimore.

Hutson, the prototype of the modern wide receiver who first refined the use of pass patterns, beat out two pass-grabbers of note recent vintage, Ray Berry of Baltimore and Dante Lavelli of Cleveland.

Hubbard, one of the first big linemen with speed, got the nod at tackle over Forrest Gregg of Green Bay and Joe Stydahar of Chicago.

At tight end, Mackey edged Mike Ditka, currently with Dallas, and Ron Kramer of Green Bay and Detroit. At guard Jerry Kramer made it over Danny Fortman of Chicago and Jim Parker of Baltimore.

Centre Bednarik was voted top in competition with Mel Hein of the New York Giants and Alex Wojciechowicz of Detroit and Philadelphia.

Groza, the leading scorer in NFL history with 1,349 point during his 17-year career, led the defensive unit. He edged two oldtimers, Ernie Nevers who dates back to the Duluth Eskimos of 1926, and Ken Strong, who played from 1929 to 1947.

On the line, Marchetti nosed out Len Ford of Los Angeles, Cleveland and Green Bay and David "Deacon" Jones, Los Angeles' current pass-rushing specialist. Nomellini got the nod over Ernie Stautner of Pittsburgh and Art Donovan, who is best remembered at Baltimore.

Seaver Performs More Mets' Magic

Mays' 600th Homer Maintains Giants' Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Didier has become perhaps the first catcher ever to pull off the hidden ball trick, but no one, except Babe Ruth, has ever been able to make them disappear like Willie Mays.

Mays became only the second man to hit 600 home runs in a major league career when he smacked a two-run, pinch-hit homer in the seventh inning Monday night, giving San Francisco Giants a 4-3 victory over San Diego Padres.

The homer also kept the Giants one-half game ahead of Atlanta Braves in the National League's West Division after Didier—in his only appearance helped the Braves to a 5-3 triumph over Houston Astros.

AL Pennant Matches Twins and Orioles

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Twins manager Billy Martin would let nothing detract from his moment of glory.

Some of Martin's veteran baseball players held their enthusiasm in bounds Monday night as the Twins edged Oakland Athletics 4-3 to clinch the American League West Division title.

They pointed to the impending five-game playoff with Baltimore Orioles for the league pennant and a berth in the World Series as enough reason for them to hold their celebrating to a minimum.

Not so Martin and most of the other Twins, particularly the younger players.

"I say let's celebrate it, with champagne and the whole works," Martin bubbled in the clubhouse as he drank from a giant-sized brandy snifter.

In the only other AL contests Monday, Boston Red Sox edged New York Yankees 4-3 and Seattle Pilots downed California Angels 5-4.

Players like Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison, Jim Kaat and Al Worhington, all veterans of the Twins' 1965 pennant-winning club, pointed to the playoff beginning Oct. 4 in Baltimore as the reason they couldn't get so elated Monday night.

"We haven't won that much, yet," Kaat said. We've got a tough five-game series ahead of us with Baltimore. The one in '65 meant more, because that was the whole league. It was tougher in '65, too."

"The others can do the celebrating for me," said Killebrew, who helped the Twins to victory by socking his 47th home run, the now leads the major league in both home runs and runs batted in, with 137.

The first two games of the playoff will be in Baltimore and the final three, if needed, in Minnesota.

Killebrew tied the game 1-1 with his homer to right centre leading off the fourth against Jim Rooker. Bob Allison followed with a double, moved to third on a deep fly and scored on George Mitterwald's sacrifice fly.

Houston had two runs home in the seventh inning when Didier waved his finger and the ball disappeared, then reappeared, just in time to catch Norm Miller trying to score from third, ending the threat.

"I saw the pitch was low," Miller explained. "Then I saw something white go back and hit the backstop and I heard Salty (third base Coach Salty Parker) yell 'go', and I did. I couldn't believe when I saw Didier coming at me with the ball."

Didier, one of Didier's bag of tricks showed only a finger guard that had flown off his left hand. The umpires later made him discolor it after Houston protested.

Also in the West, Cincinnati Reds jumped ahead of Los Angeles Dodgers into third place, four games back, by tying up with two runs in the ninth inning for a 2-1 victory over the Dodgers.

In the East, Tom Seaver gave St. Louis Cardinals a dose of Mets magic before half-filling performance on the mound as New York beat the Cardinals 3-1 and reduced its magic clinching number to three.

Mays' homer into the lower deck in left centre field on the first pitch by rookie Mike Corkins, 1-3, snapped a 2-3 deadlock and earned him a standing ovation from the 4,700 fans in the stands. His team-mates greeted him at the plate and the ball was retrieved from the stands and presented to him.

The homer was only the 12th of this season for the 38-year-old outfielder, but only Babe Ruth with 714 has hit more than 600 in a career.

Criminal Charges Possible

NHL Violence Produces Fines and Investigation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Criminal charges are being considered, more than $1,700 in automatic fines are pending and one player's future is uncertain following a weekend of violence in the National Hockey League's exhibition schedule.

Defenceman Ted Green of Boston Bruins suffered a skull fracture in Ottawa Sunday when Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues struck him with his stick. Green underwent five hours of surgery and will be out of action for at least two to four months.

General Manager Milt Schmidt of the Bruins said Monday that Green will undergo further surgery in two to three weeks when a plate will be inserted in his skull.

Ottawa police were investigating the fight with a possibility of criminal charges being laid.

Borden Conley, Ottawa police morality squad inspector, said police will question game officials before considering the charges. Insp. Conley said that laws governing criminal violence apply to hockey players as well as to anyone else.

In Toronto, alternate NHL governor Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs, said:

"If you hit a person on the street and put him out of business, it's considered a serious offence. There shouldn't be any difference between the street and the ice."

The incident was the second involving the Bruins within two days and both resulted in players leaving the benches to join the fights.

In Montreal Saturday night, the players' benches emptied when Dick Duff of Montreal Canadiens and Jim Harrison of Boston tangled.

League president Clarence Campbell said that all members of both teams—with the exception of those legally on the ice at the time—will be fined $50 each.

Goaltenders Gerry Cheevers of Boston and Rogatien Vachon of Montreal both left their creases and are also subject to the $50 fines.

Green will also be handed an automatic $75 fine for arguing a minor penalty during Saturday's game.

And in Port Huron, Mich., defenceman Carl Brewer of Detroit Red Wings was handed a misconduct penalty and an automatic $100 fine for arguing with a referee.

But the Green-Maki incident has attracted the most attention and the players have drawn the more costly automatic fines.

Witnesses said Green hit Maki on the head with his stick near the Boston goal in the first period.

Maki retaliated and Green fell. Both teams swarmed to the ice and Boston defenceman Bobby Orr went after Maki.

Green and Maki will both be given automatic fines of $100 for their match penalties and additional fines of $200 each for stick swinging.

Campbell will review the matter and larger fines or suspensions could come at his discretion.

Green's injury was diagnosed as a brain laceration as the result of the skull fracture. It has caused a certain amount of muscle weakness.

A team spokesman said there "is a reasonable chance he may be as good as ever" and may be able to play the last month or two of the NHL schedule with a helmet.

Dr. Ashby Moncure, a Bruins' physician, said the main neurological damage to Green was a weakness of the left hand and muscles on the left side of the face.

The doctor said Green was well oriented mentally and his life was not in danger. He was expected to remain in hospital for at least two weeks.

In Toronto, referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison said he was scheduled to meet with officials of both the Montreal and Ottawa games Monday.

But Morrison said he had ordered an immediate crackdown on infractions by players.

Referees will be instructed to "rule with an iron hand," Morrison said.

Frustration!

Ellis Junior backstop Wes May (left) can't quite make it to first in time to beat out this fifth inning grounder to third base as City Hotel first baseman Doug Murray reaches out and snares the throw. City frustrated the Juniors' attempt to win the Commercial Softball League crown by scoring a 2-1 victory Monday night narrowing the Juniors' lead to three-games-to-two in the best-of-seven final playoff series.

Mo-Hawks Open Camp Wednesday at Memorial Arena

The Ice is artificial but the attiiude won't be when playing - coach Davey Jones puts Mo-Hawks through their paces Wednesday night at the Memorial Arena.

Wednesday's practice — which is open to all interested players — will be the first of the new season for the Mo-Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" league.

The Mo-Hawk practice Wednesday night will also mark the first test of the new ice which is going into the Arena at the present time.

Practice sessions will continue at the same time — 6-to-8 p.m.—Thursday and Friday evenings and almost nightly thereafter as the Mo-Hawks strive to be ready for the Oct. 10 Senior "A" opener at the Memorial Arena against Owen Sound.

Jones is charged with the task of rejuvenating the Mo-Hawks who missed making the playoffs last year on the second last day of the season and he said he would welcome all interested players with open arms to the club's initial practice sessions.

With the ice in the Arena the Mo-Hawks won't be the only city team preparing for the coming season. The Belleville Junior "B" hockey club will take to the ice for their initial practice session Friday night from 8.15 p.m. - to - 10.15 p.m.

Junior "B" coach Floyd Crawford welcomes all junior age players — those under the age of 20 as of Jan. 1, 1970 — to the teams' open practice sessions. The Juniors will practise again Saturday from 8.15 p.m. - to - 10.15 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. - to-3 p.m. Monday the Juniors are scheduled to practise from 8 p.m. -to-8 p.m.

Pair of Early Runs Enable City to Stave Off Elimination

A two - run first Inning lead didn't seem like much for City Hotel lefthander Bob Ethier the way his club has played the last few games, but Ethier made the two runs stand up and City staved off elimination in the Commercial Softball League final playoff series by edging Ellis Juniors 2-1 Monday night at Alemite ball park.

Ethier pitched out of a bases loaded one - out Jam in the bottom of the first inning and the City defence — which committed 11 errors in the Juniors — held up enabling Juniors — held u penabling City to narrow the Juniors lead to 3-2 in games in the best-of-seven final series.

A three - hit, seven strikeout performance by Ethier over the final six innings throttled the Juniors who missed a chance to end the series and clinch the 1969 Commercial Softball League title.

Consecutive singles by leadoff man Larry Potter and Pug Kellar, an outfield error and Doug Hull's two - out base hit provided Ethier with the only runs he needed in the top of the opening frame.

The loss was a frustrating one for Junior hurler "Scotty" Reid who permitted only four base runners over the last six innings and finished with a five - hit, 11 strikout effort. Both pitchers walked one man.

Shortstop Pug Kellar paced the winners at the plate with a brace of singles while teammates Larry Potter, Doug Hull and Rod Ridley also hit safely.

All five Junior hits were singles and came from the bats of Cliff Scott, Steve Ling, Wes May, Paul Goodfellow and John Campbell.

The Juniors will get another chance to wrap the series up Wednesday night at the Alemite at 8 p.m. and City will once again have their backs to the wall in Wednesday's sixth game.

Legion Resumes Winning Ways

What does a team do after it loses its first game of the season.

Well the Legion 99 team of the Belleville and District Softball League resumed its winning ways.

Monday night the Legion girls trounced the Dairy Queen 9-1 in the third game of their best-of-seven championship playoff series.

Last Thursday the Dairy Queen handed the Legion squad its first loss of the season — including regular season and playoff competition — by a score of 8-6 in the final series at a game apiece.

Winning pitcher Sandra Claus paced the Legion crew Monday night with a triple and a pair of doubles while teammates Sharon Lummiss and Marjorie Reid contributed a homes and double and a homer and single respectively.

Barb Breadner suffered the loss for the Dairy Queen who got their only run from Lorrie Rolland. The series resumes Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Cheese Producers Field.

Pitching—Tom Seaver, Mets, won his ninth straight National League game with a four-hitter as he pitched New York to a 3-1 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Batting—Willie Mays, Giants, became only the second man in history to hit 600 career homers when his two-run pinch hit blast in the seventh inning cracked a tie and gave San Francisco a 6-2 NL victory over San Diego Padres.

Allan Has Hope

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Bob Allan, coach of Peterborough Lakers, said Monday his team lost the first game of the 1966 Canadian senior lacrosse final series and still came back to win the Mann Cup. He's hoping for a repeat performance in the current Canadian professional finals.

New Westminster Salmonbellies Sunday defeated Peterborough 11-9 in the first game of the best-of-seven pro series. The second game is to be played here tonight.

"We lost the first game of the 1966 Mann Cup 11-9 to Vancouver Carlings and then came back to win the next four games," Allan said. "We made a lot of mistakes, but I'm quite confident that we can come back and win it all."

Cliff Sepka, Salmonbellies' coach, said he knew the Lakers "wouldn't be any pushovers" and that the two teams are evenly matched.

SMALL PROGRESS

VANCOUVER (CP) — An established, B.C.-based garden, has invented a tiny respirator to replace equipment more than 10 times its size, but researchers only four inches long and weighing five ounces, is being mass produced and marketed around the world. The respirator, says the inventor, may be carried in a doctor's pocket to be used in emergency cases of heart failure.

Securities Body Denies Claim It Dropped Prudential Cases

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Securities Commission denied Monday it dropped 27 charges against officers of Prudential Finance Corp. Ltd. of Toronto, which collapsed in 1966 leaving 8,500 unsecured creditors with $20,000,000 in claims.

H. S. Bray, OSC vice-chairman, said allegations by the company's Ontario creditors "are incorrect."

"The record speaks for itself," he said. "Those involved in the Prudential Finance matter have been vigorously prosecuted under the existing legislation and the Criminal Code."

About 600 members of the Prudential Finance Creditors Association of Ontario voted at a meeting here Sunday to sue the province, alleging the OSC was negligent in allowing Prudential to stay in business three years after learning it was bankrupt.

They approved the lawsuit proposal after being told by Harry Westlake, association president, that 27 charges had been thrown out of court because they were signed by the minister of financial and commercial affairs, not the attorney general, and that the decision was upheld on appeal.

Mr. Bray said Monday the court's decision, which "disappointed" the commission, involved only four cases. The commission proceeded on several others and secured convictions.

Joseph Benoit Brien, former Prudential president, faced 16 charges and was convicted on three—two of fraud and one of theft. He is serving a four-year prison term.

Roman Lipowski, another Prudential officer, was sentenced to six months definite, 12 months indeterminate, on conviction of fraud in the sale of company debentures.

Lipowski and three other officers were also charged under the Securities Act with unlawful trading in the company's securities. They were convicted and assessed fines ranging from $100 to $1,000.

Also convicted under the act were Prudential and a related company, Ontario Metal Specialties Co. Ltd., but they were given suspended sentences because fines would have penalized creditors.

The four charges dismissed by the court were laid jointly against Brien, Toronto accountant Morris Stein and Prudential officials J. E. Despard and Joseph A. Jonak. They were charged with filing false information in company financial statements and a prospectus.

Donald Deacon, the Ontario Liberal Party's finance critic, Monday accused Leslie Rowntree, minister of financial and commercial affairs, of "stupidity and carelessness" in handling the charges and called for his resignation.

James Renwick, deputy leader of the provincial New Democratic Party and legal adviser to the Prudential creditors' association, said in a telephone interview from Ottawa he sees no reason the dismissed charges cannot be relaid.

"I don't believe they could plead that they were twice put in jeopardy," he said.

Ontario Will Promote Foster Homes for Aged

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is preparing a new promotion for a little-known but popular alternative to institutional homes for the aged—foster homes.

Seventy-five senior citizens already are taking part in the foster home program, 60 of them in the Welland area and the others in Ottawa and five other centres.

Despite the security, independence and feeling of belonging among those benefiting from the program, it hasn't been tried in cities like Toronto.

Lawrence Crawford, director of the office on aging in Ontario's department of social and family services, explained: "The program has never really had much thrust to it—there's never been any real drive."

However, Mr. Crawford now is ready to give the program a boost with Toronto the target city. More than 700 are waiting to be admitted to Metropolitan Toronto's homes for the aged, and a spokesman at one home said thousands more would like to leave the homes for something better.

Mr. Crawford says his first step will be to advertise in an effort to reach people willing to open their homes to senior citizens in good health.

Although there are no set guidelines for the choice of a landlady, the office on aging draws most of them from the middle-aged-and-over group, often widows whose families have grown up and left home.

Douglas Rapelje, administrator of three municipal homes for the aged in the Welland area, says:

"You have to find the right kind of people with the right motivation. The personalities of the boarders are far more important than the physical facilities they have to offer."

However, the foster home must be clean and pass certain stipulations, like having proper fire escapes. It also should be close to recreational facilities, senior citizen centres and clubs, churches and hospitals.

The foster home program is administered by the municipal homes for the aged in co-operation with the province. The province receives $139 a month. The pensioner pays as much as he can afford and the municipal and provincial governments split 30 to 70 per cent respectively on the remainder.

Mr. Rapelje said it cost Welland 35 cents a day a person to run its foster program last year —$3 a day less than the cost of maintaining a person in a home for the aged.

Brazilian Forces Ruling Unchecked

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — For the first time in 24 years, Brazil's all-powerful armed forces appeared this week to have abandoned almost all liaries with constitutional government. A three-member military junta rules the country.

For many years, Brazilian military officers described themselves as defenders of democracy and the constitution.

But since a 1964 military coup bringing Marshal Humberto Castello Branco to power, the influence of Congress and Brazilian politicians has progressively diminished and now is negligible.

No dialogue now exists between the government and the people and there is no immediate prospect of it being restarted.

The military chiefs met this week several times to discuss the future of Brazil and of its president, Marshal Arthur da Costa e Silva, incapacitated by a stroke Aug. 31.

But at no time did they publicly consult civilian politicians apart from members of the cabinet.

Vice-President Pedro Alexio, a civilian politician who was brushed aside by the three armed forces' ministers when they took control of the country two weeks ago, was in seclusion and declined to comment to the press.

Kiesinger Dominates Scene In German Election Campaign

COLOGNE (CP) — Kurt Georg Kiesinger dominates the scene as the campaign for next Sunday's West German federal election heads into the home stretch.

The entire election strategy of the Christian Democratic Union, its office since the state was established in 1949, has been built around the grey-haired chancellor.

Everything depends on the chancellor, the party's slogans proclaim in words and pictures decorating fences, walls and billboards all over this thriving republic of 60,000,000.

If the voter wants to continue to live in peace and prosperity, he must put his faith in the 65-year-old leader, the party argues.

"Name me another party in the world that has presided over so much progress for 20 unbroken years," says Kiesinger at an election rally in this Rhineland city where all the wartime bombing scars have been eliminated. No one dares take up the chancellor in his challenge.

But out of the audience of 3,000 comes the "Sieg Heil!" shouts from a squadron of young hecklers. Under fire for his service to the Third Reich, the chancellor does not flinch. He seems able to turn the tables on hostile youth, sometimes shaming them with his disarming humor, sometimes responding with verbal bricks.

Nevertheless Kiesinger's past is a problem. He was a Nazi party member and during the war an official in the propaganda apparatus. Christian Democratic spokesmen answer criticism by saying Kiesinger was only a minor official who had no choice but to swim with the current. Some of the younger generation as well as influential critics question this argument.

Karl Gerold of the newspaper Frankfurter Rundschau says the past was not so minor. From 1943 to 1945 Kiesinger was deputy chief of radio propaganda for the Nazi ministry. Gerold says in an editorial that such a past lives on in a man's basic nature. He urges voters to vote for a man who is "pure in heart."

This criticism, however, has not crept in the speeches of the political leaders.

The Social Democrats, Kiesinger's coalition partners for the last three years, take no issue with the chancellor's past.

The two major parties are trying to win enough seats in the 496-seat Bundestag, lower house of the West German parliament, to form a majority government. Each has not ruled out that another coalition may be necessary.

While sizing each other up for another possible partnership, the two parties are leaving the door open for a possible coalition with one of the minor parties such as the Free Democrats.

None wants any part of Adolf Hitler's National Democratic Party, labelled by critics as neo-Nazis. Von Thadden's public appearances sometimes in glass cages surrounded by his bodyguards, have been marked by pitched battles and shouts that "One Adolf was enough." Von Thadden has been pelted with rotten eggs and stones amid an outpouring of abuse.

The Social Democrats, under Willy Brandt, are campaigning hard on domestic issues, praying that the sudden and most unusual eruption of strikes will not hurt them at the polls. Social peace is highly prized in West Germany and the Social Democrats are closely identified with the organized workers.

Among individual leaders Kiesinger is easily the dominant personality. The Social Democrats do not, in fact, concentrate on Brandt as the leader although he will be chancellor if they win, as some opinion polls suggest they might. Brandt, 55, is sharing the party's top billing with Karl Schiller, 58, economics minister in the coalition government and the most pushing for revaluation of the mark against the government's more conservative wishes.

Schiller is no spellbinder. He's more of the professor type. One newspaper cartoon shows his audience fast asleep while he talks about the revaluation issue. But the Social Democrats point with pride to his widely-accepted intellectual brilliance. This is the sort of man who will build modern Germany if elected, they say.

Kiesinger tends to concentrate more on foreign than domestic issues. His party argues that Brandt lacks the full confirmation of finesse, sophistication and toughness to promote Bonn's interests in the international jungle—a curious argument since Brandt has been foreign minister for the last three years.

Brandt, for his part, complains that Kiesinger has not given him the latitude he should have as foreign minister. A wartime refugee from the Nazis, Brandt gained fame as mayor of West Berlin during 1957-61.

Protestants to Rescue

Money Now Headache For English-speaking

MONTREAL (CP) — A temporary solution to the bitter St. Leonard school conflict goes into effect today as English-speaking Grades. 1 and 2 students belatedly return to classes.

The 363 Roman Catholic children are to be bussed to two schools under the administration of the Protestant school board of Greater Montreal. The schools are both outside the boundaries of the northeast suburb.

Today, however, eight buses will be used to accommodate parents who plan to accompany their children for the first day of school.

The problem of transportation, which delayed the opening of classes by one day, will be handled by four buses chartered from the Montreal Transportation Commission at a total cost of $100 a day.

And for Robert Beale, head of the St. Leonard Parents Association, the 15-month-old battle against a local school board decision to eliminate gradually all English-language instruction takes on a new look.

The arrangement with Montreal's Protestant board is set up temporary classes and provide 11 teachers carries a $140,000 price tag, and Mr. Beale is chief fund-raiser.

Included in this cost is a $75 monthly fee for each student, a stipulation made by the Protestant board when it offered its classroom space earlier this month.

The association, with 23 directors, must also meet the transportation costs expected to reach about $30,000 in the 1969-70 school year.

Mr. Beale, 39, says it is hoped the money will be raised through business and individual contributions. He plans a speaking tour in Montreal and around the province.

A full-page advertisement in a local newspaper appealing for contributions already has brought in about $5,000.

One federal member of Parliament forwarded a cheque and a statement of sympathy with the English-speaking parents, and the Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly for Richmond, Emilien Lafrance, has donated $25.

The Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, representing more than 17,000 Protestant and Jewish families, last week urged its members to donate at least $1 each in support of the classes.

The St. Leonard Roman Catholic school board began cutting out English-language instruction last September, and fighting the French-only policy has become a full-time job for Mr. Beale.

He was instrumental in setting up basement classes last year for the 365 English-speaking Grade I students affected by the suburban school board's policy.

He represented St. Leonard's 17,000 non-French-speaking people in their appeals to the provincial government for high-level intervention.

The government refused to veto the board's policy, however.

North York Postpones Student Exchanges

TORONTO (CP) — North York borough, which has the only French-language public school in Metropolitan Toronto, has deferred for two months a proposal for student exchanges with a Roman Catholic school board in St. Leonard, Que.

The exchange was proposed by trustee Saul Cowan who said it would "test the effectiveness of the two school systems on the growth of bilingualism."

The borough opened the French school two weeks ago.

Board chairman Bruce Bone said the French-language school in North York has an enrolment of 280 students.

Trouble in Suburb

Montreal Area Board At Odds with Teachers

MONTREAL (CP) — Suburban Chambly schools are to remain closed until settlement of a confrontation between teachers and the regional school board over the status of teachers re-hired after resigning last spring.

The board announced Monday night that it had decided to keep the schools closed until it receives some assurance from the teachers that they will end their resistance to the re-hiring arrangement.

About 250 teachers are involved, including about 415 who resigned last June to protest delays in province-wide contract negotiations. About 10,000 teachers resigned throughout the province.

All 415 teachers were re-hired by the commission on the basis of the new proposed provincial contract, but they received credit as new teachers, losing their previous seniority and taking a loss in pay.

The teachers association has insisted that 415 be rehired on the basis of their former status and Monday rejected the board's position in the dispute.

They also decided to continue to put such pressure on the school board as working to rule and refusing to take on duties not outlined in the provincial agreement.

The board says the teachers' attitude has led to serious unrest in the schools.

Robert Belle-Isle, director-general of the board, said he deplored acts of vandalism which reportedly broke out in some schools last week.

"Pressure on the part of the teachers started the disorder," he said. "Some students started fights and fires were lit in trash baskets. We cannot dismiss schools in such a climate."

Monday evening, the board said in a statement that it had not received an answer to a telegram sent to the teachers and had no alternative but to keep the schools closed.

The telegram asked the teachers for assurance that the pressure applied by them in the schools would be ended and "the order, discipline and moral and physical security of the students would not be compromised."

Meat Boycotts Spread in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Housewives who conducted local supermarket meat boycotts last month say their campaigns were only a partial success—local prices dropped temporarily—but their movement is spreading nationally in the United States.

"The movement is spreading faster than I can keep up with it," said Mickey DiLorenzo who in August led a two-week meat boycott at supermarkets in the Levittown, Long Island area of New York.

"We started with seven people in Levittown and now we have 400-500 people I can call on to actively participate," said Mrs. DiLorenzo, the wife of an electrician.

Mrs. DiLorenzo said the national drop in beef prices—the first in eight months—announced Monday by the bureau of labor statistics was "encouraging."

Porterhouse steak dropped to $1.63 a pound at retail in August from $1.68 in July; sirloin to $1.38 from $1.42 and chuck roast to 74 cents from 75 cents, the bureau reported.

The beef price drop was offset by increases in other meat prices, and egg prices rose 20 per cent reflecting a shift from higher priced red meats to eggs, the bureau said.

Ben Assails Munro Over Pesticides

TORONTO (CP) — John Munro, federal health minister, is full of "poppycock and malarkey" when he claims that pesticide intake of Canadians is at acceptable levels, a Liberal member of the Ontario legislature said Monday.

"We Ontario Liberals are getting sick and tired of the procrastination of the federal minister of health on the subject of DDT," George Ben, health critic and member for Humber, told a press conference.

Mr. Ben said he spoke for the 28-member Liberal caucus in demanding that either the federal or provincial governments, or both, should call a moratorium on the use of all pesticides until their effect on humans has been investigated.

Doctors' Fees Are Defended

CALGARY (CP) — Increased doctors' fees cannot be blamed for the rising cost of health care, Dr. R. M. Matthews, president of the Canadian Medical Association, said Monday.

Dr. Matthews, Peterborough, Ont., said doctors make more money than they used to, but this is because they are giving more and better treatment to more patients.

He told an Alberta Medical Association luncheon the personal services of physicians have taken a "steadily shrinking percentage" of the total cost of health care in recent years.

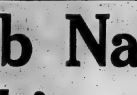
Arab Nations Win Backing of Islam

Egypt, Sudan Blame U.S.



UNITED NATIONS — (CP) — Three Arab governments in the last two days have blamed what they call the pro-Israel policies of the United States for the lack of a settlement in the Middle East.

Jordan started it Monday and Tuesday Sudan and Egypt followed the same line.

At the same time, the Arabs are rejecting a statement last week by Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban that direct negotiations between the disputants are the only way to achieve a settlement.

Lebanon, third Middle East country to speak in the General Assembly Tuesday, attacked Israel but did not mention the United States.

Meanwhile, private talks between U.S. and Soviet representatives on the Middle East continued. And foreign ministers continued their closed meetings. U.S. State Secretary William Rogers met with his British and French counterparts, among others. Rogers has met more than 20 ministers so far since the assembly opened last week and he still has more meetings to go.

Moslem Conference Widens Its Scope

RABAT (AP) — The leaders of 26 Moslem nations and their first summit meeting in this Moroccan capital today with a series of resolutions expected to denounce Israel and demand that it give up all occupied Arab territory.

The resolutions were foreshadowed by a conference agenda unanimously adopted Tuesday night. For the first time many of the non-Arab Moslem countries gave explicit support to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran, Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil and several other non-Arab Moslem leaders whose governments maintain relations with Israel approved the Algerian-sponsored agenda.

The resolutions were expected to have a profound effect through the Islamic world, which stretches across 10,000 miles of the Eastern Hemisphere from Indonesia to Senegal, with a population exceeding 500,000,000.

The agenda was a triumph for the Arab leaders taking part in the parley convened originally only to condemn the fire in the Al Aksah Mosque in Jerusalem and to denounce Israel's annexation of the Arab sector of Jerusalem.

The 11-nation ministerial steering committee went into a night session to draft the conference resolutions following approval of the agenda in a five-hour debate. Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika took the leading role in persuading the committee to adopt an agenda going far beyond the original objectives of the conference.

The seven-point agenda in effect provided the guideline for the resolutions being drafted by the committee for approval at the final plenary session of the delegation chiefs.

The agenda's first item was "the disaster of arson" in the Al Aksah Mosque, Islam's third holiest shrine. It also dealt with the situation in Jerusalem in general, and with the withdrawal of Israeli forces from all Arab territories.

The most sweeping agenda item, point four, called for "the full restitution of the despoiled rights of the people of Palestine and full backing of the Islamic peoples for the Palestine struggle for national liberation."

However, the conference did not go along with Khalfa el Tellisi, delegate of the new revolutionary regime in Libya, who demanded that all the non-Arab Moslem countries immediately break all ties with Israel.

Co-ed Arranges Abortion Trips

TORONTO (CP) — About 10 Toronto girls, mostly university students, go to Montreal each week for abortions because no "safe abortions" can be obtained in Toronto, a University of Toronto student who organizes the trips said Tuesday.

"I make arrangements for about two or three a week," said Sherry Brydson, associated with a women's rights group called the Women's Liberation Movement.

"Two other girls working with me each send about the same number each week," the 21-year-old third-year arts student said in an interview.

Between January and June, she said, 60 girls went to Montreal, got in touch with a group of doctors who secretly organized the abortions and received clinically-safe operations.

"The girls phone a certain number and give a code. The code is a sentence that sell as a kind of password.

"They leave their phone numbers and then they are called back. They're asked if they can make it at such and such a time, and it's all arranged."

Miss Brydson said the abortions cost between $300 and $350 and sometimes the Montreal doctors are so busy that "they're booked for six weeks ahead."

An organizer of a birth-control advice clinic at the university, she said Toronto doctors treat pregnant girls like "some piece of shameful dirt."

Employer Contributions To Medicare Exempt

OTTAWA (CP) — Employers' contributions towards premiums of their employee groups in Ontario's Health Services Insurance Plan will be tax deductible just as they are now under other plans, the federal revenue department said today.

An employee group is defined under OHSIP, which starts Oct. 1, as 15 or more employees, or five to 14 employees who make application to Ontario authorities to be designated as a group.

But for fewer than five employees whose boss pays all or part of their OHSIP premiums the tax gatherer will count the employer's contribution as taxable income.

The difference in the position of the large employee groups and the one to four employees who have all or part of their premiums paid by employers arises from rules in federal income tax law.

The law says an employee may exclude from his income for taxation purposes the benefits he receives from his employer's contribution to a medical care plan only where the employer has a "liability" under the plan to pay all or part of the premium.

Ontario Bans Use Of DDT

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Dennis Wells announced today that general use of the insecticide DDT will be prohibited in Ontario, effective Jan. 1, 1970.

Mr. Wells said in a statement that the use of DDT will be retained only in a few special cases and no pesticide vendor will be allowed to sell the insecticide without a permit from the department of health.

The ban is the first imposed by a province in Canada although the United States department of agriculture has imposed a temporary prohibition on DDT while its effects on human and animal life are studied.

Federal Health Minister John Munro has so far refused to ban use of DDT at the federal level on the grounds that studies have shown that human intake of the insecticide in Canada is not yet at hazardous levels.

Moslems Burned Alive

More Soldiers Rushed To Riot-torn Indian City

AHMEDABAD, India (AP) — More than 2,000 army troops were hurried to this riot-torn capital of Gujarat state today to reinforce security forces seeking to end a week of brutal Hindu-Moslem fighting, reliable sources said.

Approximately 5,000 police and more than 1,000 army and border security troops have been unable to quell completely the wide-scale rioting despite what amounted to virtual martial law through the city.

Home Minister Y. B. Chavan arrived in an air force plane to tour the stricken areas where more than 300 are believed to have died since the vicious fighting broke out last Thursday.

At one point weeping Moslem leaders pleaded with him to bring an end to the violence.

The Moslem community, which makes up about 20 per cent of the 1,500,000 residents of this textile city, has suffered the worst. One Moslem source said at least 74 per cent of the dead were Moslems.

More than 25 persons were killed, some of them burned alive, Tuesday during and shortly after a three-hour-relaxation in a tight around-the-clock curfew, sources said.

Arrests during the week are believed to be in the thousands, but no official figures were available.

A high-ranking source, describing the violence, said: "They (the rioters) are pulling them out of their homes and shops with their possessions, tying their hands and feet and burning them alive. It's grim."

Few Nursing Homes Meet Standards

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario health department official said Tuesday no further licences for nursing homes will be granted by the province unless existing homes improve their standards.

Dr. C. H. Doherty, chief of the department's medical rehabilitation branch, said that "no more provincial licences will be issued unless there is definite tangible evidence of rapid progress."

In an address at the annual convention of Associated Nursing Homes Inc., Dr. Doherty said that only 40 of the province's 400 nursing homes have qualified for full licences since the act making them mandatory came into effect three years ago.

Chinese Hoard Food

HONG KONG (AP) — People throughout South China are hoarding food because of rumors that Mao Tse-tung is dead and a power struggle is already under way in Peking, Chinese arriving from Canton reported today.

The travellers said the rumors started because Mao has made no known public appearances in the last four months.

The sources said the rumors mushroomed and have been much more widely believed in the last two weeks because of developments which many Canton residents believe are directly attributable to Mao's death.

Rogers Thinks Russia Wants Progress in Mid-east Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary William Rogers's first meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko gave the American some encouragement about possibilities for negotiations with the Russians.

"Progress" and "movement" are not words Rogers would use to describe U.S. efforts to make headway with the Russians on the Middle East and some other outstanding issues.

But the secretary expects Moscow's answer on starting talks to curb nuclear missiles will be "yes." He thinks the Russians are interested in moving the Middle East discussions ahead, and he found Gromyko's discourse free of diatribe even amid disagreement.

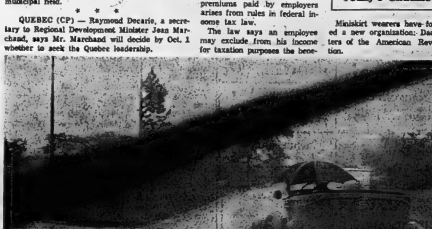
This picture of Rogers' three-hour dinner meeting with Gromyko Monday night was given by U.S. officials who spoke to reporters under rules barring direct quotation.

The officials added this caution: Even if negotiations with the Russians appear possible on some matters, it remains to be seen whether they will be successful.

If Gromyko's return dinner for Rogers Friday follows Monday night's pattern, it is possible that the Soviet leader will be invited to see President Nixon before Gromyko's return to Moscow, expected about Oct. 1.

The Soviet minister is here for the UN General Assembly's opening weeks, as Rogers is.

The officials gave this account of the Rogers-Gromyko meeting Monday:



Gromyko said that since he had promised a Kremlin response "soon" to Nixon's June 11 bid to begin talks on limiting strategic arms, he hoped Rogers would not prod him further for the long-awaited reply.

Since Gromyko said the Kremlin's answer would deal with a time and place, and from his other conversation, Rogers got a clear impression that Moscow's reply would be favorable when it comes.

On the Middle East issue, the Big Four—the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France —are expected to resume talks about mid-October. Meanwhile, U.S.-Soviet discussions are taking place.

Gromyko indicated his agreement with the U.S. view that a Middle East settlement should be a single-package, contractual agreement, signed by and committing the Middle East nations, providing for a durable settlement recognizing the right of sovereign states there to live in peace.

But such a settlement must be agreed to by the nations themselves, and the Arabs and Israelis are still far apart. After the Big Four talks, the hope is to get the opposing sides to start negotiating through UN mediator Gunnar Jarring of Sweden.

Poor Visibility Verdict In Youngster's Death

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The driver of an automobile involved in a fatal accident responded the prisoner of the court last night before testifying to an inquest on the death of the two-year-old victim.

Norman C. Boulter asked for the protection of the Canada Evidence Act before testifying before the coroner's inquiry into the death of Derren Leonard, fatally injured outside his Emily Street home July 7.

Mr. Boulter took the stand before Coroner Dr. John Stock after witnesses had testified that scratches on the windshield of his automobile obscured driving vision when reflecting light.

Police Sergeant Keith Wright said he tested the Boulter car at the same time and place of the mishap and found his vision obscured when driving into the sun.

Garage mechanic Frank Hall, who inspected the automobile for police, testified street lights had a dazzling effect when reflecting on the scratches.

Mr. Boulter said the scratches, caused by scraping frost from the windshield earlier in the year, did cause glare from nights at night. However, he never had any difficulty driving, he said.

The evening of the mishap he said he was wearing sunglasses and visually could "honestly say I didn't experience any difficulty."

He noticed children playing on both sides of the road as he drove down Emily Street at about 15 miles an hour and turned his car to the middle of the pavement, he said.

He could not recall specifically seeing the Leonard child.

"I saw a group of children," testified Mr. Boulter. "I didn't pay attention to any one particular child."

As he drove opposite the group he heard a noise like a "loud thump" seemingly at the rear of the car.

"It sounded like something maybe hit the trunk," he recalled.

His attention was first drawn to the accident when he heard his wife and people on the street screaming.

Derren Leonard boy died the following day in Belleville General Hospital from head injuries.

The jury took more than an hour before returning its verdict.

It ruled that contributing factors in the child's death were "poor visibility caused by the light striking the marred windshield . . . and children playing on or near the roadway."

Contempra, the 'Now' Look

Mrs. Joan Philp shows off Bell Telephone's latest pride and joy — the award-winning contempra phone. The dialing unit fits into the handset, and with the recall button, also on the handset, the line can be cleared so you can dial without hanging up.

Space Age Telephone Bell's Pride, and Joy

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

You have the chance to add a real touch of the space age and put a dash of that advanced technology right in your own home — it's as near as your telephone.

Bell Telephone describes it as the "now-looking" phone, and calls it Contempra.

Only available since late August, more than 250 orders were placed with the Bell with in the first few weeks of the announcement.

Local Bell manager E. G. Thompson termed the response "tremendous" and noted that in larger centres demands were so heavy that production had to be stepped up to satisfy the number of orders.

Contempra can be described as compact and uncomplicated, with its slim lines emphasizing a unique design.

This communication brainchild was hatched in the Northern Electric Laboratories in Ottawa — receiving an award for excellence from the Canada Design Council.

The "new look" incorporates convenience features such as an extra long cord and a special recall button in the handset which enables the caller to disconnect and place another call without hanging up.

Added to all these advantages and convenience features is the fact that the same set can be placed on a desk or hung on a wall.

The telephone has come a long way since Alexander Graham Bell successfully completed the first long distance telephone call in 1876.

Here is one example: In 1946 there were two million telephones and 19 million people in Canada. Today, the population has increased to 20 million and 7.5 million telephones.

"More than anything," asserted Mr. Thompson, "we feel we are in the communications business."

"We have our own particular telephone problems here in Canada," he continued, "but what it boils down to is the small number of people scattered over such a large area. In addition to that, we have to cope with temperatures, too."

Right now in the telephone business, the company is working to uncomplicate the complicated.

"We are working on installation of plug-in equipment. That is, if something goes wrong with a piece of equipment, the repairman simply unplugs it and replaces it," said Mr. Thompson.

Looking into the future, the touch telephone system for the Quinte area will be here to stay within the next year.

"Video phones — the gadget that enables one to talk to someone and see who you are talking to is "quite feasible" at the present time, and probably will become commonplace sooner than anyone realizes," asserted Mr. Thompson.

IN MEMORIAM

ARNOTT — In loving memory of a dear sister, Margaretha Arnott, who passed away September 24th, 1967.
Memories we waited day by day,
And watched her suffering pass slowly by,
Slowly but surely passing away,
From the pain she scarce could bear,
And then God called from this world of care,
Her suffering and pain is past,
We hope she has gone to realms of rest.
And in Heaven has peace at last.
Sadly missed and always remembered by her family.

GORDON — In memory of John Robert Gordon, who passed away on September 24th, 1968.
Our thoughts are with you the world over,
But we, the children know this cannot be.
All that he taught us . . . all his hopes and dreams,
Will live forever, in our memory.
— Sadly missed by Ruth, Allen, Bob, Vera, Bill and their families.

Will Help Build RCAF Memorial

Hastings County Council will take part in the construction of the proposed RCAF memorial to be built in Sidney Township on air force property, but will wait until its December session to decide the amount it will contribute.

The county has received a request for a contribution toward the construction of the memorial, but would like more information before taking action.

Sidney Township Reeve Jack Reid said his municipality had also been asked for a contribution, but had taken no action.

The memorial is expected to cost between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000 and will contain a memorial hall, a chapel, museum and convention room to 500 people.

The building is being built as a memorial to the contribution made during the Second World War by all RCAF personnel.

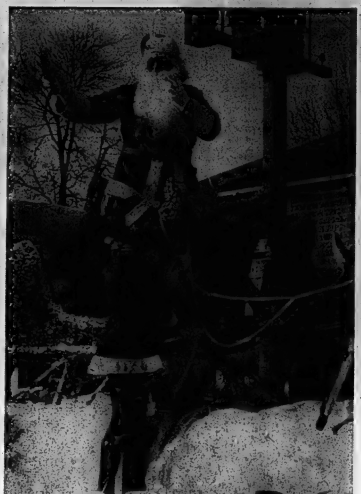
Grand, Civil Juries May Be Scrapped

The possible elimination of grand juries and civil juries for all but the more important cases will be a matter for discussion at some future session of Hastings County Council.

But the idea is almost certain to see strong opposition from some members who fear erosion of the country's inherited judicial system.

After considerable discussion the matter was tabled with direction that the two resolutions be circulated.

Warden Donald Rodgers said that it was not entirely a matter of dollars and cents, but mainly because many people called for jury duty were "frustrated and angry" at being called in and at the last moment see cases settled out of court.



It was pointed out that in many Canadian provinces grand juries and civil juries had been eliminated.

But Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen said she wanted no part of tampering with the present jury system.

"What we are seeing is a gradual eroding of our inherited judicial system," she said. "Everyone has a right to be tried by a jury of his peers."

Madoc Reeve Thomas Burnside noted that grand juries have duties other than to decide whether a man was to go on trial. Part of their traditional duty was to inspect jails, hospitals and other institutions and for this reason alone he would oppose their elimination.

Bancroft Reeve Jack. N. Brown was another committee who felt jury duty was important.

The Spirit of Christmas Past

Belleville Week

Camp, Students Plan 'Bear Pit'

Dalton Camp, one-time president of the Canadian Progressive Conservative Association and the man who ran Robert Stanfield's leadership campaign, will be in Belleville during Belleville Week to act as moderator for a student "think tank".

Mr. Camp will be the central figure in a bear pit discussion period involving hand picked students from Carleton College, University of Ottawa, Queen's University, Trent and University of Toronto.

"There will be no fixed limits to the debate," said general chairman Donald Soutter in announcing the activity planned for Friday, Oct. 3 at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

"The students were recommended by the college presidents as ones being articulate and informed. They are expected to express their opinions and can do so in any fashion. The debate will probably centre around education, municipal affairs, and the inter-relationship between the three levels of government. However, there are no ground rules and it will be up to the moderator and the panelists as to what direction the debate takes.

"We are looking for something constructive to come out o fthe activity, for nowadays the young people have something to say and I don't think the ropinions can be overlooked."

The public will be invited to be on hand for the activity.

Mr. Soutter also commented on the sale of booster buttons saying that "up until now the yhave not been going as quickly as we anticipated.

"There is absolutely no city hall budget for this promotion week and as a result there is no cost to the taxpayer for the expenses involved.

"We are having national and international guests and accompanying the business of putting on the activities we are faced with a budget of approximately $7,000.

"The parade itself, although underwritten by the Quinte Home Builders will cost about $800 to produce.

"The residents of this area will have a chance to see these activities and as well will be invited at no charge to dances at Bleecker Hall at the fair grounds on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. In addition the Belleville Trades and Labor Council is putting on a free street dance at the Market Square on Wednesday night.

"Although the committee is looking for a revenue from buttons of $3,000 to help defray the expenses. What is just as important is that people should be willing to wear a button during this week to express publicity that they are boosters of Belleville.

The booster button distribution is being handled by the Kinsmen and Kinettes with two downtown locations being City Hall and the Chamber of Commerce office.

Few Ho Ho Hos As Santa Parade Apathy Shows

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Setting Belleville streets echoing with Santa's happy Ho-Ho-Ho may be no laughing matter this year.

In fact, the jolly gent could face some pretty rough sledding enroute to the city's annual Christmas parade.

That's the frosty indication from last night's meeting of the parade committee, called to organize Santa's 1969 civic welcome.

The prospects for this year's parade don't exactly seem blissful-bright.

"I don't think they look good at all to left the truth," was the gloomy reaction of Ted Poste, former city fire chief who heads the committee.

Core of the problem apparently is the lack of manpower - volunteers and organizations willing to donate energy — and space — to assembling the big parade.

Last night only 15 people showed up at the committee rendervous, the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization building on Dundas Street East says Mr. Poste.

Most were the same familiar faces — committee veterans who have undertaken the project for years. There were only two newcomers, believes the chairman.

Any breakdown of the 1969 parade would crumble what has become a Belleville Christmas tradition.

When the parade was first launched in the early 1950s it was the most spectacular of its kind between Toronto and Montreal.

A merry marchpast of floats, bands, acrobats and candy-tossing clowns, it officially marks the start of the Christmas season for the city.

The glittering vanguard heralding Santa's arrival has always drawn thousands from around Eastern Ontario.

Last year, the event showed organizational strains early in the season. The parade went on — actually bigger than ever — although public warnings were out that difficulties were threatening.

However, said Mr. Poste, while the 1968 committee hopefully looked for some community service group to undertake the project, a new parade has rolled around without any such reaction to date.

Many city organizations and citizens contribute to the parade, building floats, manning mobile exhibits, donning costumes as direct participants. Funds are donated from various sources.

However, a key link in the chain of parades since the start has been the city fire department.

Firemen gave of their off-duty time to construct many of the floats.

More important, the department surrendered space in the city fire halls for work areas. The hundreds of walking participants are costumed and made up for each parade at the Moira Street West fire station.

But in more than 25 years the department has grown — in equipment and personnel.

Space is at a premium, although Fire Chief Leo Colhane promised last night's meeting his department would co-operate "one hundred percent in any way we can" with the project.

Actually, indicates Mr. Poste, firefighters have been unfairly saddled for years with major responsibility for the event.

"It's not a firemen's job in anyway," emphasized the committee chairman. "It's a citizens - of - Belleville event. The firemen have been taken for granted."

But, while initial prospects may not be bright as a Christmas tree, the committee has not yet turned out the lights in its organizational shop.

After last night's opening survey of the situation, the group elected t ohold another meeting Oct. 7.

At that time, details will be reviewed and some solutions may be available from the community at large.

"Nobody wants to see this event go down the stream," says Mr. Poste.

Hastings Will Trumpet Assets

Hastings county is going to advertise its advantages as a location for new industry.

Warmora Reeve William Shannon, chairman of the council planning and industrial committee, told council yesterday that the firm of Harry Dulmage Associates Ltd. had been hired to prepare and design an industrial brochure which would be mailed out to at least 2,000 industrialists across Canada, the United States and Europe.

Mr. Shannon said the statistical information for the brochure was now being obtained by the firm which is expected to visit every municipality.

The brochure will be brought up to date each year with the 2,000 copies to be mailed out annually. Much of the $4,000 cost in future years would be for postage, it was stated.

Keeping Public Informed

Public bodies have a duty to keep people informed of what they are doing in their name. This is done through the medium of the press and radio; but too often these days public bodies seek to evade their responsibility in this regard, either by excluding the Press altogether or by discussing matters in "committee-of-the-whole."

In Brockville recently a citizen wrote to the local newspaper complaining among other things that threats to freedom came not from the Press, "but from persons in and out of elected offices, persons who now demand the diet of public happenings be subjected to censorship."

The complaint referred in particular to alleged failure of the Leeds and Grenville Board of Education to advertise a public meeting general to the board's occasional practice of going into committee at which point the Press is either asked to leave or to refrain from taking any note of the proceedings.

Replying to the charge Leeds and Grenville Education Director Lloyd Dennis said the job of attendance counsellor had not been advertised because the person engaged was already a board attendance officer. There can be little quarel with this decision particularly as it likely saved money, but Mr. Dennis' explanation of the board's committee discussions is open to question.

He said committee-of-the-whole discussion provides an opportunity to "squarely talk about an issue in the name of the public." But how can this be so when the Press are unable to inform the public of what is said?

Unfortunately it is much nearer the truth that committee-of-the whole is a device employed simply because a board has something to hide from the public. If that is not the case then why the need for it?

The public as taxpayers, supporting not only the educational system but the salaried members of the board including the amply-rewarded director, should not have to tolerate such cavalier disregard of their rights. That they do, unfortunately is often the case, until someone, as in this instance in Brockville, complains. And rightly so.

What's in A Name

They say names make news — so who's Jackie Ickx? He is the young Belgian who has just won the Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport.

Accustomed of the dominance of such grand prix names as McLaren, Hulme, Brabham, Surtees and Hill the name Ickx has a waspish touch that suggests some cocky intruder hogging the limelight.

But Ickx obviously is no fly in the racing car ointment. He posted a lap record of 114 mph in the qualifying race and won the 225-mile grand prix at an average of 112.76 mph.

That boosted his points status for the world championship (already won by Scotsman Graham Hill) to 31 points, displacing New Zealander Bruce McLaren for second place.

It looks like we shall be hearing more of the young Belgian.

And speaking of names — and sport — the United States in recent years retained its mastery of Ryder Cup golf against British with exotic names like Lloyd Mangrum, Jimmy Demeret and Dutch Harrison. Now the Americans have been held to a first-ever tie, at 16 points each, fielding such relatively ordinary - sounding players as Dave Hill, Ken Still, Dale Douglass and Dan Sikes. Even Jack Nicklaus evokes no more comment than a John Smith and Lee Trevino sounds like one of those contrived movie names.

But one thing they all have in common; they are all superb golfers. This year's tie was a boost for the British golfers — frequently outplayed in the past — moving Captain Sam Snead to describe it as "one of the most exciting and magnificent golf finishes I have ever seen."

Danger to All

Picture Highway 14 south of here and near Mountain View cheese factory the car ahead is weaving back and forth across the centre of the road.

It is dark and the lights of oncoming cars appear ahead. There are moments when the fellow in front looks certain to be in collision with one of them. Then, at the vital moment he swerves back to his own side.

Will this man and his passenger make it safely to their destination. Or will he end up in a ditch or worse, collide with another vehicle?

That was the choice for one driver at least on Highway 14 recently. Because of his condition every other driver and passenger using the highway in that area was in jeopardy.

Multiply this sort of thing across the land and there emerges a picture of one of the main reasons why people get killed on our highways.

U.S. Controversy Over Severity of Penalties As

Crackdown Continues on Smuggling of Marijuana

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — While United States border guards count pills and weigh marijuana seized on the Mexican frontier and Senate subcommittees debate President Nixon's strict new narcotics proposals, one dominant and critical theme emerges.

Although many sources here feel some form of marijuana control is needed, the Nixon proposals, which could give drug users higher penalties than murderers have been described as punishment exceeding the crime.

The proposals have come under fire on several points, but especially on a section that includes marijuana in the same category as heroin or LSD.

Under the proposed bill, the penalty for a first-offence possession of marijuana would be two to 10 years imprisonment. For the first-sale offence, the penalty would be five to 20 years.

Those types of penalties are stiffer than murderers get in certain cases in some states.

The proposed laws, however, are only one of two ways the administration hopes to use to combat the rising use of illegal drugs.

Operation Intercept, which reached full operation during the weekend along the 2,500 miles of U.S.-Mexican border, netted huge piles of illegal pills and thousands of pounds of marijuana. The intercepted contraband included a half-ton of marijuana aboard a rented plane piloted by a student.

The operation is to continue indefinitely, but officials here see it as a difficult task even with the expected co-operation of the Mexican government.

As for the stiffer legislation, Dr. Stanley Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, recently urged a Senate subcommittee to work to end mandatory jail terms for drug users.

"I know of no clearer instance in which the punishment is more harmful than the crime," he said in describing marijuana as a "mild hallucinogen" that "should not be associated with narcotics either medically or legally."

He also said, however, that he was not advocating removal of restrictions on the drug and that, until more is known on the long-term effects of marijuana, "the drug should continue to be controlled."

Another subcommittee was told by a young student, a former addict, that stiffer penalties are not the solution because "the sort of person I was doesn't care." He said more facilities where people can get help are needed.

The Star Star commenta in an editorial: "No one, as far as we are aware, contends that smoking marijuana is good for people, especially young people. But neither is there anything resembling agreement on the nature and extent of its harmful effects."

It adds, however, that there can be no doubt that its use, as well as the use of other drugs, is increasing at an alarming pace.

"In light of the present knowledge of the harmfulness or otherwise of marijuana, these penalties are unduly harsh and unrealistic," it says. They should be modified, while severe penalties are retained for pedlars and importers of the so-called hard drugs."

The American Medical Association and the World Health Organization have both termed marijuana a harmful drug that should be controlled.

Seaway Economies

It Costs More Overland from Coast

Montreal Gazette

Some statements are being made by the Port of Halifax that it is cheaper to send freight to Montreal by way of Halifax than to take the St. Lawrence route. This cheaper method comes, it's claimed, from combination of containership and fast rail haul between Halifax and Montreal.

The Port of Halifax has every right to seek business, and there should be enough shipping for both ports. But the facts should be kept clear.

It costs no more to ship to Montreal than it does to Halifax. What are known as the Atlantic Conference freight rates have established the same shipping costs to both ports. These common rates were established for U.K. Westbound as long ago as 1936; for Eastbound in 1938; for Continental East, bound in 1947; and for Inter-American in 1958.

It is true that there are specially subsidized railway freight rates between Halifax and Montreal. But even with these favourable rates, it still costs more to send goods overland by rail for 1,100 miles than to have freight carried directly to Montreal by ship.

If shipping to Halifax instead of Montreal is said to be cheaper, the question may well be asked: cheaper for whom? Cheaper for sea carriers, no doubt, as they do not have to make the journey up the St. Lawrence. But definitely not cheaper for the consignee — the person to whom the freight is sent.

As the costs of shipping are always a large item in the price of goods and production in Canada, the landing of goods directly in Montreal is still cheaper for the consignee, and the sending of goods by ship from Montreal is still cheaper for the exporter.

One of the chief advantages of the Port of Montreal has always been that it is deep inland. In the age of containers, this is still true. It is a fact, and it should be recognized as such.

Georgia Strait Oil Probe

Vancouver Sun

With the spotlight on oil in the north, a major development is oil exploration off the B.C. coast — the award of a permit to Gulf Oil Canada to explore over a million acres of Georgia Strait — might not have received the attention it deserves.

The area in question straddles the Strait between Vancouver Island and the mainland and runs through the Gulf Islands up to Campbell River. Previously some 12 million acres were turned over to Shell Barbaro — of what can happen when offshore oil spillage gets out of hand, there are still no firm guarantees of protection and prevention. One of the reasons, as B.C. Mines Minister Frank Richter established last spring, is the jurisdictional squabble between Ottawa and B.C. over offshore mineral rights. This has not been finally settled and until it is there's no assurance that public interest and resources will be fully protected.

Defence Spending

Pentagon Gets Its $s But Senate Critics Gain Ground

By ROD CURRIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — It is ironic that Ottawa's announcement Friday of substantial military reductions should follow by one day the United States Senate vote giving the U.S. defence department virtually everything it asked for—to the tune of $20,000,000,000.

But the whole tone of the debate, which occupied eight weeks instead of the traditional one or maybe two sessions, indicates the day of carte blanche now are over in the Pentagon.

Although critics of what has become known as the military-industrial complex fought the bill almost word for word, and lost every round, they came away content that in the long-term view victory is theirs.

The measure authorizing the money for weapons and research for the military services was passed by a vote of 81 to 5 and in fact little was changed from the form in which it earlier cleared the Senate armed services committee, traditionally receptive to Pentagon demands.

On of the leaders in the attack on what he terms military waste, Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.), has said, for instance, that the country "blew a billion dollars" for 82 C-5A troop transport planes "we do not need."

Still, when the dust had settled and he and his fellow critics soundly handed, he could characterize the long debate as "an attempt for the first time in almost two decades to get Congress and the country to exercise its critical faculties over defence spending."

Aside from defeat of the amendment to limit the outlay for the C-5A, the critics failed in attempts to block deployment of the Safeguard anti-missile system, to postpone construction of a new nuclear-powered aircraft carrier and to tone down development of a new manned strategic bomber.

Perhaps sensing the battle ahead, in view of recent disclosures of vast wastage in defence spending, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird has taken some of the wind out of the critics' sails by announcing in advance a $2,000,000,000 cut in the year's $70,000,000,000 budget.

Although the majority agreed to all the Pentagon's requests, there is a general feeling within the Senate that the small band of critics has brought about a new and more cautious attitude. In the past the armed services committee accepted the judgment of the Pentagon without much scrutiny and the Senate, in turn, accepted the judgment of the committee.

Indeed, last year the committee added $2,000,000,000 to the research budget.

In the future, observers suggest, the burden of proving need will rest with the committee and, ultimately, the defence department.

"From now on," said Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine, the chief burden which can on the committee, "the U.S. Senate will be a true and deliberating body."

Super-port 'Only Alternative' to Sagging Economy

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on pilotage has given a boost to plans for a super-port at Lorneville, N.B., by saying such a development is the only alternative to a decline in the fortunes of Saint John.

The commission says in a 240,000-word report released Tuesday that development like that at Lorneville is the "best hope" for the maritime future of Saint John.

The Lorneville project eight miles west of Saint John is in the final planning stage but William Denny, senior project executive of the New Brunswick development Corp., said last month the provincial government hasn't decided "to go ahead with it yet."

The pilotage commission, which began its study almost seven years ago, says that the size of newer ships is already putting severe pressure on the tricky channels of Saint John.

"With the continued trend to larger vessels, spoff costly improvements should soon prove insufficient," it says of the port.

It says that unless a super-port is established, "such as is being planned at Lorneville," Saint John is doomed to decline.

The Lorneville project would be designed to attract big ships carrying prepackaged or container cargoes.

Irving Oil, a major industry in Saint John, next month will open a $14,500,000 deepwater berth at Mispec Point, five miles east of Saint John. A pipeline to the crude oil refinery in Saint John is opening now.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Tuesday that the commission report and commission secretary, G. W. Nadeau said the super-port would be located at Mispec Point rather than Lorneville.

Mispec Point is a private development by the Irving Oil company; Lorneville's proposed development would be public.

The report goes into detail on the problems pilots have had getting major tankers into the Saint John crude oil unloading point in Courtenay Bay in recent years. The refinery opened in 1960.

As the number of ships entering Saint John has decreased, their size has increased. Courtenay Bay, the deepwater berth at Saint John, was hard pressed to handle current traffic.

It would be hazardous to navigate larger ships in Courtenay Bay and the cost of fitting the bay for them would be prohibitive. The solution was to create unobstructed berths at a new site, the report says.

It recommends that pilotage at Saint John be classed as an "essential national service" to reflect the needs of the port now. It says that Saint John's highly-skilled pilots might be used in the slack Saint John season at Gonse Bay, Labrador, or Churchill, Man.

Gonse Bay, St. John's, Nfld., Halifax and the Cape Breton area all should become "public service" areas. Spending on pilotage at Halifax and Sydney, N.S., should be cut back, however.

Halifax was overstaffed and shipping traffic at Sydney was on the decline.

The smaller ports in the Atlantic region should be organized into "private service" districts in which "pilotage advisers" who know the waters but are not skilled mariners would guide ships.

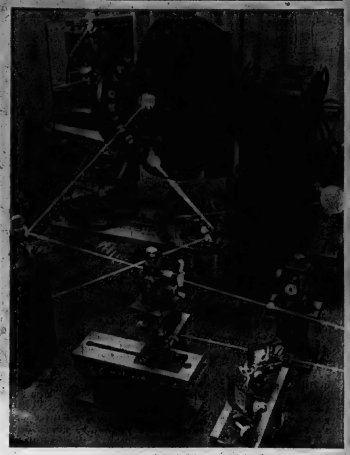
Educators Pow-wow to Discuss Student Activism, Teacher Militancy

HALIFAX (CP) — Student activism and teacher militancy are just two of the topics that will be discussed at the Canadian Education Association convention opening here today.

The annual convention, boasting "a new look" program, will emphasize informal discussion and lots of "dialogue" between the 800 senior educationists expected to attend.

Nine of the 10 provincial ministers of education held a meeting of their national council here Tuesday and many were planning to stay to attend CEA sessions. Only Saul Miller, education minister in the new NDP government of Manitoba, missed the Tuesday meeting.

The Canadian Association of School Superintendents and Inspectors also met here Tuesday in conjunction with the CEA meeting.



The education ministers' meeting was a private one, but they held a news conference later to summarize their discussion.

They said all provinces were unhappy about various aspects of the federal government's educational television legislation which has received first reading in the Commons.

The ministers planned to meet with Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier on the ETV bill before the next session of Parliament starts in October.

They feel the current legislation is too inflexible in its definition of educational broadcasting and fear that parts of the bill encroach on the traditional responsibilities of the provinces for education.

Dr. W. Meldrum, New Brunswick education minister, was elected president of the education ministers' council, formed in 1967 to aid co-operation on education among the provinces.

St. Leonard Children Find New Classrooms

MONTREAL (CP) — The school year finally got under way Tuesday for 330 English-speaking St. Leonard children, caught up in a lengthy conflict over school language rights.

Accompanied by their parents, the Roman Catholic Grades 1 and 2 students were transported to two schools under Montreal's Protestant school jurisdiction and settled into their respective classrooms.

The two elementary schools, Nesbitt and Tetreaultville, are under the administration of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal and are located outside the boundaries of St. Leonard, a northeast suburb.

St. Leonard, where the Roman Catholic elementary school board last year began eliminating English-language instruction, has a population of about 35,000—about 45 per cent of which is of Italian origin.

The children and their parents were transported to the schools in eight buses chartered from the Montreal Transportation Commission. The MTC also has agreed to provide four buses for the 330 children at a cost of $100 a day during the school year.

Transportation costs, estimated at about $20,000 for the 1969-70 school year, and the $25 monthly fee charged by the Protestant board for each of the Catholic children, are being shouldered by the St. Leonard Parents Association.

The association, headed by Robert Beale, is seeking to collect up to $140,000 to meet these costs. Mr. Beale said Tuesday more than $8,000 in private and business donations has already been received.

The Protestant school board is providing 11 teachers and 10 classrooms in the temporary setup. One French - specialist will visit each class on a rotating basis.

Religious instruction will be provided by a brother or nun. Board official Kenneth Hill said the religious instruction period will be worked into the regular Protestant curriculum for the Catholic children.

English-language Grade 1 classes were eliminated in St. Leonard last year when the Catholic school board embarked on a policy of French-only education.

The board abolished English-language Grade 2 classes this September, and Grades 3 to 7 are to fall on a year-by-year basis.

Racial Rift Shuts Down School Job

SEATTLE (AP) — Eleven persons were arrested Tuesday as demonstrators threw rocks and damaged equipment, closing down a construction project on the University of Washington campus.

The demonstration was called after a dozen Negroes were refused jobs on the project Monday.

"The law says they're supposed to have blacks on this job, and it is not enforced," said Tyree Scott, 29, head of the Central Area Contractors Association which led the demonstration.

"They only enforce the law when it's against us," said Scott, a Negro. He was among those arrested.

When the group of about 65 arrived at the project, Scott told the job superintendent he had 30 minutes to close the project. The superintendent went into his office and did not respond. The damage to construction equipment came half an hour later.

A spokesman for the company which owns the equipment estimated damage to two trucks at $5,000. Earlier, police had estimated damage at $50,000.

Che Bryant, equal employment officer for the contractor, said the job "is closed down in the interest of avoiding injury and damage."

Plans Completed for Auxiliary Fur Show

A tea party will start the fall season for the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Convened by Mrs. H. P. M. Cane and Mrs. B. E. Burley, it will take place during Belleville Week, Tuesday, September 30, at the home of Mrs. Stanislav Kvarda, Mrs. J. B. Durrent is looking after the tea plates. An added attraction will be a fashion show of furs, co-ordinated by Mrs. J. H. Forrester; also a bake sale with Mrs. F. T. Seibert and Mrs. E. H. Hall in charge. A Canada Majestic pastel mink hat will be given away at the conclusion.

During the September meeting at Education Hall, Mrs. F. A. Reedy reported that the Opportunity Shop had re-opened for business on September 4. On that day, $239 was realized. A vote of thanks was moved to all of the faithful Shop workers. Everyone was urged to keep children's clothing, curtains, blankets and other house hold articles which are always in demand by the customers.

In reporting for the In Hospital Volunteers, Mrs. S. R. Bochnek stated that in July and August, over 1500 magazines were distributed to patients and in the waiting rooms in the hospital. This indicates the great need for magazines. Anyone who has used magazines is asked to leave them at the admitting desk in the new hospital. Expediatric playroom volunteers are also required. At present, a training program for this service has been streamlined. Mrs. R. Bowman, assistant volunteer services convener, will be in her office at the hospital on Wednesday mornings for the purpose of interviewing prospective volunteers. "The benefits realized from a volunteer are intangible," Mrs. B. E. Burley remarked. "It is a desire to give of oneself for the welfare of others."

On Wednesday, September 24, the District Conference of Hospital Auxiliaries will be held at the Brockville General Hospital from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. It is hoped that many members from the auxiliary will attend.

The appointment of delegates to the annual convention in October was brought to the attention of the meeting. Mrs. B. E. Burley and Mrs. S. R. Bochnek were nominated to attend as delegates, with Mrs. E. S. Fairman and Mrs. J. E. Nelles as alternates.

The guest speaker, Dr. James C. Davis, was introduced by Mrs. Owen Clarke. Dr. Davis attended BCI later he received his DDS from the University of Toronto. At present he is chief of the dental staff at BGH. In his opening remarks, Dr. Davis commended the Women's Hospital Auxiliary for their spirit of service to the community. The Belleville General Hospital has an active and interested dental staff, stated Dr. Davis. One member is a representative for the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, also the Bay of Quinte Dental Society was the first organization to become a member of the Academy of Dentistry. At present, they are helping other areas to fit into this group. Itinerant dentists were the case in early days, however Belleville had the first resident dentist, Dr. Alyea, who began his practice in 1866. A grandfather of Dr. Jack Marshall followed him.

Dr. Davis told the members that the oral cavity is a well educated part of our anatomy, but it is often a neglected area. There has been an increase in preventive dentistry, namely the use of fluorides. After the age of 30, more teeth are lost through periodontal disease than through decay.

In this area with the Home for Retarded Children located nearby and the OSD, patients are seen who need fluor treatment to be carried out in the hospital. The dental clinic is utilized mainly in specialized cases and is equipped to carry out any phase of dentistry.

The dentists expect their work load to increase mainly because of insurances, both public and private.

The Board of Governors showed great foresight when they included dental services in the new hospital, it was felt by Dr. Davis. He mentioned that the dental clinic is open in the mornings for anyone who desires to tour it.

Mrs. E. S. Fairman expressed thanks to Dr. Davis for his informative talk.

Oh That Mink!

The black and white mink scarf-headpiece modelled by Mrs. R. G. Moorman is only one of the many fur fashions from Ashley's to be shown when the Women's Hospital Auxiliary holds a tea and showing of fur fashions on the afternoon of September 30. The event is to be held at the home of Mrs. S. Kvarda, 199 Dundas W.

Women's Liberal Group Plans Masquerade Ball

Plans were finalized Monday for the Belleville Women's Liberal Association Masquerade Ball.

Following introduction of the new executive, discussion of the ball, the association's project for Belleville Week, got under way.

It was generally conceded that the term "masquerade" tended to discourage some potential ticket-buyers. Thus, to accommodate those unable or unwilling to wear costumes, eyemasks will be made available at Bleecker Auditorium.

In addition to the judo demonstration at 10 p.m., the heretofore undiscovered talents of two resident fortunetellers (Mesdames Lasagna and Marinara) have been generously volunteered.

It was announced that decorations, for the auditorium are being undertaken by the Belleville Week Committee, with Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, curator for the Hastings County Museum, in charge. Volunteers were recruited to assist the committee.

Six armed forces cadets will assist as clookroom attendants.

A concession stand in addition to the bar will be in operation.

The discussion ended on a note of optimism — proceeds from the ball will be donated to the recreation and arena commission for purchase of playground equipment for Hillcrest.

VICTORIA WILLING WORKERS

The Victoria Willing Workers group met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Audra Brickman, with an attendance of fourteen. The president, Mrs. Roy Wetheral, opened the meeting.

Several business items were discussed. Following the business period the program was taken over by Mrs. Melvin Pulver. A paper on our dependence upon God and the need for thankfulness was read, followed by a true or false contest.

Thanks were extended by Mrs. Wetheral to all who had contributed to the meeting, then lunch was served by Miss Brickman and committee.

The October meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Knox.

BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT AQUARIUM CLUB

The first meeting of the new season of the aquarium club was held last Tuesday at the Recreation Centre with approximately 30 people in attendance.

Mr. Ken Carter opened the meeting and welcomed the members and guests. He also conducted the business meeting. Guest of honor were Mr. and Mrs. H. Hunt of Port Hope. Mr. Ben is the president of the Canadian Association of Aquarium Clubs. As guest speaker he spoke on the reproduction of baby fish starting from the egg. Mr. and Mrs. Benn assisted as well by judging the fish show. A number of ribbons and door prizes were won but the grand prize, a glass aquarium was won by Fred Caslick.

Mrs. Sinclair served coffee and lunch as the group discussed fish and their problems.

ACCURACY ESSENTIAL

An accurate pressure gauge is essential to insure the correct processing temperature of home-canned foods.

Color Varies to Suit Individual

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My niece, who is 17, says that a red dress looks terrible on anyone over 30 years old, and that it looks like the wearer of the dress just wants to be noticed. I say that if a red dress flatters your coloring it if correct at any age.

On the other hand, my niece likes a woman to wear black, saying it is very dressy. I feel that only people with a clear complexion look their best in black, and that it tends to make a woman look sallow and tired.—Wondering.

Dear Wondering: Ladies of all ages want to be noticed! From where your niece sits, everyone over 30 has had it!

With the psychedelic tones now flourishing in dress, linens, house paint and television, color is in vogue — preferably gay. The actual shades depend on individual complexions, eye and hair color.

For aging skins — and this can happen any time between 17 and 70 — softer pastels are better than too-vivid tones.

The Basic Black, alas! has also had it, for general wear. Looks good on blondes, often, and in some wardrobes is still a reliable standby (if skin is clear, unwrinkled, and rosy).

For others, black should simply never see the light of day. Makes a pale face paler, an aging skin more lined looking.

* * *

Dear Doris: Birth announcements are easy, but when does one send out adoption announcements? Our little boy was five weeks old when he came to us, but there was a six-month wait before the adoption became official, and we still, four months after that, have not received his amended birth certificate from the Department of Vital Statistics.

We included details about him in our duplicated Christmas letter. — In Doubt

Dear In Doubt: Optional. Announcements may go out right after the baby arrives in his new home; or be held back until all decisions are final.

I can't see you doing it now, since just about everybody knows the good news. What you could do is put a note in birth column of this news paper. And if there is a n y good friend or relative at a distance who may still not have heard, write a personal note and enclose clipping.

* * *

Has Doris helped you with a problem? Write and tell her so!

Ann Landers

First Hand Letter Packs More Wallop

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing this letter on paper toweling since it is the only think handy. I am sitting in a labor room with an unmarried cousin of mine. The poor kid is in her 11th hour of agony. It's too bad I can't get everything she is saying on a tape recorder. What I am hearing now would make interesting lifesaving for the unmarried girls who are playing sex roulette. The moral of my cousin's story is that no girl who fools with sex is safe for sure, and the uncertainty isn't worth it.

ANN LANDERS

My cousin was on The Pill, but she says she became confused about the number of days she was supposed to lay off and that's how she got pregnant. Her psychiatric social worker told her this is not uncommon. They see many such girls. The explanation is that these girls have a subconscious desire to become pregnant so they get mixed up on purpose.

Whether one accepts the theory advanced by the psychiatric social worker is not important.

What is important is for every girl who is toying with the idea of sexual relationship to know that it could land her in a delivery room, giving birth to a baby she doesn't want and can't keep. Please say something on this subject, Ann Landers. — A WITNESS.

* * *

DEAR WITNESS: Somehow, a letter from a labor room packs more wallop than anything I could say. Thanks for supplying it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Yesterday I did a foolish thing. It could have cost me my life. I left a pan of grease on the stove and it caught fire. The quick thinking of my 17-year-old son, who was in the kitchen at the time, saved the day. He immediately grabbed a large, flat pan and smothered the flames.

* * *

I keep a box of soda on the stove at all times for just such emergencies as this, but when the emergency came for me, the box of soda was nowhere in sight. Today I bought a pretty aluminum canister and filled it with soda. I placed it right next to the stove and informed every member of the family why it is there and how to use it. I hope others in your reading audience will do the same. — MRS. P. B.

* * *

DEAR MRS. P. B.: So do I. Here's another letter on a similar subject:

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Child: "The teacher says we're not supposed to go across here. We're supposed to cross where the traffic boys or the lights are."

Mother: "It's all right as long as I'm watching you."

Children learn by your example better than by what you tell them to do, and if you seem to be taking chances with safety so will they.

Lamb a Good Substitute

Necessity became the mother of persuasion. If they could not afford beef they could afford imported lamb so housewives are buying it in unprecedented amounts. Mary Moore gives you her method of roasting a boned and rolled leg of lamb today.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Rolled Leg of Lamb

By MARY MOORE

The head meat cutter was shaking his head all the time I was ordering a leg of lamb to be thawed, boned, rolled and tied. Great signs in front of me proclaimed "Ask us for the cut you want." He said, "Mam that'll cost you 25 cents per pound extra."

I backed away and found the manager and repeated the conversation. He diplomatically placated me explaining maybe the cutter was in a bad mood. He assured me I could have my boned lamb leg at the going price but they were sold out and were waiting for a new shipment.

Came the day in call for it. It was beautiful and I carried it to the car triumphant. It is a grand feeling I want you to have too but you have to be adamant — some supermarket butchers will balk at this extra service.

ROAST ROLLED BONED LEG OF LAMB

One 5½ - lb. lamb leg, thawed, boned, trimmed, rolled and tied.

Flavor salt

Sprinkle what fat the butcher leaves on with flavor salt fairly generously. Place lamb on trivet in roasting pan and roast uncovered with no water at 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hr. then reduce heat to 300 deg. Fahr. for 3 hrs. longer (4 hrs. in all).

This seems like a long roasting time but I advise you to follow my method for the meat was tender and moist and the fat had rendered out. I was able to tip almost all fat out of pan and make lovely gravy with the brown sediment.

With the roast we had finely chopped homemade mint sauce and

BAKED RICE (serves 4)

It was a pleasure to put this covered dish of rice in the oven and forget it. One hour before mealtime I put 2-3 cup raw long grain rice and ½ tsp. salt in small baking dish with cover. I added 2 cups boiling water, gave it a good stir and put it in the oven along with the roasting lamb. Lightly covered and in 1 hr. it was tender and each grain of rice was fluffy and separate. A good trick for busy hostesses.

THE PICK OF Punch

"I couldn't have had a worse start — I came from what's now reboarded as a dusty dwelling in a twilight zone of a gray area on the fringe of a development region."

NDP Is Urged To Embrace Nationalism

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party must insert a nationalistic program to halt American economic and cultural dominance of Canada into the forefront of the party platform, union official Ed Finn said Tuesday.

In a position paper for the NDP's Oct. 28-31 policy conference, Mr. Finn said the NDP can become an organized political force for Canadian independence.

"This will be one plank in the NDP platform that will never be pirated by the Liberals or Tories," said Mr. Finn, public relations director of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

Mr. Finn said both parties are no longer susceptible to nationalist influence, but are actively promoting an American takeover of the Canadian economy. These parties were dominated by continentalists who identified with the American corporate presence in Canada.

The NDP has always been a champion of Canadian economic independence, he said.

"But its actions and pronouncements in this vital area have been sporadic and seemingly unconnected to a comprehensive long-term nationalist program.

"Canada's economic and political survival has been treated as just another one of a number of issues, such as housing, taxation, bilingualism and social security, instead of being accorded the top priority it deserves."

The prospect of building a democratic socialist society in Canada diminishes in inverse ratio with the growing Americanization of Canada, Mr. Finn wrote. The chief prerequisite for the fulfilment of NDP policies in almost all fields is the preservation of an independent nation.

No Sweeping Changes In PC Policy Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative party planners don't expect any sweeping revisions of policies at next month's conference in Niagara Falls, but they do expect some new and definite steps in the fields of poverty and tax reform.

These are the two areas most likely to result in new policies, party spokesman say.

Party Leader Robert Stanfield is known to be anxious to develop new party policies in the fields of welfare and taxation and sources say he wants to encourage the 700 delegates attending next month's conference to be thinking of various alternatives to existing systems.

Other broad areas of discussion at the five-day conference —under such headings as quality of life, science and research, our political institutions and Canada in the world community —are not as likely to result in definitive party policies.

Strictly Personal

Ignorance Is Seldom Bliss

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have never agreed with the maxim that "ignorance is bliss." On the contrary, I am convinced that knowledge is often the best medicine we can have.

If we try to learn how the human mind operates, this knowledge can give us a sense of comfort — for it soon becomes evident that every mind operates in pretty much the same way: that our individual fears and reactions are not unique or ominous.

For instance, I have learned it to be generally true that we do not get as much pleasure from the good things that happen to us as we get pain from the bad things that happen to us.

Last month, one of the newspapers that had been taking this column on a trial basis decided to drop it: at the same time, another and larger paper picked it up — with a net gain to me.

Yet, the pain of the bad thing outweighed the pleasure of the good thing: I was more depressed by losing a paper than I was exhilarated by gaining one. The loss seemed to confirm some deep fears of mine, where's the gain offered only a slight and temporary lift.

From my reading and observation, however, I know that this is a general feeling with most people. Self-confidence is not as common an attitude as we think; and many of the people who seem most self-assured are secretly troubled by thoughts of decline and failure.

To know this is a great comfort. We can then make the proper allowances for our own feelings when conditions become adverse. The only effective antidote to depression is the knowledge that certain depressions are normal, and that the emotional structure of the human being is so delicately constituted that we are more easily pained than pleased.

Whatever the mistakes or excesses of psychiatry in its early days, one of its happiest results has been the breaking down of the barriers of mental isolation among people.

The widespread dissemination of psychiatric ideas has provided a community of feeling. We now realize that our personal problems are neither so strange nor so singular as we thought them to be, and that our similarities to other people are greater than our differences.

Knowledge relaxes tension for what we fear most of all is the unknown; and especially the unknown and submerged part of our own personalities. Recognizing that we share the fears and frustrations of most of mankind is the first and necessary step toward coping with, and mastering, these mental monsters of the deep.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Actually, it's not real rubber—it's plastic."

London Hotel Afire

LONDON (CP) — Toronto broadcaster Ted Rogers and his wife were among hundreds of guests evacuated from Claridges, one of London's top hotels in Mayfair, early today when fire broke out in an upper floor.

The fire caused damage to parts of the sixth and seventh floors. None of the 300 guests was injured but 10 persons trapped on the two upper floors had to be rescued by firemen. One fireman suffered minor injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, here on a holiday, were on the third floor and were preparing for bed at 12:30 a.m. when the alarm was given.

More than 60 firemen fought the outbreak in the red brick building of 250 rooms which over the years has put up many of the world's leading personalities.

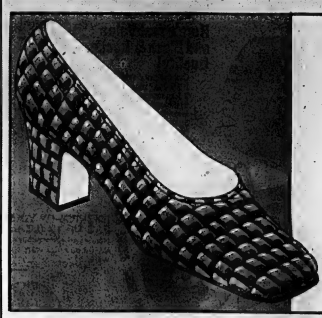
Most dramatic rescue came when four women were trapped in a room on the top floor. Firemen brought them out onto a narrow ledge and they edged their way to another window several yards away.

"I must have been a frightening experience for them," a fireman said later. "But they didn't show any sign of panic."

Inflation Discussion Is Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Two New Democrat MPs want Finance Minister Edgar Benson and Arthur Smith, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, called before the Commons finance committee to discuss their divergent views on inflation.

Max Saltzman, member for Waterloo, and John Burton, member for Regina East, Tuesday released the text of a letter to Gaston Clermont (L—Gatineau), committee chairman, asking for the two men to be called.



The NDP committee members said that Mr. Benson disagreed with the latest report of the Economic Council on the question of the severity of inflation in Canada.

They said Mr. Benson has been quoted as saying he was "very disappointed on the way the council handled this very serious question" of inflation.

The council's sixth annual report, released earlier this month, questioned the need for further anti-inflationary fiscal and monetary policies by the federal government. It said they might bring higher unemployment and economic slack with only marginal effects on such things as climbing interest rates, prices and costs.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1969

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

As if the Ottawa Rough Riders needed any more help, nearly 2,500 Quinte area fans will be heading their lineups to the game Saturday, Oct. 4.

We're assuming that most of those piling on the 24 buses for Quinte Day at Lansdowne Park will be Rouglie rooters. Everyone else around here seems to be backing the Big Four front-runners.

The bulk of the mob is drawn from area high schools whose student populations have been offered first chance at prime grandstand real estate by Rough Rider management.

Somewhere on the 24 buses will be students from each of Belleville's five secondary schools and Albert College, Moira, Tweed, Trenton, Napanee, North Addington, Campbellford, Lindsay, Brighton, Sharbot Lake, Cobourg and Norwood.

About 200 adults will have the rare treat of chaperoning the herds all the way to Ottawa and hopefully, back again.

For the price of a guaranteed seat, the students will get a view of what promises to be a memorable brawl between Ottawa and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who appear to have, indeed, sealed "61 next year.

In addition, each student will get a gratis souvenir program as a memento of the day that Hamilton clenched the Rouglies right into the turf (26-21) and a chance at a draw for autographed Ottawa footballs.

These prizes will, in all likelihood, be pulled by the Rouglies before the game, since none of them will be in any physical condition to write afterward.

Tweed's Jim Halpenny — area publicity liaison man for the Rouglies — tells us the Quinte contingent will be given a police escort into Lansdowne Park, probably by the same bobbies that will be giving the victorious Tabbies an escort out.

Mr. Halpenny can also squeeze more interested bystanders into the Quinte section of the stands, if they would call him at 478-2582.

You won't miss the Quinte group if you're watching the game on the tube. Each school section will be provided with identification banners, the poles of which can be removed to clobber any unsuspecting Hamilton fans in their vicinity.

Rumors have it that at least one Argo ace-grinder will be in the stands.

If Ottawa doesn't need any football help, there is a hockey team from a city beginning with "T" and ending in "O" that can't get enough.

This long-time Leaf Loyalist was one of 4,500 spectators who saw a short-handed Boston Bruin roster whack a wrong-handed Gardens' crew 5-1 in Peterborough Monday.

A better word than spectators would be witnesses — as in hit-and-run.

Admittedly the Leafs showed flashes of skill — Mike Walton nearly hat-tricked a Bruin, and Pat Quinn only stripped over his blueline index — but it looks like a long winter for John McLellan.

Watching from the press box were George Armstrong, Johnny Bower and Wayne Carleton, all of whom buy their daily bread with Gardens' chits.

The blackest word any of them had for their partners in crime down at ice-level was "no comment."

It would have done Tim Horton's heart good to see Monday's game.

Horton, who reportedly wants $85,000 a year to lose his sudden interest in baking, is about the only thing short of Bobby Orr who could shore up the Leaf defence.

Mosurs, Cashman, Esposito and Orr were only three Bruins who were filtering through the Leaf rearguards like the proverbial dose of salts.

The Ducys, Pulyks and McKenzys still have a lot of nibblers to make before they're National Hockey League material. Unfortunately for coach McLellan, it looks like they're going to get the opportunity to make them.

Ullman, Henderson, Pulford, Keon all look good, but their job is only to put pucks into the net, the opposition's that is.

Friday night, the Rangers take a Memorial centre swipe at the Leafs in the only other NHL exhibition game to be played in Peterborough this fall.

AHEAD OF THE THROW — Montreal's Bobby Wine slides towards home as Cubs catcher Randy Hundley takes the throw from right fielder Jim Hickman. Wine scored on Gary Sutherland's single as Montreal won 7-3.

Habs Catch Injury Virus

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League exhibition schedule continued to take its toll of injuries Tuesday with the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens suffering the most.

In a game at Halifax against Detroit Red Wings, forward Mark Tardiff suffered a charley horse when he was taken into the boards and became the third Canadiens player sidelined in two days.

Canadiens lost left wingers John Ferguson and Peter Mahovlich in a contest against the Red Wings Monday night.

And at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Pittsburgh Penguins lost goalie Les Binkley with a pulled groin muscle in a game against Minnesota North Stars. Binkley was expected to be sidelined one or two weeks.

Ken Broderick took over in goal for Pittsburgh late in the first period and backed the Penguins in a 4-0 victory over the North Stars. The Canadiens won their match 4-1 while the New York Rangers downed Boston Bruins 3-2 at London, Ont.

Ferguson returned to Montreal Tuesday for an operation on torn ligaments in his thumb suffered in a collision with Detroit defenceman Carl Brewer.

Montreal coach Claude Ruel said Ferguson would be sidelined for about six weeks while Mahovlich would be out eight weeks with torn knee ligaments.

The Red Wings lost veteran Gordie Howe for the last two periods after he pulled a groin muscle. However, Red Wings coach Bill Gadsby said Howe would be back in the lineup by the weekend.

Bruins' veteran defenceman Ted Green remained in satisfactory condition in Ottawa General Hospital Tuesday night after surgery Sunday for a scull fracture.

The injury was inflicted in a stick-swinging duel Sunday night in an Ottawa game between Bruins and St. Louis Blues.

A hospital spokesman said Tuesday night it was not yet known how long Green would remain in hospital, but Bruins officials have said he may be moved to Boston in about two weeks for a further operation and may be able to play by the end of the season.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Chicago Black Hawks announced that Bobby Hull has not yet reported to training camp and apparently is unsatisfied with a four-year contract he signed last year.

Reject Brewers Return To Haunt San Francisco

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco Giants left Ollie Brown off their protected list for last year's National League expansion draft and San Diego Padres promptly picked him No. 1. It took almost all season, but Brown has finally made the Giants No. 2.

It came about in the ninth inning of Tuesday night's game in San Diego. Roberto Pena singled with one out and pinch runner Ron Slocum raced to second on reliever Frank Linzy's wild pitch. Up stepped Brown and singled to centre, driving in Slocum and giving the Padres a 5-4 victory that knocked the Giants out of first place in the West Division.

The Giants fell one-half game and three percentage points behind Atlanta Braves whom trounced Houston 10-2, eliminating the Astros from the race.

Cincinnati Reds remained in contention three games out by sweeping a doubleheader from Los Angeles 6-3 and 5-2, dropping the Dodgers 5½ games off the pace and virtually ending their flag hopes.

New York Mets clinched a tie for the title in the East Division, edging Bob Gibson and St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 11 innings. That put the Mets six games ahead of Chicago Cubs, who lost to Montreal Expos 7-3. Both teams have six games remaining.

Philadelphia Phillies nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in the other NL game.

The game-winning hit was sweet revenge for Brown, touted as a coming star when he played with the Giants in 1966 and 1967.

A year ago, Brown had a good spring but wound up sitting on the bench while Jesus Alou roamed the San Francisco outfield.

"I thought of my showing in 1967 (13 homers, 53 runs batted in and a .267 average) that I'd get a good shot to start with the Giants, but it didn't work out that way.

The Mets can wrap up the title today by beating St. Louis or if Chicago loses to Montreal.

Home runs by Rusty Staub and Ron Fairly helped the Expos to a 7-0 lead before Bill Stoneman went the route to beat the beleaguered Cubs Tuesday. Bob Bailey's triple gave the Expos a run in the first and they added three in the second.

Lions Deal Parker Canada's Worst Hand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Parker, the Mississippi Gambler, was dealt a losing hand Tuesday.

British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference named him head coach after firing Jim Champion.

"I will do the best I can with the time and resources I have before me," promised Parker.

The time is short: His appointment will be reviewed at the end of the season, six games away. The resources: A battered ball club with the worst won-lost season record in Canada, 1-8.

Parker got down to the job of improving his hand right away, handling a workout Tuesday night.

He told players much the same thing he told reporters: "I can't say there'll be anything different from what coach Champion did."

One player said the team's reaction to the change was "sort of mixed." But, he added: "I think we're all behind him. You have to be all behind him."

The Lions next game is Saturday, against Calgary Stampeders here.

Champion, calm and resigned, went the way of his five predecessors. Since the Lions were formed in 1952, not one head coach has left under his own steam.

Stocky and sharp-tongued, Champion took over as head coach of a shifting team Aug. 15, 1967, after Dave Skrien was fired. The Lions were 3-8-1 under Champion that season and 4-11-1 in 1968.

"I knew it was coming," said Champion, 42, who as a B.C. assistant coach directed the hungry defence that helped the Lions win their only Grey Cup, in 1964.

Parker led Edmonton Eskimos to Grey Cup victories in 1954-55-56 as a quarterback and halfback. He spent 14 playing years in the Canadian Football League, retiring in 1966.

In those 14 years the gangling Parker picked up his nicknames, Mississippi Gambler for his daring, and Old Spaghetti Legs for his gimpy-kneed running.

In 1968, after repeated knee injuries, he surrendered his Toronto Argonauts uniform. But he played again briefly, as an emergency replacement quarterback for the Lions in 1968.

He played the first comeback game in Calgary. The Lions, lost 25-6 but Parker stole the show. Wayne Harris, Stampeders' middle linebacker, said of him: "He hasn't lost a thing."

Now Parker, 36, has a ball club which has lost just about everything and committed almost every conceivable error. The defence gave it the sole win, a last-minute 11-7 squeaker over Winnipeg.

Champion went on to become an assistant with the Lions from 1961-65 and with the National Football League St. Louis Cardinals after that. He rejoined the Lions in 1967 and now says he has no firm plans and could quit football.

Parker holds the CFL career scoring record of 750 points, was named Canada's outstanding player in 1957-58-63 and the WFC's most valuable player seven times between 1954 and 1961.

Parker was with Eskimos from 1954 to 1962 and joined Argos the following year in trade. He played out his career with Toronto, bringing his touchdown total to 88, second to retired Argo Dick Shatto's 91.

He became head coach of Toronto Rifles of the Continental League in 1967 but quit early in the season and came to the Lions.

Als Chop Williams

MONTREAL (CP) — Quarterback Carroll Williams was released Tuesday by Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference.

The Alouettes said Sonny Wade, impressive in a 41-35 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats last Sunday, will replace Williams.

Williams' job had been in jeopardy all season, with the Alouettes picking up only one victory and two ties in their first eight games.

Wade, 23, is playing his first year of pro football.

Coach Kay Dalton said that while Williams, 34, is "a fairly good quarterback, I've had two quarterbacks under Canadian Football League rules in a hurry we can't afford."

Sport Briefs

BOSTON (AP) — Controversial Dick Williams, who led Boston Red Sox to their impossible Dream pennant as a rookie manager in the 1967 American League baseball season, but feuded off and on with players throughout his tenure, was fired Tuesday.

The terse announcement by the club said only that Williams would not be back in 1970, and that coach Eddie Popowski, 56, would manage the team for the rest of the season.

The team declined comment on a published report in the Boston Record American that Eddie Kasko, manager of its Louisville farm club in the International League, would be the new pilot.

There also was no immediate indication whether Williams, who has another year to go on a three-year contract calling for a reported $50,000-per year, would be offered another post in the organization.

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Scoring two goals late in the third period, New Westminster Salmonbellies took a 9-8 victory over Peterborough Lakers in the second game of the Canadian Professional lacrosse finals Tuesday night.

Salmonbellies now lead the best-of-seven series 2-0. Third game will be played here Thursday night.

The western champions were held to a 3-3 tie after the first period and held a 6-3 lead after two periods. Peterborough came back with three goals within one minute and 10 seconds, but it was not enough.

BURLINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Jack Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, said Tuesday he will reveal details of his investigation into the officiating at an Eastern Conference game last Sunday before he leaves late this week on a trip to Regina.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats protested the game against Montreal Alouettes on the grounds that the Als were given four downs in a series of plays which produced the first Montreal touchdown. Tiger-Cats lost 41-35.

WARSAW (AP) — Waldemar Baszanowski of Poland won the world weightlifting championship Tuesday with a total lift of 961 pounds, a world record. He held the previous record of 976 pounds.

Sudden Sam Stops Birds En Route to Victory Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sam McDowell figured there was an easy solution for stopping about the only American League regular-season challenge left for the Baltimore Orioles, and it worked.

"I said before the game that Baltimore could be beaten with fast balls in and out," said McDowell. "I threw mostly fast balls tonight. I felt tired late in the game, but still had the fast ball."

The Orioles caught the veteran left-hander for only three hits Tuesday night as Cleveland Indians pulled out a 3-1 victory that slowed Baltimore's sizzling drive toward a league record for season victories.

McDowell, who achieved a personal high with his 18th victory against 14 losses, struck out six and didn't walk a batter in holding the Orioles' season triumph total to 105.

The Orioles, who have eight games left, are shooting for the record of 111 set by the 1954 Indians.

In other games: Carl Yastrzemski slammed a pair of homers in helping Boston Red Sox to an 8-3 victory over the New York Yankees, Minnesota Twins checked Kansas City Royals 6-3, California Angels edged Seattle Pilots 5-4 and Oakland Athletics took a doubleheader from Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 5-3. Washington Senators' game at Detroit was rained out.

McDowell's only trouble with the Orioles came from Frank Robinson, who smashed a solo homer in the fourth, spoiling Sam's bid for his fifth shutout of the year.

The Indians picked up all three runs in the third when Tom Phoebus, 14-7, ran into control problems and walked home two runs.

Yastrzemski's blasts and a solo job by Tony Conigliaro provided the Red Sox all the ammunition they needed in making interim manager Eddie Popowski's debut a success.

Popowski was named earlier in the day to replace the fired Dick Williams.

Yastrzemski, who also had a single and scored three runs himself, led off the third with the 200th homer of his career, and hit a two-run shot, his 39th of the season.

Quinte, Trenton Senior Teams to Beat

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON,
(Staff Sportswriter)

Some teams will experience a change in fortunes this season in the Bay of Quinte Class "AA" Football League, but signs indicate that two of last year's powerhouses — Trenton High School and Quinte Secondary School — may well be top dogs again. A third school — Belleville Collegiate may once again be a contending force.

The Tigers of Trenton captured the OSSSA Senior "A" crown last year by scoring a 20-19 overtime win over Oshawa's O'Neil Collegiate on a 35-degree snow-blown November afternoon.

Trenton earned their OSSA berth by defeating Belleville Collegiate 7-1 in a mudbowl playoff game at the Belleville Fairgrounds to decide the Bay of Quinte title after both teams registered 5-1 records to tie for the league lead one game ahead of Quinte and Moira (4-3).

If last Friday's 101-0 massacre of lowly Prince Edward Collegiate is any indication, Trenton appears to be in for another happer season.

Ken Danlychuck, who scored the winning touchdown in the Tigers' OSSA crown-clinching win over O'Neil last fall, will direct the Trenton offence this year from his quarterback slot.

Danlychuk relies mainly on hand-offs to speedster Bob Powell, Danny Dow and Jim Ransom and passes to end Grand Patterson who scored four majors in the 101-0 slaughter of Picton. Powell, Dow and Ransom tallied three touchdowns each in that game.

Quinte's Senior Saints lapsed to an injury-plagued 4-2 record last year after two consecutive Bay of Quinte titles and a OSSA crown in 1966.

But last Thursday Quinte kicked off the 1969 season with a convincing 48-0 win over Centennial. Coach Rick Locke said "Our weakness right now is inexperience but last week's win over Centennial was a big one — I'm happy with the way the team's coming on and I think the support in the school is the best a Quinte team has ever received."

Quinte is deep this year and does have six returnees on defence and seven on offence. Coach Locke said that no one would play both ways unless the squad was in a pinch.

BCI's Collegians survived a rash of early season injuries to edge Madoc 7-2 last week in the season opener for both clubs. But the red and black may gain an advantage from the schedule — they don't play Quinte and Trenton until the fifth and sixth weeks of the seven-week season.

Dave Wright will lend his discus throwing talents — he won the All-Ontario Junior title two years/ago — to the pigskin this fall in directing the Senior Collegians' offence.

Moira will likely rely on defence again this year and will miss big ground gainer Dalton Lambert who has graduated. The Senior Trojans ran off a four game winning streak at the start of last season before suffering 25-0 and 23-0 shutouts at the hands of Quinte and Trenton in the final two games of the season.

Moira dropped a 20-12 decision to revamped Napanee last week in the season opener and Tuesday night dropped a 25-0 decision to Nicholson Catholic College — a Class "A" school — in an exhibition tilt, and appear considerably weaker than last season.

Napanee's opening win over Moira was an about-face from last season when the blue and gold managed only a tie in six games. "Our ability is about equal to last year but our condition is more advanced this year," coach Wayne Bulak noted.

"The defensive line gives good pursuit and is probably our strongest point thus far," Bulak added. First-string quarterback Dave Cunningham suffered a knee injury in the Moira game and George Harris will now direct the Napanee offence spearheaded by Iain Sullivan, Pete Weese and Jim Gendron.

Centennial students will stage a pep rally Friday afternoon and try to pull their teams up after the opening losses to Quinte — the Seniors lost 48-0 and the Juniors 12-6.

"We have the players for a good offence but we can't get going," Charger Senior coach Doug Irvine revealed. "I think we're improved over last year — our first is another competition — but I feel that Quinte and Trenton are the teams to beat."

Centre Hastings Secondary School at Madoc is stepping up to Class "AA" competition this season after a Bay of Quinte Class "A" championship performance last year.

Senior coach Carmen Donato felt "We're moving up to a higher calibre league and we are going to get hit hard, particularly Seniors because it appears that the Senior loop is stronger than the Junior this year."

Donato added that he hopes to win a few games and looks for his defence to be strong but at present injuries have robbed the offensive backfield of any depth.

Picton earned only a tie in six contests last fall and the Prince Edward Collegiate Senior squad appears to be weak again this year considering their 101-0 shellacking at the hands of the defending OSSSA champion Trenton Tigers.

There will be no Class "A" league this year because Madoc moved up to the "AA" loop and Albert College dropped senior football. Trenton and Nicholson will resort to a series of exhibitions with some of the "AA" schools.

Nicholson's Senior squad appears strong if their 25-0 whitewashing of Moira Tuesday night is any indication, but Tweed is an unknown quantity at present.

Quinte's Junior Saints dropped the defending OSSA finalists from Centennial 12-6 last week and appear strong this season. Quarterback Ricky Meagher was a standout in the Quinte win over the Chargers and he directs a formidable squad.

Centennials' Juniors have been hit hard by overage but fullback John Brower is back to head the Chargers Bay of Quinte title defence.

Moira displayed good depth and a speedy backfield in a 47-6 Junior win over Napanee last week and the Trojans appear able to mount a title threat.

Napanee has only five or six Juniors back from last year's Class "A" championship squad and the club is making the jump to "AA" competition.

Picton's Juniors lost their opener to Trenton by a score of 19-6 but squad appears to be in a better position than the school's Senior entry.

Bring on the Live Ones!

Lineman Brian Hennessey drives through two dummies held by teammates and eyes his next target — another dummy — during the Quinte Senior Saints practice session Tuesday afternoon. Hennessey and his teammates are preparing for a lively opposition Friday — the defending OSSSA champion Trenton Tigers.

Travel Questions, Answers

BY THE ONTARIO MOTOR LEAGUE

It comes as something of a surprise, when you look into the matter, that there is not as much new in our new cars as we are led to believe. And some of the most useful innovations of other years — such as sturdy bumpers — have been eliminated as old-fashioned.

(Bumpers that would withstand even a three-mile-an-hour impact would save Canadian motorists more than $1 billion a year in repairs, it has been estimated.)

Such relatively "new" devices and improvements as disc brakes, power steering, seat belts, automatic transmissions, windshield washers and most other so-called innovations are really very old. And a good many were in use in Europe for many years before American ingenuity discovered them.

Those seat belts we are so reluctant to use have been around for a long time. One Philip Schwarzmiller, in 1885, patented a "removable and adjustable guard to prevent a person from falling or being thrown from his seat." It was put on a car, too, in 1905. But it was dropped, as cars were made lower and with doors and dash panels to help contain the rider.

An automatic transmission, although not really on the market until the late 1930's, and then on a limited basis, actually could have been purchased in 1907. The Stirtevant offered an automatic transmission which used a multiple-disc clutch to shift gears as engine speed varied.

How about your fancy steering wheel?

Steering wheels replaced the tiller or lever as a means of directing motor vehicles way back in 1902. And about the same time those knuckles, or finger grips were added to keep your hands from slipping in the wheel.

Speedometers might seem like complicated devices to many persons, but they became part of autos as early as 1901. And special kerosene lamps were offered which reflected a clear white beam for 200 feet.

In 1902 the auto manufacturers felt their product was so good they adopted a 60-day guarantee on new cars. This same year also saw Sterling Elliott's steering knuckle introduced, the same principle of steering still employed on motor vehicles. And Packard was granted a patent for a gearshift "H" slot which later became, and still is, the standard for shift autos.

All you people who sweated and strained to park your car with manual steering for so many years might be interested in knowing that power steering was actually invented in 1903, the same year shock absorbers came into being.

And if you feel installment buying is something new, in 1905 you could have bought a car on an installment plan. That year also saw ignition locks introduced and exhaust horns replace the bulb type.

In 1926 some bright person decided front bumpers should be installed on cars as optional equipment.

Tyendinaga

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Earle J. Brant attended a drumhead service in Lindsay on Sunday of district F of the Royal Canadian Legion. Mr. Brant is the deputy-commander of the district.

Arnold Brant, chairman of the recreation committee, reports that baseball and softball have all but finished for this season. A banquet will be held some time in October, with players and adults who have assisted as guests, and awards will be presented at that time.

Harold Maracle, who left the reserve in '31 and has since been working in Fort William, has brought his family back to the homestead on Highway 2, at the edge of town. His parents were Mr. and Mrs. Ira Maracle. Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Brant have returned to Detroit, after having visited relatives on the reserve for a week.

The square dance club, sponsored by the recreation committee, held open house last Thursday night to initiate its activities for the winter. The good crowd included dancers from clubs of several neighboring communities. The caller is Ralph O'Hara of Belleville.

'Cy' Young Called Them the Way He Saw Them

BY GEORGE H. CARVER

Three and one half decades ago if you asked a baseball fan if he knew Cecil Young his brows would likely knit in puzzlement.

But ask him if he knew or heard of "Cy" Young, you would have gotten a smiling affirmative.

Cy Young, one of the best-known and beslilked sportsmen and sports officials in the city, passed away the other day.

Baseball was Cy's sports forte. In his earlier days like those who have gone before him, Walt Gerow Sr., Peezy and Harry Mills and others who carried the city's senior baseball banner in the twenties and early thirties, he spoke, lived and played the game.

If memory is correct he played with the former CORL Nationals and later, smaller bracket clubs.

Later he turned to officiating and became one of the most popular arbiters in the business.

He had a tremendous knowlege of baseball both inside and out and in his late years of officiating became known as one of the best-versed umpires in this part of Ontario.

Nor did he confine his knowledge and ability to the adult ranks of baseball. He with others like Don Lee developed an interest in the city's minors and like the community - minded citizens they were, always gave their services and knowledge to the youngsters with no thought of reimbursement.

Not a few moppet teams of their era, benefited by their efforts and baseball "know - how."

Cy and this writer were personal friends for many years. I covered many baseball games in which Cy was behind the plate or on bases.

He was a firm believer in calling pitches "as they are". He was steadfast in his decisions and to my knowledge never changed one. He was impervious to crowd or player criticism and always had faith in his own judgment.

Once I jokingly kidded him for calling a play wrongly.

Cy looked me straight in the eye. There was no glint of mirth in his." He prodded me in the chest and said: "Listen, I called that one as I saw it — and that means as it was."

I do not think Cy had an enemy in the sports world. Like any other sports official he had his critics but this never affected the Young attitude.

Cy had a pleasing personality, one that made him many friends both inside and outside the world of sport.

When one heard the announcement "Officials for tonight's game, Young behind the plate, no-and-no on bases", it went beyond saying the game was in fine hands.

With his passing, sports in general and baseball in particular has lost a staunch friend and Belleville a fine citizen.

The sportsmen of the city and district join in expressing deepest sympathy to the bereaved family.

Rest well, old friend.

Sees Budget Surplus For Hastings County

On the basis of eight months operation, Hastings County should have a moderate surplus at the end of 1969.

This was the forecast yesterday of Hastings County clerk-administrator Carl E. Bateman as he presented his report to this week's one-day session of council.

Mr. Bateman said the County was "well within" its budget to date but reminded that the heaviest spending in some departments occurred in the latter half o the year.

This was particularly true of the road department where programs initiated early are not paid for until later in the year, he said.

The administrator explained that this year's tax sale on October 15 would be about the same as in other years — except that one county municipality will have no tax sale this year.

The reason for this is that the Ontario Gazette acted in printing and listed Faraday's properties in with the township of Limerick.

As a result the Department of Municipal Affairs has ruled that any tax sale in Faraday this year would be illegal.

Most of the properties listed for Faraday have now been paid and those not paid by the date of the sale will be listed for next year.

Council Would Approve 3-Year Teacher Contracts

Members of Hastings County Council would approve of teachers' salaries being negotiated for a three-year period, instead of each year as is the present practice.

Yesterday, councillors concurred in a Middlesex County resolution asking that salary negotiations for a three-year period be made mandatory across the provinces for both elementary and secondary school teachers.

Currently many board members spend much of their time in salary negotiations which often are not completed until after municipal budgets are set.

The move would result in stabilized budgets and would free board members for consideration of other school matters, it was stated.

County Warden Donald Rodgers observed that few labor unions negotiate salaries or wages on a one year basis.

From personal experience, he said teacher salary negotiations can be trying for school board members, many of whom spend almost all their time in such discussions.

Thurlow Deputy-Reeve Ray Short wondered whether teacher salary negotiations were not a school board matter.

"We might be told to mind our own business," he said.

County clerk-administrator Carl Bateman observed, however ,that the resolution had originated with the Middlesex County School Board.

Sneak Preview

Assessment Revamp Likely to Cause Protests

Two Hastings County municipalities — Stirling and Madoc — have already learned the percentage increase in assessment on which they will be expected to pay taxes when Ontario's full value assessment policy comes into effect in five years.

And what has been learned is expected to result in a lot of complaints and enquiries from the owners involved.

Hastings County Clerk-administrator told council members yesterday that re-assessment at full market value had been completed in the two villages.

In Stirling, the assessment jumps to $6,500,000 from last year's $1,272,801, and in Madoc to $5,900,000 from $1,038,412. These figures are still subject to appeal before the court of revision.

Mr. Bateman said it was expected these figures would be used for taxation purposes by the county and county boards of education in 1970, but as yet there had been no indication from the province how it intends to factor the assessments for grant purposes.

Warden Donald Rodgers said a comparison of the before-and-after assessment figures indicated Stirling's factor for educational grants should have been about 19.

But in actual fact the 1968 factor used by the province was 26, he said.

"This indicated that provincial assessments were not in line and were no better than those done at the local level," he said.

"But maybe they have the answer — they seem to have a lot of them," added the warden.

The county assessment staff is preparing itself for the concern expected to be voiced by property owners in Stirling and Madoc when they received their new assessment notices. Arrangements have been made to hold "open house" in Stirling on Sept. 25 and 26 and on Sept. 29 and 30 to explain the assessment matter.

The re-assessment at full value in Stirling and Madoc is what the government plans for all Ontario when the province takes over the assessment function next January. It is expected it will take five years to complete re-assessment.

But to ease the minds of Stirling and Madoc ratepayers, their increased assessment don't mean they will automatically be paying proportionately more taxes.

When equalization is completed, taxes for these municipalities will be in line with others in the county.

More Coverage for Less

Increased insurance coverage from a $718,000 rise in building and equipment values at a lower over-all premium has been gained by Hastings county from consolidation of all its insurance requirements with one company.

Council yesterday voted to give all insurance to the A. E. Wilson Company, a firm which it has done business with for the past 27 years.

The result was a $1,300 decrease in the over-all premium despite the fact values were increased by nearly three-quarters of a million dollars. The premium for the "one company" coverage amounts to $9,256 as compared to the previous $10,536 for less coverage.

Fire, boilers and machinery and liability are th risks with the biggest premiums.

The new policy provides 26 different improvements in insurance coverage, including life insurance for council members while on county business.

Well... It's Tax Time...Again

FICTON (Staff) — County Assessor S. G. Manley told county council last night that the rolls had been closed on all 19 municipalities in Prince Edward County.

He stated that assessment notices have come back from the computer centre and should be in the mail "in ample time."

Total assessment, for the town of Picton this year was about $23,000,000, according to Mr. Manley, while the equalization factor stands at 3.53 mills.

He described an increase in property sales since January 1 of this year as the reason for the increase in the equalization rate.

Mr. Manley informed council that a meeting will be held in Picton on October 8 where he will explain the purpose of re-assessment and what it will mean in terms of tax dollars.

He also mentioned a slight population raise of about 150 persons in the county. The major portion of this increased population lies in the township of Hallowell.

Speaking of the provincial assessment takeover he commented, "I haven't heard who the regional commissioner will be although a decision should have been handed down a week ago."

Mr. Manley feels the government would like very much to see one or two counties completely re — assessed and sees no reason why Prince Edward County can't be finished next year. Additional staff would be moved in to complete this project. He suggested that Prince Edward could well be the first county in Ontario to be 100 per cent re-assessed.

Commented Wellington Reeve Robert Boyce: "Maybe you could state a history to your department saying we began this in 1964, Prince Edward County has probably spent more money per capita than any other county in Ontario and still isn't finished.

In reply, Mr. Manley said, "I believe they are cognizant of this fact and I think you'll done first.".

first."

He admitted, however, that he could no longer look ahead beyond January 1 of next year.

Action, Not Promises Urged Against Pollution

Action instead of promises in the control of water pollution was called for in Hastings County Council yesterday by Madoc village Reeve Thomas Burnside.

The Madoc reeve was speaking in reference to an earlier county resolution calling for government action to reduce the amount of phosphates in detergents which was claimed to be a big source of pollution.

The resolution was forwarded to provincial government officials, local members of parliament and all provincial municipalities.

A big majority of the counties and smaller municipalities concurred in the resolution while government officials, including Premier John Roberts, George A. Kerr, energy and resources minister and the Ontario Water Resources Commission replied, stating that the matter was under study.

"It's the same old run around — too little and too late," said Mr. Burnside. "It's almost the same answer I got in Toronto four years ago.

"They say it is under study, but there is still no action."

The reeve urged that all pressure possible be brought to bear on the government, to take prompt action on pollutants and industrial wastes.

Council agreed the matter of pollution should be pressed at the Ontario Association of County and Reeves to be held in Belleville early in October.

Michael Eagan

Connoisseur of the World and Its People

By BARRY GRILLS
(Staff Reporter)

Michael Eagan is more than an artist and theatre set designer—he's a connoisseur of the world and the people in it, a man with some deliberate ideas.

Mr. Eagan has just completed teaching a week-and-a-half series of set design and costume design courses at the Belleville Theatre Guild.

He was in Belleville under the training program of the Dominion Drama Festival, Province of Ontario Council for the Arts.

Mr. Eagan has designed sets for over 35 plays in all parts of Canada and in the United States.

In 1966 and 1967 he was awarded a Canada Council Scholarship for study in England and France.

He was educated at the National Theatre School of Canada and at the University of New Brunswick where he received a Bachelor of Arts degree.

Mr. Eagan talked with the Intelligencer recently, both about himself or the actual art of set and costume design, but about the world and its people and its art forms — art literature and music.

He spoke of his life at university and its position in the strata of society.

"A year ago I would have scoffed at a person who hadn't attended university, but now I think if it's not your thing you shouldn't go."

"Many of the people I knew went for the wrong reasons — to achieve social status and to obtain a certain level of income. Granted, I met some neat people there."

He had some comments about talent.

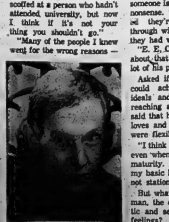
"I think the word talent should be dropped from the language. People will say someone is talented and that's nonsense. They're not talented they're just carrying through with some tendencies they had when young."

"E. E. Cummings is talking about just sort of thing in a lot of his poetry."

Asked if he felt a human could achieve variation in ideals and philosophy after reaching a certain age, he said that he liked to think his loves and hates and opinions were flexible.

"I think his ideals crisscross even when he has reached a maturity. I like to think that my basic hates and loves are not stationary."

But what about the average man, the one who isn't artistic and sensitive about his feelings? the Intelligencer countered.



"I suppose the average man has formulated his beliefs and feelings about things and they can't be changed."

Mr. Eagan is also interested in the music of this era, but shows a slight partiality to the forerunners of modern rock 'n' roll, Ray Charles in particular.

He can speak fluently in that particular art form.

"I was supposed to be interviewed in Montreal once and I was excited and decided to put on a show for him. I thought it would be thing to do to be interviewed over lunch in a restaurant I couldn't afford because I was such a busy fellow."

"Needless to say, I didn't do it, and it's a good thing."

New Museum Planned

Hastings County Council has agreed to the idea of the construction of a new museum on Belleville's Riverside Park area south of Highway 401.

The report of the county finance and public property committee approved by council yesterday recommended that the new museum be built as a combined project of the county and the city with funds from the Salaman estate to be used and the balance of the cost split on a 50-50 basis.

Maintenance and operation of the museum would also be split on a 50-50 basis.

The maximum cost of the project is not to exceed $200,000.

Carl Bateman, county clerk - treasurer - administrator, told council members that stocks and bonds left to the city in the Salaman estate originally amounted to about $95,000, but that the value was decreasing.

The estate accrued to the city.

The Salaman estate included a large collection of paintings and household furniture which were willed the city by a former Belleville woman living in England. They are now on display at the county museum.

Commonwealth Countries Are Not Disturbed By Britain's Third Bid to Enter Euromart

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP) — Britain's third and perhaps last ditch attempt to join the European Common Market causes little apprehension among most Commonwealth countries, Toronto-born Arnold Smith, secretary-general of the Commonwealth, said Tuesday.

Smith was speaking in an interview on the eve of what has become an annual meeting of Commonwealth finance ministers prior to the International Monetary Fund and World Bank annual meetings next week in Washington.

Smith said the terms of Britain's entry affecting the Commonwealth may be negotiated in principle.

He told The Canadian Press at a Caribbean seaside resort "I believe in the value of countries belonging to more than one club."

Asked about possible damage to Commonwealth trade now based on preferential tariffs for many products, Smith said it depends on the fine print, which is negotiable. He noted that Barbados itself is a member of a Caribbean free trade association now seeking a working arrangement with the six member European Economic Community.

A former Canadian ambassador to Russia now in the fourth year of a five-year term as Commonwealth secretary-general, Smith said he does not want to see the world divide into blocs along geographic lines.

With many United Nations agencies are setting up regional subsidiaries to serve separate continents the multi-racial and worldwide nature of the Commonwealth is one of its strengths, he said. It would not be in Canada's own interests to see the Commonwealth dissolve and have its interests limited to North American and the North Atlantic.

The finance ministers of the 28 commonwealth countries open their annual closed conference Thursday after three days of meetings by Commonwealth officials. The officials are believed ready to recommend the opening of a new central Commonwealth fund to finance exchanges of technical experts among developing Commonwealth countries. Canada will be expected to contribute.

Smith said it is premature to speculate on his own future. Some Commonwealth countries want him to take another five-year appointment but he has expressed no view.

He is 54, a Rhodes Scholar and was assistant undersecretary in the external affairs department in Ottawa from 1963 to 1965.

Smith said the Commonwealth is doing well after having gone through troubles of doubt and internal uncertainty in the last few years. Similar illness had afflicted other international bodies including the UN and NATO, he said.

U.S. Senate Approves Rent Subsidy Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — A far-reaching new rent subsidy plan for public housing tenants breezed through the U.S. Senate Tuesday with little fanfare or debate.

The proposal to provide $75,000,000 for rent subsidies was included in the $6,300,000,000 housing bill passed by voice vote.

Under the measure, the government for the first time would pay a portion of the rent of some public housing tenants and might even provide the entire amount for families in the most dismal circumstances.

Senator Edward W. Brooke (Rep.-Mass.) sponsored the Senate plan that would make it possible for the government to pay that part of the rent of a public housing tenant which exceeds 25 per cent of his income.

The bill contains other provisions aimed at public housing. One of these would make it possible for the government for the first time to pay a part of the operating and maintenance costs of the projects.

In addition, the bill permits about a 55-per-cent increase in public housing construction costs in high cost areas such as New York City.

The measure now goes to the House of Representatives.

Money Based Solely on Faith Seems Certain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first international attempt to create money from only faith and good intentions appears certain with a recommendation that the International Monetary Fund pass out $9,500,000,000 in "paper gold" during the next three years.

The fund announced Tuesday that managing director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer recommended more than a week ago that the organization put the radical new plan of special drawing rights into effect Jan. 1.

Governors representing the 112 member countries will vote on the plan when they meet in Washington next week for their annual joint meeting with the World Bank.

Since the supply of gold that countries can use for buying their own currency back from other countries was frozen more than a year ago, during a time when both gold and currency reserves were growing shorter, the need for a new way to increase reserves has become more acute.

Schweitzer's formal recommendation calls for distributing $3,500,000,000 at the beginning of 1971 and again in 1972. It follows the outlines of an agreement reached in Paris last July by the Group of Ten major industrial countries.

The drawing rights called SDRs by bankers would increase each country's international reserves by an amount in proportion to its quota in the International Monetary Fund. For the first year this would range from $851,400,000 for the United States down to $486,000 each for tiny Botswana and Lesotho in Africa. Yugoslavia, the only Communist country in the fund, would be entitled to almost $25,000,000.

Italy Plans Rent Freeze

ROME (Reuters) — The government Thursday proposed a year's rent freeze on all working and middle class homes in a move to allay the social and labor unrest now plaguing Italy.

The housing shortage, particularly in the booming cities, is one of the main sources of discontent. It led to rioting in Turin in July and a 24-hour general strike in Florence last week.

The government also announced it planned to remove another source of complaint — the regulation under which civil servants lose a whole day's pay if they go on strike even for one hour.

Montreal Car Fumes Do Damage

MONTREAL (CP) — Carbon monoxide from automobile exhausts is a "health hazard" that is slowly damaging Montreal ers' sight, hearing and brain cells, the city's health department warned Tuesday.

In the first of a series of reports on Montreal air pollution, the department says carbon monoxide pollution in Montreal is worse than in many United States cities.

It calls on the Quebec government to pass laws similar to those in several U.S. states, requiring filtration devices on automobiles. Such devices would reduce air pollution from cars by more than half within five years, says the report, and would add only $15 to $35 to the price of a car.

The department also recommends measures to speed traffic flow in the city because pollution increases at least five times in stop-and-start traffic.

Lookout Laugh-in!

ABC Bares Sunday Punch

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC tossed its Monday punch at Laugh-In—two early evening shows which ABC hopes will attract some of the viewing audience, particularly young people, from the rival channel.

The first program was Music Scene, 45 minutes of the top musical numbers of the moment, with guest stars that included the Beatles—on film—plus Tom Jones and James Brown. The comedy was entrusted to a company of young improvisationists recruited by the producer.

In the first show the comedy, used to introduce the musical numbers, seemed weak and uncertain. But the young performers have been working together only briefly. Even so it is hard to get excited about a sketch which has a man asking a store clerk for a pair of elevator shoes and the clerk starts to grow in size.

The program ended at 8:15 p.m. EDT and, without the usual pause for commercials and station identification, the opening scenes of The New People appeared. This 45-minute dramatic series promises to be an interesting novelty with a point of view.

It is based on the experiences of 40 young Americans, from all social and ethnic strata, stranded by a plane crash on an abandoned tropic island. Fights and feuds broke out, there were racial tensions, personality clashes and finally almost a lynching when one mentally retarded boy ruined their chances of rescue because he was erased at another member of the party.

The young performers are an interesting variety and promise to make the show interesting viewing, after the large cast is sorted out.

Raw, Realistic Violence Floods Tubes

NEW YORK (AP) — It may not be long before some television viewers hunger for the old-fashioned phoney violence of Wild West shoot-outs and the faked fights of private eyes.

This year, TV violence and tragedy hits closer to home, with sickness, physical handicaps, plane crashes as the base of dramatic conflict.

The TV doctors are making their initial housecalls. Marcus Welby, M. D. dropped by, via ABC, Tuesday night with a story about a pretty young school teacher dying of brain cancer.

Dr. Welby—Robert Young—is a kindly, wise general practitioner. He has a young, intense assistant—James Brolin—who makes house calls on a motorcycle. They discussed symptoms a bit in the first show but mostly the young doctor was getting himself emotionally involved with the teacher. The touchy question of whether to tell a patient he is dying was handled as if it were not a debatable point—the girl was told as she was coming out of the anesthetic of her operation.

The first program of another doctors' series, Medical Centre, will be broadcast by CBS tonight. It is the story of a determined doctor trying to persuade an ailing athlete to submit to the surgery he needs.

The CBS series premier, seen in a preview, is hospital-oriented and Chad Everett, as the young surgeon, is as dedicated as Ben Casey. The story centres on the university's football star refusing medical attention because it might interfere with his rich future in pro ball.

Dr. Dixon suspects—upon outing of symptoms — a tumor but only manages to get his man on the operating table in the nick of time.

A pleasant surprise is the engaging performance by football star O. J. Simpson.

It will be interesting to see if, in weeks to come, the public finds these dramatic excursions into human misery gripping entertainment. Both shows were well produced and sympathetically acted.

Plane crashes promise to be handy dramatic devices. The New People started Monday night with one, and a crack-up was the foundation of the plot Tuesday of the first show in ABC's new Movie of the Week series. Seven in Darkness had a group of blind persons surviving the crash and most of the 90 minutes showed their stumbling, peril - filled trek to safety.

The program was contrived, often melodramatic and too long. It just probably not a happy choice for a first show since it was often painful and tedious despite the work of an excellent cast including Milton Berle, Barry Nelson and Dina Merrill.

Stardom from Scratch

TORONTO (CP) — She was given the female lead as a 16th birthday present; he was crowned to star on the basis of an unidentified photograph although his name is known around the world.

Anjelica Huston and Assaf Dayan are the stars of movie director John Huston's latest film, A Walk with Love and Death, which receives its world premiere tonight in Toronto.

In their first interview since the movie was finished a year ago, the two told how John Huston's daughter and Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan's son came to their roles.

Huston himself cast the starring roles. He picked Dayan from a photograph, an unknown face, shortly after arriving in London to begin the film.

That he picked his daughter—giving her the role a birthday present—should come as no surprise to anyone who has seen Huston's father, Walter, in the director's Academy Award-winning The Treasure of the Sierre Madre.

The people involved in his latest film, the story of a couple of medieval flower children wandering through war-torn France, say it will be his biggest success since The Misfits.

Anjelica says she can't evaluate her performance in the movie, but "if I didn't think I was talented I'd get out of the racket immediately."

"I am John Huston's daughter," says the now 18-year-old Anjelica. "I was put in John Huston's film because of John Huston's favoritism. There's nothing more that can be said about that."

"Lights or not lights it's not that important," says Assaf.

New Service Collects Money Owed to Workers in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — J. Michael Warren expects to collect about $1,200,000 from various Ontario companies this year, but he would rather it shrank to nothing.

Mr. Warren is executive director of the manpower services branch of the Ontario labor department, responsible for enforcing the Employment Standards Act which came into effect Jan. 1 to keep employers from cheating employees.

In the first six months of the year, the department collected $633,622 for nearly 24,000 employees in the province whose companies had somehow shortchanged them. About $1,200,000 will be collected by the end of the year.

"The true measure of our success," Mr. Warren says, "is when we collect absolutely no money."

That would mean all companies in Ontario are obeying the new act.

One portion of the act of particular interest to Mr. Warren is a stipulation that women should receive the same pay as men if they do the same job.

Mr. Warren predicts that the province will eliminate within a year different rates of pay for men and women performing the same job.

The act calls for:

—Equal pay for equal work.

—Establishment of seven statutory holidays that require 1½ times the regular wage rate if worked by the employee. They are New Year's Day, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

—Payment of time and a half for work above 48 hours a week.

—A one-week holiday each year with pay at least two per cent of an employee's gross annual earnings.

—Authorization for the department to collect unpaid wages for employees to a maximum of $1,000.

The most important aspect of the new act is that the burden of initiating action against an employer now rests with the labor department.

Mr. Warren says most companies who cheat their employees do so unintentionally and readily pay up when informed by the department of their error.

Willy Brandt Expects To Win German Voting

KASSEL (AP) — Foreign Minister Willy Brandt goes into the final days of his campaign for West Germany's general election Sunday optimistic that he will be the next chancellor.

"I am by nature a cautious optimist, but at the moment I am more optimistic than cautious," Brandt told a reporter Tuesday after a hectic day of campaigning in the State of Hesse.

The Socialist foreign minister, who is trying to unseat Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, leader of the conservative Christian Democrats, returned from a one-day trip to New York, where he met with the Western and Soviet foreign ministers.

Before hitting the campaign trail, he held a news conference and attended a cabinet meeting in Bonn. Then he toured five communities in Hesse, delivering in each a 25-minute speech outlining the policies of his Social Democratic party.

Although he spent the night aboard the plane, Brandt did not appear tired. His trip to New York to meet the foreign ministers attending the UN General Assembly seemed to have two purposes.

The display of energy was not lost on his audiences of voters. And it gave Brandt grounds to deny Kiesinger's campaign charge that a government led by the Socialists would weaken West Germany's ties with its Western allies.

"My talks in New York have convinced me that this is not so," Brandt said.

He also said he found Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko more relaxed than at their previous meeting and that they discussed, among other things, trade between their two countries and an exchange of technological information.

Brandt's party, which has been in the coalition government with the Christian Democrats for the last 34 months, seems closer to becoming the largest party in the West German parliament than in any other election. It has steadily gained votes in past elections and now is facing the voters for the first time after having been in the government.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 25

Your birthday today: There are so many changes in so many ways coming up this year that there is no detailed preparation you can or should make. Simply learn, if you don't already know, how to pray; to meditate. Your intuition will guide you through all complexities if you can differentiate between real intuition and wishful thinking. Today's natives are sensitive, reserved, able to see both sides, but not shaken from convictions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A day of caution is at hand. Objects break easily. Drivers hit pedals hard and fast. Rebellious or defiant feelings arise over trifles. Discipline yourself to be calm and to realize peace.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You can't tell for sure whether somebody is mixing up your work or some error factor is working in you. Be patient, the matter will straighten out in a few days.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Everything and everybody seems to be at odds with something or somebody today. Have patience until each one concerned has a chance to get it out of his system.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Business changes are undesirable today, but some may be forced on you if you are not yet in a strong enough position. Retrenchment is not the natural solution.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You now run into cross-pressures between your personal whims and the needs of your associates and between the attraction of home life versus profession.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The advice you get today, no matter what the fee, is subject to sudden revision of basic assumptions which may not be valid.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): This constitutes another day in the crossroads of your life where you must sort out the fundamental directions you should follow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Take a moderate course through the muddle of today. Nobody else can do much more. Be tactful, at all costs. Romantic interests may provide a brief island of happiness in stress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 — Dec. 21): Review your financial situation: establish some idea of what is feasible. Your ambitions and needs may run counter to your responsibilities so that re-adjustment must be made.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Discrepancies arise over what you can do and what you would like to do. The temptation is to be bitter about it, especially if somebody interferes with your effort to find a balance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Driving can be hazardous today, particularly in regions where you are not on familiar ground. With the people around you, most things seem to be in a state of confusion, however romantic connections are all right when you get back to find out.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20) You may discover you haven't enough money to do what you want to now. Work out a financing plan in order that you will be able to adhere to the original planning you did some time ago.

Egyptian's Stand Sparks New Hope

Talks Can Start Before Pullback

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Diplomats speculated today that the Arabs may be becoming more receptive to Big Four efforts to work out a peace settlement for the Middle East.

Hopes were boosted by what was interpreted as a note of conciliation expressed Wednesday by Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad after a meeting with U.S. State Secretary William Rogers.

Riad told reporters his government does not insist that before the Arabs accept a peace package, Israel must withdraw from the territory it occupied during the 1967 war.

Riad said if Israel renounces "ideas of expansion" and settles the question of Palestine refugees, an agreement might be worked out similar to the 1949 armistice which ended the first Palestine war.

It was recalled, however, that Riad made a similar statement at United Nations in 1966, but that since then Egypt has been constant in its demands for a complete Israeli withdrawal.

Western diplomats have counted on U.S.-Soviet consultations and Big Four talks to wrap up a package that both Israel and the Arab states would accept. Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France told the General Assembly Wednesday that Big Four negotiations are the only way to work out a plan for lasting peace.

Big Four talks on the Middle East were halted last July to give the United States and Soviet Union a chance to explore the question. The four-power talks are expected to resume in mid-October. And U.S. diplomats hope they will work out something that the Arabs and Israelis can negotiate on, using UN mediator Gunnar Jarring of Sweden as a mediator.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban told the assembly last Friday that his government is still ready to negotiate "without prior conditions of any kind." But Israel has not modified previous announcements that it would never give up the Arab sector of Jerusalem, which it seized in 1967.

The Israeli government also now is virtually committed to retention of the southern Sinai Desert to protect the southern sea approach to Israel and to neutralization of the west bank of the River Jordan, seized from Jordan in 1967.

Islam Parley Hits Snag

RABAT (AP) —The Islamic summit conference broke down Wednesday night after Pakistani President Mohammed Yahya Khan refused to sit in the same meeting with a Moslem member of the Indian government.

In an effort to present a facade of Islamic unity against Israel, conference leaders suspended the final plenary session in this Moroccan capital, which was to have approved resolutions denouncing Israel, demanding the return of all Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war, and endorsing the Palestine Liberation Organization.

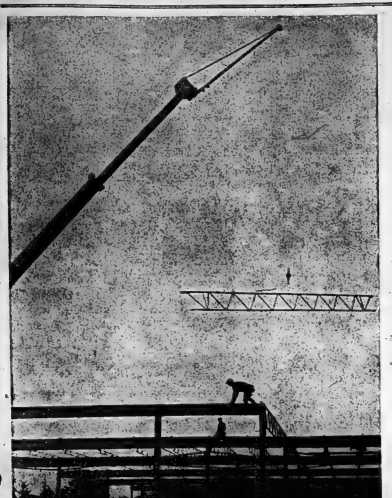
The summit meeting began Monday and was to have ended Wednesday. Yahya Khan's boycott plunged it into disarray. Delegation chiefs met behind closed doors until midnight Wednesday night, then announced that the conference would continue today.

Yahya Khan on Tuesday had agreed to inviting a delegation representing the Hindu nation's 60,000,000 Moslems. But he balked when India sent its minister of power, Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed, at the head of the delegation. The Pakistani leader indicated only a non-governmental group was acceptable to him, not one representing the government with which his government has warred for years over Kashmir.

Some delegations urged withdrawal of the invitation to the Indians, but Algerian President Houari Boumedienne and other Arab leaders opposed this. On the other side, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi of Iran and Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Caglayangil assured Yahya Khan they would not attend a plenary session unless he did.

An Algerian spokesman attributed the Iranian and Turkish support for the Pakistani chief to their "well known military alignment." The three non-Arab nations are members of the Central Treaty Organization.

Premier Shops for Guns



WASHINGTON ((AP) — Shopping list in hand, Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel hopes to convince President Nixon the United States should boost its arms sales to her country.

Mrs. Meir went into her scheduled meeting with Nixon today reported ready to ask for an additional 24 Phantom and 80 Skyhawk jet planes to bolster the Israeli Air Force and closer economic ties.

Her arrival in the capital coincides with reports that Israel also is negotiating with the Sikorsky Aircraft Corp. on a $237,000,000 order for 125 helicopters.

The United States now is delivering 50 of the supersonic Phantom fighter-bombers sold to Israel by former president Johnson last December for $200,000,000.

The United States also had promised Israel 100 Skyhawk fighters.

Brittle Peace Broken By Londonderry Death

LONDONDERRY (AP) — Northern Ireland's brittle peace threatened to shatter today after a night of violence here which claimed the life of a man who tried to rescue his son from warring Roman Catholics and Protestants.

The mood of violence was thrust sky - high again as the Catholic barricades of Bogside rose once more, hastily erected by residents fearing the worst.

It was in Londonderry that Ulster's bloody spasm of sectarian street fighting, bombing, looting and arson began last month. Many feared Londonderry would witness the renewal.

Paddy Doherty, chairman of the Citizens Defence Association of Bogside, which pulled down its barriers and entrusted its safety to the British Army Monday, said gaily today he had 1,000 men "on alert and warned: 'The situation is very, very dangerous.'"

The man who became Ulster's 10th riot fatality in recent weeks was 50-year-old William King, a family man believed to be a Protestant.

The last Chinese reporters held in the British colony under anti-riot regulations is scheduled for release Oct. 2.

He added this is his personal opinion, based on talks with young people.

The issue is still being considered by an all-party select committee, the premier said.

Algae May Be Licked

New Process Gives Promise Of Halting Lakes Pollution

OAKVILLE (CP) -- Energy Minister George Kerr said Wednesday night Ontario has discovered a "revolutionary new process" for removing from sewage the phosphorus and nitrogen nutrients that threaten to destroy the Great Lakes.

Mr. Kerr said the discovery, a type of lime precipitation process, was developed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission and has proved highly successful in trials at the Richmond Hill sewage treatment plant just north of Toronto.

Both the phosphorus and nitrogen content of sewage treatment at the plant had been cheaply reduced by 92 per cent compared to 39 per cent with other well-known treatments.

Mr. Kerr said in a speech at a public library that the new process offers a solution to the major pollution problem of the Great Lakes—the buildup of algae that has already caused experts to pronounce Lake Erie a dead lake.

Nitrogen and oxygen dumped into lakes through sewage speed up a process called eutrophication—the natural aging process of lakes—by feeding algae, which multiply at increased rates, removing the oxygen from the water and destroying fish and plant life.

This process could be halted if the new lime treatment method was used at sewage treatment plants in municipalities bordering the lakes.

Mr. Kerr said earlier in Toronto that the OWRC intends to test the new process at other sewage treatment plants under different conditions.

"This is a great breakthrough, there is no question about it," Mr. Kerr said.

"We are looking for this to be in operation on a widespread basis—particularly in the plants operated by the commission—in a matter of months."

Mr. Kerr said in his speech at a public library that the process can be installed at even the most rudimentary treatment plants.

"I can see the new treatment being started across the province . . . just as fast as the equipment can be manufactured and installed."

The process also enables a sewage plant to operate more efficiently.

"This means that municipalities will now be able to expand the capacity of their facilities at a fraction of what it would cost by conventional methods and remove phosphorous and nitrogen besides."

The government may consider making the lime treatment mandatory for all municipal sewage treatment. Financial assistance might be available to aid centres adopting it.

"But the costs are so low and the benefits so great, I doubt there would be any problem getting people to go ahead with it."

Mr. Kerr said he anticipated the International Joint Commission which policed pollution and other matters concerning the Great Lakes and other joint Canadian-U.S. waterways will soon impose regulations.

These would make the treatment compulsory for all municipal sewage dumped in the Great Lakes or streams and rivers running into them.

Mr. Kerr said the method can be adopted at primary or sophisticated secondary sewage treatment plants for a cost of between $2,200 and $3,000.

Park Dale Student Trio Designs School Crest

School spirit in the Park Dale community is soaring these days with the adoption of a crest for the 468 pupils of the school.

The pupil-designed crest will be officially endorsed Monday night at a Home and School Association meeting when the three designers will be presented with the first copies of their work.

Barbara Nickel, Stanley Hymers and Tami Simard each contributed elements of the design incorporated into the popular yellow and green motif.

The design was the result of a project organized last year by teacher Mrs. Sandra Brown. All pupils in kindergarten to Grade 8 in the primary school were invited to submit their ideas for a school crest. The Home and School Association sponsored manufacture of the crests, to be sold to pupils for $1.50 each.

Winning motto was Learning First, and underlining the concept is a centre motif of a pencil, pen and open book.

For Parkdale Principal R. A. Wright, a school crest has been a dream ever since he began teaching.

"In the back of my mind, I have always had the idea I wanted to see my pupils create their own crest," he said "Now here it is".

Innovation is a way of life at Park Dale. Last year the pupils wrote three issues of a school newspaper, the Minilotsi, with up to 85 pages of school news and cartoons. The Home and School Association under-wrote the cost of materials and the staff ran off the copies on office equipment.

With the crest project now well in hand, the principal and staff are planning more projects to bolster esprit de corps. A school year-book with a more ambitious format than the newspapers is under consideration.

School Crest Approved

Stanley Hymers, one of three designers of the new Park Dale School crest, pins the first copy on fellow designer Barbara Nickel, while Tami Simard waits her turn. The three pupils shared in creating the crest and motto, to be officially adopted at a Home and School meeting next Monday night.

Stirling Man Dies Of Crash Injuries

A Stirling electrical contractor died yesterday in Belleville General Hospital — one week after his automobile crashed off Highway 14 in the Oak Hills.

Feike Oosting, 43, suffered critical head injuries Sept. 17 when his car plowed into a highway signpost, causing $3,000 damage.

A native of Holland who immigrated to Canada in 1957, he had lived in Stirling for the past 13 years where he operated the contracting firm of Oosting Electric.

He is immediately survived by his wife, the former Helena de Ruiter, a son Jan, and daughters Lubertha and Rosalie, all at home.

Mr. Oosting also leaves a brother Eize, in Holland and six sisters — Mrs. Hielkie Koenen, Mrs. Bertha Koopmans, and Mrs. Rosie Kooije, all of Holland, Mrs. John (Afke) Klompmaker, Stirling; Mrs. (Gaske) Wieger De Jong, Stirling; Mrs. Reni (Wielake) Scholten, Prince George, B.C.

He was a member of Maranatha Christian Reformed Church where funeral service will be held Saturday.

Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery.

Clann Gael's Memorable Show Credit to Concert Association

By EUGENE LANG

During the past 35 years the Belleville Community Concert Association has reached far horizons in treating its members to musical personages from far and near in presentations from mediocre to excellent.

Last night's opener of the 1969-1970 season will likely go down in the association's history as one that will shine over a lot of others (some having dimmed before the final curtain even) as one to be remembered Jor many a long day to come.

The near capacity crowd on hand to see the refreshing two hour show put on by Clann Gael certainly mirrored their enthusiasm in exuberant applause following each number. A local community concert audience was at last completely satisfied as witnessed by their response.

This group of highly talented entertainers counted 20 youthful singers, dancers and musicians among its members, now making their first tour of North America. They no doubt will return many times if Belleville is any criterion.

From opening roll of drum and skirl of pipe to final rousing roundelay the entire performance was emblazoned with an invigorating approach of vernal freshness.

It would be an impossibility to fully describe the 40-odd selections that were given, since 'twas better to be seen and heard than described,' but a few items could be attempted, however inadequately, in print.

The land of the thistle and heather was endeared to all of us in the many songs and dances from the Highlands and Hebrides. All was imbued with idiomatic charm whether it be the lively hit of Ho Ro My Not Brown Maiden, or the carefree ditty of Westering Home, both featuring the singers.

Tenor Frank Patterson's Loch Lomond was a rewarding rendition. His caressing of My Love is like a Red Red Rose gave the flowing melody a wafting loveliness.

Soprano Anne Cosgrove was delightful in Comin' Thro' the Rye.

The Skye Boat Song as interpreted by Esther Dunne and Theresa Deasy was fragile in concept accentuated by subtle harp shadings. Will Ye No Come Back Again floated in pleading phrases from the youthful voices.

The Scottish dances were handled with a delicate earthiness that bespoke their ancient origins, yet fluency of feet was noted by the captivated watchers. Victor Wesley exemplified an old rite in the Sword Dance that brought us back from Auld Scotland as the final number from the craggy heaths of Caledonia.

Our musical journey to the land of the shamrock was no less interesting and while we were witnesses to the folk lore of an ancient nation that prides itself on its musical heritage.

The nostalgic Killarney and the tripping Johnny I Hardly Knew You are the singers entrenched in Irish intonings.

The O'Connors (two sisters and a brother) stole the whole show more than once with their agility in the Hornpipe (among many offerings) and Brian's fleet footed handling of the Jig. The Five Hand Reel put all the dancers through their paces and with tremendous applause following they knew that they had won their audience completely.

Anne Cosgrove's Danny Boy could be described as soulful song throughout. The five ballads from Scottish ones heard from the like number of male singers brought one to the sod of both countries in their compelling characterizations.

Very enjoyable was the music of Percy French (1854-1920) who wrote some of Ireland's most popular songs. Calghy was the projection of Eileen Oge by both singers and dancers. The Little Bridge Flynn the dancers and wound up with the full company in hilarious gyrations in the Flute's Ball, even some of the long gowned singers getting into the act here.

Let us not forget Rosemary McGuire who added immensely with her various Hibernian and Scotian dance numbers.

In retrospect we can say that the show was really fast paced (applause would not be finished when a new act was in the offing). The costumes of both sexes, although primarily basic were greatly enhanced by colorful additives when the occasion demanded. Movement on stage was quick and planned, although the lack of polish in some could be attributed to contours of our stage.

Lighting was the only noticeable deterrent, but this was mostly counterbalanced by the celerity of performers.

Accordion player Noel Smith backed up the dancers with vibrant playing. Director and pianist Eily O'Grady proved an excellent accompanist at all times and to her our congratulations on all counts of the production.

If a vote by the audience could have been taken after the exhilarating performance by the entire troupe the odds would definitely be in favor of the Clann Gael returning to Quinte Country in the near future. A real auspicious beginning for our 35th year, was it not?

Following the performance the Clann Gael and members of the association executive were guests at the home of Mrs. Ethel Deacon, Willi a m Street.

Workers Seek Bargaining Rights

By MARG HAYLOCK
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — About 160 workers at the Picton plant of Proctor-Lewyt, representing the Prince Edward County Electrical Workers Association have made application to the Ontario Labor Relations Board in Toronto for certification.

It has not yet been decided, according to the Ontario Labor Relations Board, whether or not Lewyt workers will be certified as a bargaining agent.

A decision is expected within the next few days, possibly as early as next week, according to a Picton spokesman for the association.

Proctor - Lewyt, formerly Proctor Silex, has been without a union since the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, were de-certified early this year. Application to the OLRB was made by the new association 6n Sept. 18. Representing the group in Toronto were its president, vice-president and lawyer.

The association's lawyer, Jack Ward, also was present.

According to a spokesman, if and when certification is granted, the association intends to begin immediate bargaining with company officials. He did not reveal what issues might be discussed.

Chief Hill's Rain Dance Guarantees Wet Results

Precipitation will be guaranteed this Saturday as part of Belleville week activities — if Chief Earle Hill has anything to say about it.

The day will be filled with a full range of activities, events such as the artificial hip joint implant operation to be demonstrated at Belleville General Hospital by Mr. Peter Ring of the United Kingdom.

Later in the day a giant parade from the East Hill Playground to the Exhibition Park will draw some attention. Scheduled for the same time in the afternoon, 2.30, is a historical rummage sale at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Those watching the parade should come properly prepared — with rain coats, advises Belleville Week committee member Alderman Gerald Joyce.

An Indian rain dance will be performed by Chief Earle Hill and a number of his braves from the Mohawk Indian Reserve at Tyendinaga.

The action will take place in front of the grandstand at 4.30 — with the rainmakers in native costume, of course.

"Chief Hill has assured the committee that those who will be observing the rain dance should come prepared — umbrellas at least," emphasized Ald. Joyce.

"This is the first time in many years that the rain dance will be performed here and, hopefully, but participants the first time in memory that the chief has guaranteed to produce precipitation," he added.

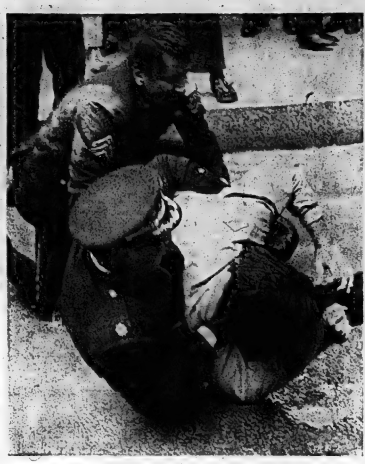
Abramsky Sells 2,700 Acre Farm

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Harry Abramsky, prominent Kingston furniture dealer, confirmed this morning that he has sold his 2,700 farm in Prince Edward County.



New owner is C. H. Franklin, president of Algonquin Building Credits of Toronto.

Mr. Abramsky said Mr. Franklin has purchased the farm and all the cattle, intending to improve the grade of the livestock. He wishes to operate as a gentleman farmer, shunning publicity.

The property includes lands on both the upper and lower Glenora Roads, and a portion of land near Lake-on-the-Mountain. Mr. Abramsky has raised beef cattle on the land for the past 20 years, continually expanding land-holding during this time.

The farm has often been referred to as one of the biggest in Ontario.

Mr. Abramsky said this morning that he is now a very busy retailer, lacking the necessary time to remain active in his farm operations. Walter Lewis will continue in his capacity as farm manager.

Prince Edward Eyes New Home for Aged

PICTON (Staff) — County council last night carried a motion empowering the county home and welfare committee to meet with the department of family services to discuss the feasibility of a new county home and possible grants.

Chairman of the committee, Reeve George Cunningham, reported at length to council concerning visits he and other councillors have made recently to county homes in Kingston and Cobourg. After touring several homes for the aged Mr. Cunningham made a number of personal observations pertaining to the type of home desirable for senior citizens in Prince Edward County.

Outlining what he termed "a few concrete recommendations," he suggested each room of the proposed new home should be designed to accommodate two people. Toilet facilities in every room was a second recommendation along with plans for adequate closet space.

"A chapel and an auditorium are essential," said Mr. Cunningham.

The Reeve also felt that an arts and crafts room should be designed, easily accessable to all residents of the home.

"I would like to see a relatively fireproof building," stressed Mr. Cunningham in his report to fellow councillors.

He also emphasized the desirability of heating facilities not requiring stationary engineers. This, in his opinion, could be a substantial saving annually in operational costs.

Adequate nurses' stations and an intercommunication room were also mentioned in connection with intensive care. Installation of the required elevators was also a main point in Mr. Cunningham's report.

His final recommendation concerned the name of the proposed new home for the aged. While Mr. Cunningham made no specific suggestions he did state that he felt definitely the name should not be the Prince Edward County Home.

Council listened to the report and one or two additional suggestions were brought out. South Marysburgh Reeve Allan Ralley urged council to carefully consider future requests of the new building.

"We must make sure that additions can be made to the home for there is a rising population among our senior citizens," he observed.

Parents to Blame, Warden Claims

PICTON (Staff) — In his opening remarks to county council last night, Warden George Foster referred to "a couple of unwanted incidents" at Picton fair.

Speaking briefly of the near riot during the fair, Warden Foster observed, "I think we as parents are sometimes partially to blame for these things."

"When these teens were growing up, perhaps we did not always stay at home to give them guidance."

Warden Foster was one of the officials taking part in the opening of Prince Edward County fair.

Parents' Group Receives Charter

A charter has been approved for the Belle-Trent chapter of the international organizations Parents Without Partners, Inc.

It is the 17th such chapter in Canada. The organization, formed in New York City in 1957, has 12 chapters in Ontario, most of them lying in the "Golden Horseshoe" area.

Parents Without Partners is primarily an educational association and 30 of every 12 regular meetings must be educational in nature.

"Our concern is for our children and how best to raise them and to help them develop with a mentally healthy outlook on life," said Mrs. Mary Book, Canadian zone 5 director at a recent meeting.

Mrs. Book and Joe Pirie, international vice-president in charge of programming, visited the local chapter for a meeting at which Quinte area clergymen were special guests.

Mr. Pirie outlined a sample month's program, consisting of two regular educational meetings, two discussion groups, one or two adult activities, usually on a Friday or Saturday night and two to three parent-child activities, frequently on Sunday afternoon.

Membership is open to any parent who is single by reason of death, divorce, separation or unmarried status. Objective of the organization is to assist parents to raise their children to healthy maturity, with the full sense of being loved and accepted as persons, and with the same prospects for normal adulthood as children who mature with their two parents together.

Meetings are held in Belleville on the first Thursday of each month at 8.15 p.m. in the recreation centre and in Trenton on the third Thursday of each month at 8 p.m. at King Street United Church.

Officers are George Cote, Trenton president; Muriel Wilson, Belleville vice-president; Dorothy Emery, Trenton, treasurer; Pat Merill, Sterling, secretary, and Marg LaPort, Ameliasburg, assistant secretary.

Board's Lighting Bill Twice Estimated Cost

Seeding a better light on education at the county board offices, 208 Bridge St. East, has cost the board $2,000.

Trustees were told this week that renovations to the old Board offices to accommodate the new county board administrators cost twice the original sum appropriated.

Early this year, $1,000 was approved to install a portable classroom and carry out necessary re-arrangement of offices. This week, in a discussion of accounts, a further $2,000 was revealed to have been spent for lighting.

Trustees Macdonald Smith, Robertson Collins and Paul Fleming objected to hearing about the expenditure after it was made, instead of having a chance to discuss it before the money was committed.

"At the beginning of the year, with instant board and instant policies, decisions on some expenditures were made without time to inform the board," said director of education Eric Runacres.

He told trustees the lighting was improved to bring it up to national standards.

"I considered the situation a hazard to the health of employees," he said. "The foot candlepower was under 25-70 foot candlepower is standard."

"The old administration must have been working in the dark for years," quipped chairman James Clarke.

Mr. Smith objected, during discussion of accounts, to approving cheques "we know nothing about".

"We have to trust our administrator," commented trustee John O'Flynn. "To keep track of all cheques we would have to sit in the board office reading them all night."

"One thousand cheques a week," interjected business manager K. F. Wormald.

"I have confidence in our personnel," said Donald Williams of Sterling. "If they let us down, then we will lower the boom."

Color Tour For Council

County councillors have voted to take a "color" bus tour of North Hastings some time after mid-October but Belleville residents don't have to go to the north to see multi-colored leaves.

Former Manor Matron Honored at Testimonial

A testimonial dinner honoring Mrs. Muriel Yorke, former matron at the Hastings County Manor, concluded yesterday's one-day session of county council.

Council members and their wives along with department heads attended the dinner at the Sir Valley Motor Inn.

Chairman for the evening program was Warden Donald Rodgers. County Home committee chairman Earl Manley, Clarke T. Rollins, Hastings MPP, and Elmer Sandercock, former MPP and now - time county home superintendent paid tribute to Mrs. Yorke for her 30 years service to the county.

The one-day session of county council was taken from the various committee chairmen.

Included were detailed reports of the social services committee, the family and children's services bridges committee.

The roads and bridge committee report by chairman Reeve Carman Gibson said that the current steel shortage was forcing a change of plans for the proposed Glenn Miller bridge.

Funds covering the cost of the steel girders for the bridge were included in this year's budget but it had been learned that the girders cannot be fabricated this year so quotations will be received on precast concrete girders.

It is expected that the concrete girders will be slightly less expensive than the steel girders, but will result in an increased height of the structure over the Trent Canal of one and a half feet.

The bridge will not be erected until 1970.

Rawdon Deputy Reeve Ray Short voiced objection to the intention of the county to revert a county road in his township back to the municipality and in turn assume responsibility for a township road.

But he was reminded that the reversion was recommended as a result of a roads needs study and had been approved by the county. A recorded vote for the county to continue responsibility for the road to be reverted saw Mr. Short as the only objector.

Council approved of renovations costing an estimated $3,000 at Hastings Manor to convert the apartment formerly occupied by the home superintendent for use of home residents. The expenditure is expected to be subsidized 70 per cent by the province.

Council Decision

With urban renewal virtually dead, or at least in cold storage until such time as the Government deems it possible for such ventures to be resumed, Belleville has done the sensible thing in discontinuing its current study.

Instead, it will hire another firm of consultants to carry out an economic study to be ready in time for the October 27 re-hearing into the north-end plaza question.

According to Mayor J. Russell Scott, the cost of the study will be borne by Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd., the firm behind the plaza project. Cambridge had written council saying it was convinced there was little hope for Ontario Municipal Board approval of the plaza project as long as the urban renewal study was in progress.

In the circumstances council's decision to call a halt to the urban renewal was a wise one. Meanwhile, a more favorable climate has been created for the OMB hearing on October 27. Urban renewal can always be resumed at some more opportune time in the future.

Toward Peace

President Nixon's efforts to de-escalate the Vietnam war are encouraging signs in a world where the tempo of international, not to mention domestic, unrest must be cooled if a much more dangerous level of conflict is not to be reached.

One reason advanced for the President's renewed move to bring about peace in Southeast Asia and stabilize the situation at home is the return of thousands of students to college throughout the land, with all that that entails where campus unrest is concerned.

An end to the military draft and replacement of American troops by Vietnamese are other steps being taken to defuse the conflict in Vietnam.

Meanwhile in our own part of the world, the increasing involvement of students in educational matters and an increasingly vocal student body, particularly in universities, are factors that are being recognized. So much so that one recommendation in a recent report to the Ontario government on why young people reject society is the appointment of an educational ombudsman to mediate personal disputes between students and teachers.

The report, begun in 1968, says a common student complaint is that "when a teacher is on your back, there is nothing you can do about it." Hence the suggestion for an ombudsman. Another recommendation is the establishment of a provincial youth foundation to study problems and a "vigorous attack on the problem" of youth-police relations.

Problems there are on both sides, from the students' point of view and that of the teacher. But reduced to its simplest terms the main responsibility for making a success of school lies with the students. If they have the right attitude, if they really want to learn, then their success will be assured. On the other hand, if they are more concerned about their rights, if they are forever bugging their teachers, forever seeking rights and freedom without first learning the meaning of responsibility, then they will be difficult for them, and it will be of their own making.

World Wide

The international scope of the work of the Salvation Army, and its practical nature, never ceases to amaze. Quietly but with vigor and determination, the Army goes about its task of helping the needy in a multitude of ways.

A recent issue of The Army's journal, The War Cry, noted that the organization began with open-air evangelism; then came marches and uniforms and other symbols which have become traditional in no fewer than 71 countries. And always, beyond the symbolism, is the evidence of practical Christianity.

A composite page of pictures shows aspects of The Army's work in Ghana, the Congo, South Africa, Six Nations reserve near Brantford; Bethnal Green, London, England; Celebes (Indonesia), Chelsea, London where the Duke of Edinburgh is seen talking with young men at a centre for drug addicts, a Toronto rehabilitation centre for mental patients, a Tokyo hospital, an educational centre in New Guinea and a Vietnam refugee centre.

Here in Belleville the work is administered from the fine new Citadel on Dundas Street, begun under the jurisdiction of Captain June Dwyer, now in Toronto, and continuing under Captain and Mrs. E. T. Gurney.

The Salvation Army's work is a long and continuing story of dedication to humanity, in Canada and throughout the world.

Stanfield Done with 'Reasonableness'

P.M. May Be in for A Hard Time in New Session

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Come October 22, the re-opening of Parliament, and it may be an altogether different House of Commons.

Same faces, of course.

But with at least one — a key actor with a starring role on the parliamentary stage — there seems to have been a personality change.

And it could make for a whole new mood.

If sustained, it should transform what has been a rather dull political play into an attention-grabbing drama.

To look at Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, calm, restrained, dignified, little has changed in the outward appearance of "The Quiet Man."

But all summer long, beneath the frosty exterior, the so-often remote, and, to the despair of many of his followers, the utterly "reasonable" Stanfield has been coming to a slow boil.

And "The Quiet Man" is beginning to rumble like the far-off bass drum roll of approaching thunder.

That he still does it in low key gives it all that much more impact.

Publicly he has proclaimed that he is done with playing opposition pussycat to the prime minister.

No longer is he prepared to purr in sweet reason, trying to be constructively helpful in the government's confusing difficulties — of which there is no shortage.

Now "Reasonable Robert" Stanfield has slow-burned himself to the point of promising to confront "Potent Pierre," as admirers like to call this toughly dictatorial prime minister, with suspicion and hostility.

"The spirit of co-operation in Parliament is dead," the opposition leader has announced in a speech that amounted to a verbal postmortem of this last session of the Commons.

And the prime minister, charges the Conservative leader, killed it.

For that crime against the Commons, he swears, Pierre Trudeau will be paying "in very high price" in the parliamentary days to come.

What a change of heart and mind, this, for "The Quiet Man," whose "co-operation" as he calls it, with the government since he became Conservative Leader, has driven so many of his followers up the Commons walls.

He took "reasonableness" to the ultimate point of giving former Prime Minister Pearson a 24-hour reprieve from the sentence of death the combined opposition imposed on the government with the defeat of the Liberal administration's budget tax bills.

The defeated prime minister, a master manipulator, used that 24 hours to re-work that temporary reprieve into a permanent pardon.

And many of "Reasonable Robert's" MP-followers in the Commons still have not forgiven him.

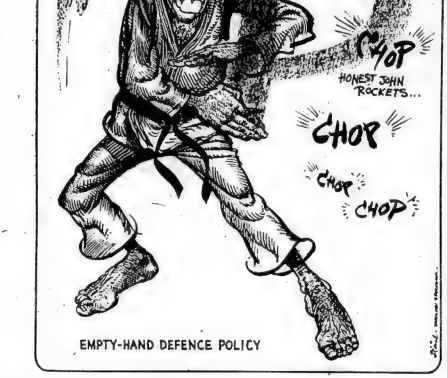
Perhaps anticipating the sharp change of opposition mood Prime Minister Trudeau has been publicly pleading for more of the same old and so-pleasantly easy "co-operation," by poohpoohing any hint of hostility.

"I am sure," he murmurs, "that Parliament will gather again in a constructive spirit of helpfulness.

"I would be very surprised if there is any obstruction as a result of what happened in the weeks before Parliament adjourned late in July.

"It would not be characteristic of parliamentarians, most of whom like to apply to themselves the Harry Truman saying that if you can not stand the heat, then get out of the kitchen."

Of course "what happened," as the prime minister likes to casually brush it off, is that the government used closure to change the rules of the parliamentary game.



Lester Pearson changed the application of the rules into a slap on the wrist rather than an execution of the government.

Then Pierre Trudeau, using closure, changed the rules to make closure a built-in continuing process of Parliament.

Now going on three months later, Robert Stanfield, out in Lloydminster, Alberta, proclaims the old easy "spirit of co-operation in Parliament is gone." The new hard-line spirit is "suspicion," even hostility.

Sure, he says, the opposition "will continue to be constructive . . . but we won't forget that this government deliberately broke faith with Parliament."

Sounds like the opposition is going to get up and fight—oppose as is its traditional responsibility — and no longer roll over and play dead.

Subsidized Apartments Plan For Low-Income Families Was Foiled by Landlords

Hamilton Spectator

The Ontario government has decided not to take over vacant apartments in Toronto high rise buildings as subsidized accommodations for low-income families. Landlords were not willing to reduce rents to get their vacancies filled.

At the time the original proposal was made—midsummer—there were 10,000 vacant apartments in Toronto. For the government to have paid full rents—which are usually based on the principle of "all the traffic can bear"—would have been to prop up the present high rent structure. It would also have been grossly unfair to tenants who are already forking out an ever — increasing proportion of their income for the roof over their head.

It is significant that Toronto landlords can afford to disdain the government as a tenant at a reduced rent, preferring the financial loss of vacancies, particularly if they are not insured against such a contingency.

The housing scarcity, not only for low — income families but for the population generally, is acute. With the postwar baby boom coming to adulthood and marriageable age, there is no prospect of improvement in the housing situation for many years.

Seldom, if ever, in times of peace has there been such a sellers' market as there is in apartment accommodations. It must be obvious to the government that as rents increase — under pressure of demand from a numerous rising generation — the number of so - called low - income families that cannot pay them is increased and so is the number of families needing subsidized apartments.

In this situation, the law of supply - and demand and of blister - facts, so ably propounded by Adam Smith long ago, is shot through with inconsistencies and contradictions. As pressures increase, governments inevitably take refuge in controls. Rent controls in peace time are an ugly distortion creating many more problems than they solve.

There is only one way: The government must declare war on the housing scarcity and mobilize accordingly. Not a feeble, inappropriately named lancette, but a massive mustering of strength. People must have a place to live in at a rent they can afford.

The Transatlantic telephone cable between Britain and North America was inaugurated 13 years ago today—in 1956—with a three-way exchange of greetings between London and Ottawa and New York. The $42,000,000, link was declared open for service at 11:07 a.m. The cable, from Oban, Scotland to Clarenville, Nfld., consisted of two lines laid 20 miles apart on the ocean floor, the northern line carrying westbound calls, the southern, eastbound transmissions.

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1944—the remainder of Britain's Airborne Division at Arnhem withdrew to the south bank of the Rhine after a nine-day battle. Extremists...Church Target of Probe

Report on Ulster's Problems Blames All Sides

Winnipeg Free Press

The Cameron report on the troubles in Northern Ireland appears, from the excerpts so far available, to be fair. In brief — and not unreasonably — it blames everybody, including Bernadette Devlin, Ian Paisley, William Craig the former home affairs minister who was fired by Terence O'Neill, Gerry Fitt, a Catholic member of the Westminster Parliament with a ruthless appetite for publicity, and "in some instances," the "B" Special police.

The enquiry, which was inresponsible but I think, does not, of course, cover the most recent happenings, but they flow from the same pattern. Irresponsible elements destroyed the prime minister who set his face to removing just grievances: extremists like Bernadette Devlin and Ian Paisley, bloated with the sense of power that came from being able to inflame the most ignorant and violent of both sides, raced on towards disaster, and politicians of immeasurable stupidity practised the footwork of futile evasion and delay, hoping to preserve the status quo in a situation of inevitable change.

What they have done between them is to destroy the progress of ten years. The churches come in for severe criticism in the report, the Catholic church for failing to put the welfare of its people and their social progress before the political objectives of the hierarchy. The commission might have added, if it had known the whole situation with greater intimacy, that the failure of the Protestant clergy was failure from cowardice.

The Protestant clergy in Ulster were not afraid of Ian Paisley, of whom they speak in private in psychiatric terms; they were afraid of their congregations and of those in them who, while they deplored the crude vulgarity of Mr. Paisley's attacks on Catholics and the Pope, said nonetheless that "there is something in what he says." The ultimate culprits in the whole dismal business are the middle-majority on every side, who shrank from the confrontation offered to them by the most ignorant, most illiterate and the most violent. They are the people who, in the hope that the fall of Prime Minister O'Neill would bring a "strong hand" that would put down dissent and leave them all in peace, opened the door to death and burning and renewed bitterness.

Perhaps now that the Cameron report is before them, they may have the grace to examine it with penitence and begin the painful business of putting down the thugs on both sides and remedying the ills from which their society unquestionably suffers. Meanwhile, investors who were contributing immensely to the economic progress of the province, will have to be persuaded that Northern Ireland is a safe place to invest because its people are industrious, reliable, and constructive. And that may now be just as difficult as the task of pulling down those who were unleashed by prejudice and cowardice. Ulster's problems are before it. It will take something close to greatness to put them behind it.

Spitfire – Saved Britain From Nazis

Battle of Britain Movie Funds Will Aid Air Force Memorial

TRENTON — Spitfires and Hurricanes are back from retirement, helping former airmen with the Royal Canadian Air Force Association with their greatest peacetime challenge.

The spunky little fighter aircraft used to repulse the Nazi air armadas over England in September 1940 play the major roles in the new Battle of Britain movie being released in Toronto for the first time October 20.

Prince Philip will be the guest of honor at the Odeon Carlton Theatre for the showing.

The Queen will be watching the British premiere the same day her husband attends the one in Toronto.

Today local members of the fund raising committee for the memorial building were heartened with the announcement that part of the $7,000 profit expected from the North American premiere of the movie had been designated for their cause.

The news certainly comes to our attention at an appropriate time a spokesman for the group commented referring to the Battle of Britain parade and the unveiling of the memorial design set for this Sunday afternoon at CFB Trenton.

Showing of the film about the greatest air battles of the Second World War might be a worthy project for one of the RCAF Associations in the Quinte area to sponsor suggested the committee spokesman in making mention all possibilities were being explored in the concerted effort to raise the $3,000,000 required for construction of the memorial.

Budding Newspaper Man, 12, Launch Picton Piper Paper

PICTON — Prince Edward County's latest paper, The Picton Piper, will hit the news stands this weekend according to its youthful editor, Randy Walraven.

A student at Queen Elizabeth School, 12-year-old Randy received his appointment as editor-in-chief of the school paper Monday. He and 29 other "newsmen" have organized under the supervision of teacher Peter Bussell to print the stories behind school activities. Pupils participating in the project range from Grade 5 to 8.

The Picton Piper will be typed first, then recopied, according to the editor. Equipment available is suitable for reproducing pictures illustrating news items. The news paper will sell for five cents a copy.

Randy and his fellow journalists plan to prepare the paper on their own time, considering it an educational and enjoyable extra curricular activity.

The "press gang" at Queen Elizabeth School decided there is no teacher like experience, so before organizing their paper the students asked veteran news editor Phil Dodds to explain the situations confronting the reporter. He has recently retired from his position of news editor at The Picton Gazette after 42 years behind the desk.

Introduced in the school auditorium by principal Carl Reid, Mr. Dodds told the enthusiastic group that every paper must choose a suitable name, learn how to make a masthead, research its odd lets, and strive for variety and accuracy. He also outlined the pros and cons of becoming a reporter on a full time basis following graduation.

Would Randy Walraven like to be a reporter "for real?" His answer — an emphatic "Yes!"

Already impressed with the possible future of The Picton Piper, Randy hopes one day to become a sports writer for a daily paper with a big circulation. His biggest concern today, however, was meeting deadline on The Piper's weekend edition.

Educators Discuss Change

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County's director of education, John McNeil, reported today results of a special meeting at Kente Elementary School in Ameliasburg yesterday afternoon.

Present for this meeting were 240 elementary and secondary school teachers from Prince Edward County and approximately 20 education consultants from Kingston.

Remarked Mr. McNeil: "The theme of the entire meeting was 'the only constant thing is change'".

The education consultants introduced to county teachers by Ralph Froats, regional educational director for region nine, could be described as "up-dated school inspectors".

All were former teachers and are authorities on all subjects and their effective presentations from kindergarten to Grade 13.

Following their introduction, consultants spoke with the 240 teachers present, covering all subjects throughout the county, taught

As a result of this meeting further teacher - consultant meetings will take place, according to Mr. McNeil.

"Any teacher in Prince Edward County may contact a consultant through his principal at any time without any other arrangement," said the education director.

"The teachers have met and spoken with these consultants and now know whom to contact," he added.

Mr. McNeil stressed that the most important dimension in education is the impact of the teacher and the pupil. If a teacher encounters a problem in presenting a subject or difficulty in communication with a student he can speak with a consultant, he said.

These consultants are available to give competent assistance in all teaching problems. Mr. McNeil, who called this special meeting, said that a similar one may be held in November.

May Build Subdivision Near Wellington Village

PICTON (Staff) — Wellington Reeve, Robert Boyce, said this morning that a proposed village subdivision may expand to include 189 homes if Ita, builders decided to continue plans.

Several weeks ago mystery purchasers "definitely not connected with the Campbell Soup Company" optioned land in Wellington and plans for a 119-house subdivision were discussed.

"Since that time", Mr. Boyce remarked, the project has changed hands." The land, formerly lot 203, or "the Munro Farm" located at Wellington's West end, now has been purchased.

New representatives for the subdivision met with Wellington Village Council on Sunday evening to discuss water and hydro facilities. Mr. Boyce confessed that he could say little more on the subject, because basically the project remains a mystery to him in many respects.

He did state, however, that if the subdivision is built the proposed 189 homes will be erected in stages spanning a four to five year period.

Surveyors are now working in the village and if council's cost figures for hydro and water are acceptable to the model homes may be started very shortly.

U.S. Consumers Reduce Buying

NEW YORK (AP) — A highly-regarded study of U.S. consumer attitudes, to be released Sept. 30, will show a sharp decline in buying sentiment and tend to confirm some aspects of the Nixon administration's anti-inflation program.

The study, which is made quarterly by the Survey Research Centre at the University of Michigan, already has been alluded to in a speech by Dr. Paul McCracken, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers.

Past studies have shown clearly that when consumer confidence deteriorates, even though the financial ability to buy might remain high, a slowdown in purchasing invariably follows.

Sales already are sluggish. And, judged by the decline in consumer confidence, the sluggishness could become much more pronounced.

Two other reports, by Argus Research Corp. and Morgan Guaranty Trust, also call attention to the return of cautiousness among consumers, who had dipped into savings during the last year to continue making purchases.

Argus, which sells its research to stock brokers and financial institutions, goes so far as to say that consumer reluctance to buy—and that includes a variety of items from food to cars—has signalled the beginning of a recession.

"It seems to be that the nation's consumers have gone on something like a buyers' strike," Argus states. "It will probably not be long before some business observers will be damning the consumer for being such a recalcitrant donkey."

It suggested these reasons for the negative consumer attitudes:

—"After allowing for higher prices and for increased taxes, the income of the average worker is no higher than it was in 1965."

—With jobs becoming a bit scarcer, heads of households—as well as their spouses and teen-age children—are unable to find part-time jobs that provide an extra pay cheque. Workers also are earning less overtime pay.

—With paper losses in the stock market amounting to billions of dollars, many families are watching their outlays more closely.

—Capital gains from selling homes are unavailable to many people this year because home sales are "drying up," the result of a mortgage drought. Such gains have, in the past, been a major source of family income.

—Inflation. Prices are rising so fast that, despite higher incomes, buyers are rebelling. For a while some consumers were willing to buy rather than face even higher prices in the future.

Morgan Guaranty notes that the economy was kept booming partly through an infusion of $2,000,000,000 into the spending stream because consumers sharply reduced their rate of savings during the last year.

In late spring 1968, Americans were saving more than seven cents out of every after-tax dollar earned. In the second half of 1968 the rate was lowered sharply and now is down to about 5.4 cents, lowest in five years.

German Money Market Closed

BONN (Reuters) — West German foreign exchange markets were shut down by government order today until after general elections Sunday.

The surprise government move, closing the markets from this morning to protect the mark, came at the suggestion of the central bank. But it was made into an electioneering weapon by Finance Minister Franz-Josef Strauss, leader of the Bavarian Christian Democratics.

It was his ministry that broke the news, with a statement charging the Social Democrats and Economics Minister Karl Schiller, a member of the party, with irresponsibly provoking international speculation.

Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger also hit out at Schiller, telling the minister in a message that he and the party had caused a run into marks through systematic election propaganda in favor of revaluing the mark upward.

Strauss launched a second tirade against Schiller at an election rally in Munich Wednesday night, drawing loud cheers from the crowd as he repeated a charge that the economics minister had turned revaluation into a last-minute election issue.

Kiesinger also spoke at the rally but he kept mainly to foreign policy matters, emphasizing that normalization of relations between Bonn and Moscow could only come when East Germans received just treatment.

In his speech, Strauss cited a poll commissioned by the London Times which showed the Social Democrats held a large lead over the Christian Democrats.

The newspaper commented the Social Democrats would be able to form a coalition with the opposition Free Democrats and revalue the mark, he noted—and added that since then there had been a growing wave of speculation with "hot" money pouring into the country.

Inco Offer Called Insult to Workers

TORONTO (CP) —The latest wage offer by International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., to striking workers is "an insult to us," the president of Local 6500, United Steelworkers of America, said Wednesday.

Homer Seguin said in an interview the Inco offer was in response to a substantial change in union demands made during contract talks Sunday in an effort to start serious negotiations.

"In the proposal, Inco eliminated a previous offer in the pension plan, which would have resulted in a net loss to the union," he said. "Their total offer was less than five cents and was an insult to us."

About 18,000 members of locals 6500 and 6500 have been on strike since July 10. Union officials previously said the company would have to offer a wage package of more than $1.22 an hour before serious negotiations would start.

Mr. Seguin would not elaborate on the union's demands made Sunday.

Wages under the expired contract averaged $3.06 an hour or $122.40 for a 40-hour week.

Mr. Seguin said meetings with senior union officials and conciliation officers are continuing, but no direct contract talks are scheduled.

Two of Three Farmers Will Be Forced to Quit

NORTH BAY (CP) — Everett Biggs, deputy minister of the Ontario department of agriculture and food, says some two-thirds of the province's 100,000 farmers will have to face economic realities and leave their farms.

Speaking Wednesday at the annual meeting of the Northern Ontario Dairymen's Association, Mr. Biggs said that by 1980 the province's economy will support only 35,000 farmers.

Of the 100,000 farms now in the province, only 504 till more than 500 acres—generally regarded as the minimum acreage necessary to make farming a profitable venture.

Mr. Biggs said that more than 36,000 farmers whose acreage is well below that figure "have the cards stacked against them from the start."

Four per cent of the farms in Ontario account for 25 per cent of all agricultural produce and 36 per cent gross less than $2,500 a year, he said.

The deputy minister said the answer to farm problems lies not in government subsidies, but in diversification. He said economists have concluded that within the next 10 years some 65,000 farmers will have to quit farming.

A RIGHT TO CHIME

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A judge in this picturesque upper New York's Finger Lakes region has upheld the Tompkins County Savings Bank carillon's right to chime. The bells chime on the hour for 3½ minutes every day except Sunday. Judge James J. Clynes Jr., in a five-page decision, said the electronic carillon—which plays recordings through an electronic horn—does not disturb the peace, as contended by several Ithacans who live a quarter of a mile from the downtown bank.

Ann Landers

Reader Comments On 'Wake Up Too Late'

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I comment on a letter in your column signed, "Woke Up Too Late." I think the gal is still asleep.

She said, "At least a prostitute can have a day off and spend her money as she pleases." Then she went on to gripe because a wife must prepare her husband's meals, raise his children, put up with his relatives, run his errands, keep his house in order, take care of him when he is sick, etc. etc." Why did she get married if she wanted to live a completely selfish life?

My husband is a laborer. He leaves the house at 7 a.m. and puts in a hard day's work. If he can get overtime, he grabs it. When he comes home at night he paints the house, washes down the walls, keeps our car running and helps with the kids. At the end of the week he hands me his paycheck and apologizes because it isn't more. He never complains when I give him ground meat in eleven different shapes because it is cheaper. At night when he puts his arms around me and pulls me close I feel that whatever I've done for him during the day wasn't enough.

Love and marriage are a cycle. The more you do for a man the more he loves you. The more he loves you the more he tries to do for you. The more he tries to do for you the more you love him. And so it goes. No partner in marriage should feel that he is being used. Not if he holds up his end of the bargain. — OHIO POINT OF VIEW.

BEAUTIFUL OHIO: I've read thousands of letters, but yours got to me as few have. The next time you fix ground meat in one of those eleven famous shapes, please know you are the envy of thousands of women who will be dining on tender filet mignon or guinea hen-tonight. You have life's most precious gifts — the feeling that you are needed, and a husband who obviously adores you. This makes you a very rich lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've learned a lot from your column and now I'd like to contribute something. Yesterday I was visiting at a friend's house. It was hot and she suggested iced tea. While pouring the boiling water into the teapot, the kettle slipped out of her hand. She scalded herself on the leg and me on the arm.

I instinctively reached for the butter which was on the table. My friend stopped me at once and said I was doing exactly the wrong thing. She informed me that one should never put butter or grease of any kind on a burn. Her doctor had told her to use ice.

She immediately pulled out the ice cubes and together we put them on our burns. In a few minutes the pain was gone, but we kept the ice on for an additional 15 minutes. Today there is only a faint pin kpot on my arm — no blister. I am grateful to her for the lesson and wanted to share it. — MARTIN'S FERRY.

DEAR M. F.: I am grateful for your letter. Thank you.

Successful Living

Leaflet Written on 'Know Your Groceries'

By DORIS CLARK

We hear lots of talk these days about diets for overweights — as if the obese were the only ones who need to consider what they eat.

Such nonsense! We all need a properly balanced diet. If anybody wants to stand out in a crowd and be somebody, to have that extra bit of sparkle that makes people want them around; if they want the zest to enter into every activity that comes up, they need to give thought to what goes into building a good body.

We are lucky to be living today, when we know so much about the chemical make-up of our bodies, and just what content in our food keeps them functioning at their best.

Once in a while we hear somebody saying that our grandmothers got along very well before we ever heard of vitamins. It's true that the fittest did survive, but think of the ones who never lived to be grandmothers!

No living cell has yet been discovered which does not contain protein. Fat is a concentrated, food element. Carbohydrates provide needed energy, though nutrition surveys show that Canadians eat too generously of pie, cake, candy and other sweet foods.

My beauty and health counsellor Sally Hamilton, has written a fine leaflet about all this called Know Your Groceries! If you want to know how to eat for beauty and health, write in for it, enclosing 10 cents and a six-cent - stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Doris: I have beentold that senior citizens (65 and over) can travel by air for half fare. Would you know if this is so? I know there is something similar for students.

We all live in Blankstown and must be careful of our fixed limited incomes. We would like to see other parts of Canada. — Senior Sightseer.

Dear Sightseer: And so you can. The half-fare is offered on a standby basis, with best chances for seats in the middle of the week. The Air Canada office where you are can supply details.

Getting around is some of the best fun there is! A prairie chicken should get to see the sea; a sea-coast dweller ought to go to mountains or inland cities. Go while you can still navigate and enjoy it.

To Seniors Home Worker: Correspondence courses related to working with residents of various types of homes are being offered again this fall by the Department of Extension, McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont.

Workers like you report how much these courses have contributed to their understanding. For details write direct.

Confidential to Not Trusted: It's a vicious circle. Too-strict parents frown on dating; you date secretly; they discover it; they then double-whammy all dating, even when you are two years older. The more the infractions, the less the trust.

I strongly urge a confrontation. Don and you are both 18 now and have a right to be heard. Do what he asks and arrange a talk with your parents. They can see then that he is straightforward and not a lurking devil.

They can't coop you up forever. Be brave.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Using Left-over Lamb

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday I gave you the method of roasting a boned and rolled leg of lamb. Half of our Canadians families would consume it in one meal. But smaller families will have some left over, just like I had, and would like a way of using it up that would not be hash. (I was tempted to call it hash but thought it too hallucinatory.) So I made one of your favorites — a casserole, and further to adhere to your demands, I froze it. Results follow.

LAMB AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

(Serves 4 or 5; will freeze)

1¼ cups ¼" noodles (packed)

1 cup narrow carrots cut in ½" pieces

½ cup chopped mild onion

½ tsp. salt

6 cups boiling water

1 can cream of tomato soup

1¼ cups liquid drained from cooked noodles and vegetables

2½ to 3 cups cut - up cold roast lamb or 8 medium slices

2 tbsps. butter melted

1¼ to 1½ cups soft bread crumbs (buzzed in blender)

In large pot cook noodles, carrots, and onion with 1½ tsp salt and boiling water until tender — about 25 min.

Drain but reserve 1¼ cups of the liquid.

Tip the noodles and vegetables into a large casserole that can go into the freezer. Stir the reserved noodle liquid into the tomato soup and pour all but ¼ cup of it over the noodles and vegetables. Cover with cut-up or sliced lamb. Pour remaining liquid over meat. Cover that with the crumbs which have been stirred into the melted butter. Bake 50 /60n. at 375 deg. Fahr. It is ready to serve now but if you want to freeze it cool it and freezerwrap and freeze.

When time comes to serve it remove from freezer, place frozen in cold oven, turn on heat to 275 deg. Fahr. and heat through 1 hr. Economical and recommended.

Hats, Furs Highlight Chapter Dessert Bridge

Hats and furs shared the limelight when Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. previewed the latest and newest styles for fall.

Held in the Officers' Mess at the Belleville Armories, the visitors enjoyed dessert while commentators Miss Hazel Smith and Doug Woodley told them about the fresh, young fashions here for the coming season.

The five models who got the chance to wear all the newest furs were: Mrs. Pearl Bickford, Mrs. Olga Allan, Mrs. Stella Milroy, Mrs. Doreen Anderson and Mrs. Marg Sherry.

Furs and hats were provided courtesy of Woodley's, with proceeds of the event going back into the organization.

Receiving guests at the door was Regent, Mrs. Olga Allan, assisted by Mrs. Stella Milroy. Playing various musical selections during the show was pianist Jimmy Corradi.

Brims in hats seem to be the fixation of designers this year — more than ever before. Scarves, the newest fashion thing, draped around the hat and the neck add a subtle touch of color to any ensemble.

Fur hats, including the traditional Canada Majestic Pastel Mink, ranged from the "hood" type to the standard off the face style — and received the complete attention of the viewing audience.

"Fur hats are a good investment anytime," emphasized commentator Miss Hazel Smith, "because they go with every ensemble, and definitely a fashion leader."

The fur coats, varying from full length to the .skate cap tured the imagination and envy of the audience — dark ranch minks, the new dyed Persian lamb coats and of course the "fun furs."

Despite the rather frivolous description of these fashion first-raters, everyone is taking them very seriously.

Designers and furriers both have gone to great lengths to make sure women realize these are not "fun furs" — but furs sculptured with the negate ripple on fashion wearers in mind.

Beautiful furs — lynx and muskrat—were fashioned into stylish and flattering coats, so warm and right for the winter season.

After the hat and fur show, the audience enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon playing bridge and euchre.

Bunn – Martin

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM S. BUNN

St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, was the scene of the recent marriage of Jalna Gail Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S.E. Martin, R R 1 Trenton, to Sanford William Bunn, son of Mrs. Kenneth Baird, Halifax, Nova Scotia. Canon K. F. Blachford officiated at the ceremony. Wedding music was played by the church organist, Robert Hoekstra.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de soie in empire style, adorned with rose pattern Guipure lace, long sleeves edged with lace at the wrist and the same lace adorned the neckline of her gown. Falling from the waistline was a flowing detachable train. Her three-tier shoulder length veil was caught to a headpiece of white crystal roses and she carried a cascade of white crystal roses centred with yellow roses.

The maid of honor, Anne Weese, Toronto, wore an antique peau de soie gown similar to that of the bride. The bridesmaids, Sharon Rashotte, Belleville and Marilyn Moffat, Ottawa, were dressed alike in gowns of emerald green with long sleeves trimmed with Guipure lace and lace edging around the neckline. The attendants wore veils matching their gowns and they carried bouquets of yellow and gold chrysanthemums.

Best man was John Paul, Trenton, and the ushers were Steve Martin, CFB Kingston and Sandy Matheson CFB Trenton.

The reception was held at the Officers' Mess, AMDU where the bride's mother received the guests. She wore a turquoise and chartreuse brocaded ensemble with chartreuse accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the mother of the groom who wore an apricot colored dress and jacket ensemble with silver accessories and a corsage of Woburn Abbey roses.

For the wedding trip to the Maritimes, the bride changed into a plaid ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of candy striped carnations.

The couple will reside in Trenton.

Speaker Urges Further Education

The members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of The National Secretaries Association were challenged to continue their education by Mr. H. J. Butterill, director of the extension division of Loyalist College.

At the first fall meeting of the Chapter held on Tuesday, September 16 at the Hotel Quinte, Belleville, Mr. Butterill outlined the philosophy of the College and the various courses and programs of which the members could avail themselves. He stated that no one could afford to stand still in this changing business world. "Secretaries should know the business they are engaged in," said Mr. Butterill, and there is no reason why a secretary should not take extension courses in law and security management, communication arts, or technical subjects relating to their particular employer's business.

President Helen Worrell complimented the various committee chairmen on having their plans for the coming year well in hand so early in the year.

Five guests were welcomed from the Belleville area, and Mrs. Nancy Wait, formerly from Kingston Chapter, now residing in Picton, was introduced as a transferee.

Education committee chairman Gabrielle Watkins invited the members to participate in a five-week public speaking course organized by the Chapter. The members were reminded that composure and self-confidence were necessary for secretaries.

Mrs. Lena Dearborne, civic chairman, called upon members to participate in two civic projects, assembling United Community Service kits and selling pins for Belleville Week.

Mrs. M. Coltman from Picton announced her ways and means committee had arranged a combination fashion, jewellery and wiglet show to be held at the Prince Edward Yacht Club on Thursday, October 23. Since October is the first anniversary of the Chapter, it was decided to celebrate by having the above special event in lieu of the regular monthly meeting in October.

Invitations are to be sent to neighbouring chapter at Kingston and other guests to attend.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL ITEMS

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Eugene Cummings was honored at a kitchen shower held at the home of Mrs. Robert Jones with co-hostesses, Miss Jennifer Whiten and Mrs. Nancy Whitehead. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. M. Pukanich and at the home of Mrs. Kathy Mott. ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L.

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Joseph's CWL was held Monday, September 15 in the parish hall.

The president gave a brief summary of the activities of the executive over the summer, and the membership chairman announced that, to date, the St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League numbered two hundred and two. However only 22 members were present.

Mrs. Buckley reported that a bazaar would be planned around a Hawaiian theme. The members were also asked to think about suggestions for decorations and the Christmas table.

An appeal was made for knitters. Wool is available from the convener to those willing to knit mitts.

Mrs. Hanley gave an account of the trip to Quebec sponsored by the CWL and said that she would recommend it as a family outing.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

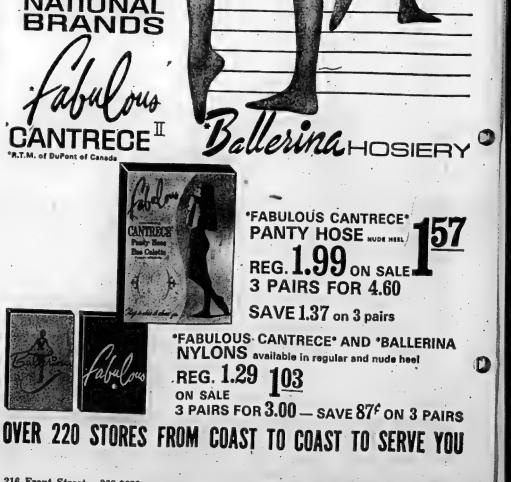
Lose 10 lbs. in 10 days on Grapefruit diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days without pills or drugs. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon fats, sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a "burner" (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted food listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startlingly successful diet including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 to WEIGHT-AWAY, Dept. 56-22, 1 West Main St., Winnipeg 4, Manitoba.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

If after trying the diet you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days and 10½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth. Diet plan also available in French.



CLUB 4-H NOTES

WALLBRIDGE 11 4H CLUB

The third meeting of the Wallbridge II 4H Club was held on September 16 at the home of Mrs. H. Knight. The president, Sharon Hawrylak opened the meeting.

Mrs. Knight discussed the planning of vegetables into meals. The members began plans for presentation of the exhibit "Vegetables For All The Family".

Mrs. Hawrylak demonstrated making vegetable soup, stuffed baked peppers, asparagus and egg casserole. Club members then practised judging menus and giving reasons for their placings.

DESERONTO MISSIONARY SOCIETY AND LADIES' AID

DESERONTO — Mrs. Eric Quirt was hostess to the ladies of the Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer, when they met Thursday for the combined meeting of the Missionary Society and the Ladies' Aid.

At six o'clock all sat down to a curry dinner served by the hostess, who, with her minister husband, had served on the mission fields in India for a number of years. The meal was made up entirely of foods prepared and served as they are in India, with a banana on the side of the plate to be nibbled in case the other food was found too pungent. On behalf of the organizations, Mrs. Samuel Geddes thanked the hostess.

The meeting proper was conducted by Mrs. Blake Moore, vice-president, in the absence of Miss Gladys Pearace, the president. Mrs. Quirt offered prayer both at the beginning and at the conclusion of the meeting. Mrs. Albert Walker read the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. Kay Wood gave a talk on conditions in Nigeria and Biafra.

Proceeding to the business meeting, the Ladies' Aid responsibility, the women made plans for the fall activities. Their rummage sale will take place September 26 and 27 in the empty Walker store next door to the White Elephant Store. Hopefully, their own church will be completed in time for the bazaar November 15. Plans were made for both these events.

The Presbyterian Church of the Redeemer is closed, probably for the rest of September as the restoration of the interior is now going ahead. Members are worshipping in Picton with the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Rev. Robert Jones is the minister of both churches.

The cost of the restoration will be met largely with the proceeds of the walkathon held in May.

MR. AND MRS. EUGENE L. CUMMINGS

Cummings – Bishop

Holy Rosary Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent marriage of Christine Anne Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Quinecy, RR 1, Foxboro, to Eugene Lawrence Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cummings, Belleville. Rev. George Mullin officiated at the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of silk over taffeta with appliqued floral lace encircling the bodice, three - quarter - length sleeves and a scoop neckline. The flowing train of silk was caught at the bodice with a matching bow and a cluster of silk and - petals and seed pearls. She wore a flowing silk illusion veil and carried a cascade of pink roses and white carnations interlaced with fern.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Kathy Mott of Belleville wearing an empire waist gown of gold brocade. The dress featured a puff sleeve accented with gold ribbon. She wore a matching brocade headpiece and carried a nosegay of white and gold miniature 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Mary-Jo Bishop, sister of the bride and Linda Cummings, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed identical to the matron of honor.

Best man was Robin Johnston of Belleville and the ushers were Leonard Bishop, Foxboro, brother of the bride and Ralph Wood, Belleville. Ringbearer was Leigh Cummings, cousin of the groom, and the altar boy was Graham Smith, cousin of the bride.

The bride's mother greeted the guests at the reception held at Tops Motor Hotel wearing an A-line silver - grey chiffon dress with sheer full - length sleeves and a scoop neckline, accented with matching bow. She wore shocking pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother wore an A-line, sleeveless mauve crimplene dress with a round neckline, a mauve flowered hat and black accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to points north the bride changed into an empire waist brown and white polka dot organza dress with white bow and sheer full - length sleeves, brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations and pink roses completed her outfit.

The couple will reside at 90 West Moira St., Belleville.

Servicemen's Wives Discuss Their Lives

EDMONTON (CP) — Wives of Canadian servicemen find their lives as "20th century gypsies" both fascinating and frustrating.

A group of servicemen's wives interviewed recently talked about their life: its advantages and problems.

One thing that bothers some of the wives is the attitude of many civilians that the armed forces are "getting something for nothing," said one woman.

This anti-military attitude varies from base to base. In bigger centres, such as Edmonton, it is not really noticeable, but in the smaller "army towns" the antipathy toward servicemen and their families can be blatant.

"But I don't think civvy street has any understanding about our lives," said one woman.

Family life in the services means getting used to a nomadic existence.

"Moving around so much is both good and bad," said one woman. "You get to see a lot of country, but then there's all the fuss of getting settled every few years."

"It's a way of life—you get used to it," said another.

Most of the women said they preferred the moving to "getting stuck in one place all your life."

Moving becomes a way of life for children as well. School, of course, can be a problem. More often than not, a move takes place in the middle of a school year and involves a transfer from one province to another.

Since systems vary from province to province, some children experience problems in schooling.

Accommodations provide another concern for servicemen's wives. Permanent Married Quarters, known as PMQs, are available, although service families also live in civilian housing.

PMQs have strong advocates and strong critics among the wives.

"I wouldn't live on civvy street," said one woman. "I lived in civilian accommodations for a number of years and I wouldn't go back."

Economics are a big factor. The rent for PMQs is lower than for comparable civilian accommodation. Many maintenance services are free to residents of PMQs as well.

Couples with pets and children often move into PMQs because it's impossible to find other housing.

"So many places just don't want children," said one woman.

One of the biggest drawbacks of service life concerns the amount of time the man is required to spend away from his family.

The women feel that they have to raise the children almost alone and one woman said that the exigencies always seem to happen when her husband is away on assignment.

"I think the wives sometimes carry the whole load of family life," said one woman.

Most of the women find service life interesting and rewarding, nonetheless. They said that it takes adjustment and that many girls marry servicemen without realizing what they are getting into, but most come to accept the disadvantages and make the most of the advantages.

Nazi Ghost Haunts Current West German Election Campaign

KARLSRUHE (CP) — The Nazi ghost haunts West Germany's election campaign, a generation after Adolf Hitler's Reich was smashed to rubble.

While the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats fight for power in next Sunday's voting, the splinter National Democrats, called neo-Nazis by their critics, are trying to win their first seats in the federal parliament.

The leader of the National Democrat party, Adolf von Thadden, 48, says the Nazi ghost never will materialize.

He called the neo-Nazi label "utter nonsense" in an interview with a group of foreign reporters here during the tumultuous election battle.

He said the Nazi regime was the product of the personality and ideas of Hitler, existing in historical circumstances that will not be repeated.

Von Thadden, whose party has won seats in seven of 10 West German provincial legislatures since it was founded in 1964, is aiming at between 25 and 50 seats in the 496-seat Bundestag, lower house of parliament.

Judging from the opinion polls, he will not make it. Yet many Germans are terrified at the prospect of his winning any seats at all. They fear this will be interpreted as a sinister revival of nazism in the hearts of the Germans.

Von Thadden himself does not look like a man to inspire fear. He is unimpressive in appearance and speaks in a low, dull monotone that is impossible to hear when the heckling gets rough at his rallies, as it often does.

To individual questioners, he is easily accessible—when they can catch up to his fast-traveling schedule—and he turns on charm easily.

He was in a happy mood meeting the foreign press. Only three hecklers had been thrown out of his rally that night and he had been able to speak in the open instead of from the glass-enclosed cage he sometimes uses for protection against other missiles.

Von Thadden professes that the physically violent opposition actually will help him. It would make more Germans listen when he tells them they need a government that will "restore" law and order.

His program glorifies paternal authority in the nation and in the home. He says women "need care and protection." He is against miniskirts, pop art and career women.

He also is against West German membership in NATO and the European Common Market, and he wants West Germany to switch to a self-sufficient and inward-looking economy in contrast to present conditions rooted in a thriving foreign trade.

This political and economic program is in total opposition to those of the three parties represented in the last Bundestag—the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, who formed a coalition government, and the Free Democrats.

Von Thadden says the word "national" in his party's name frightens the government because of what Germany did under the Nazis—the National Socialists—and it will not acknowledge the fact that West Germany is a nation with as much right as any other to determine its own destiny.

Permit Required

Government Ban on DDT Effective January 1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After Jan. 1, the average householder in Ontario will no longer be able to purchase DDT for use in his garden.

The Ontario government decided on the ban Wednesday, moving ahead of the federal government and other provinces as sharply restrict the use of the insecticide.

Despite Ottawa's contention that DDT's dangers to life and health are not alarming, Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells said its use in the province will be allowed only in special cases, if a permit is obtained, such as in tobacco farming.

It may also be used in a limited way, by apple growers and structural exterminators.

He told a news conference that experts feel there is conclusive evidence that DDT is adversely affecting wildlife and fish, and there is some evidence of dangers to human life.

He said the restrictions should reduce its use in Ontario by 80 per cent.

In Ottawa, Federal Health Minister John Munro said other provinces should consult with each other before following Ontario's example.

"I am going to suggest a discussion of this at the next meeting of health ministers" near the end of November, he said.

He said the federal government is taking no action against the use of the insecticide on the basis of danger to life or health. Sampling showed the average daily intake of DDT was no more than five per cent of the World Health Organization's acceptable level in July.

Recently, both the NDP and Liberal parties in Ontario asked for a provincial ban on the use of DDT and the Liberal caucus wrote to Mr. Munro asking for a federal moratorium while its use is studied.

Other provinces have no ban on the pesticide although provincial authorities are attempting to regulate its use.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan use DDT mainly for mosquito control.

In Quebec, the Union Nationale government says it will submit a bill in the national assembly next February dealing with DDT. The proposal is being studied by various government departments and by the Montreal health department.

The hunting season has been closed for Hungarian partridge in Prince Edward Island because of high levels of DDT found in the fowl.

DDT, short for dichlorodiphenyltrichloroethane, is imported from the United States in its basic form and made into sprays and powders in Canada.

Companies that make the end product in Canada include Chipman Chemicals of Hamilton, Marquette Ltd., of Quebec and Later Chemicals Ltd. in Vancouver.

A Chipman spokesman said the company would not be seriously affected by a decline in DDT sales as it had been gradually getting away from that insecticide over the last year and into insecticides with less residual effects.

Under the regulations announced by Mr. Wells, the use to:

—Protect tobacco crops from cutworm damage.

—Limit plant bug damage to apple trees.

—Control bats, when used by licensed structural exterminators.

Mr. Wells said that within two years tobacco farms may be included in the DDT ban if a new product being licensed in the United States proves effective in combating cutworms.

"The product (Dursban) will be ready in two years," he said.

Approved users of DDT will first have to get a health department permit before purchasing it. The vendor will have to keep a copy of the permit and make a monthly report to the government on all DDT.

Purchasers will have to report by Oct. 1 of each year on how they used the pesticide.

Tobacco crop dusting from airplanes will be banned, as will spreading DDT by concentrating air-blast machines.

Permits to purchase the insecticide will be issued to tobacco growers on the basis of acreage allotments for raising a crop permitted by the tobacco marketing board.

Won't Charge Policeman Despite Khan Tineta's Try

CORNWALL (CP) — Kahn-Tineta Horn failed Wednesday to have charges of kidnapping and assault, laid against St. Claude Snider of the Cornwall police department when the crown attorney refused to lay charges.

Miss Horn, an Indian rights leader from the Caughnawaga reserve near Montreal, said she was assaulted and kidnapped Dec. 18 during demonstrations at the nearby Seaway International Bridge where a group of Indians were protesting customs duties.

She was charged with carrying an offensive weapon, but the charge was dismissed last month.

"He (Sgt. Snider) assaulted me, put me in jail and held me for $1,000 ransom," she said.

Asked what she meant by "ransom," she said: "Bail."

Will Keep Beard

TORONTO (CP) — A CN Express truck driver says he will ask for an arbitration board ruling if company officials stand by their demand that he shave off his beard.

Daniel Killam, 23, father of two, was suspended two weeks ago for refusing to shave off his goatee. The company says employees who meet the public must be clean-shaven.

Mr. Killam said he would meet today with the grievance officer of Local 827, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, to try to find a solution to the dispute.

"If I'm offered a job on the clerical staff at no drop in pay, I'll take the job and will be able to keep the beard," he said.

Students Resign, President Blamed

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Two students have resigned from a University of Waterloo committee on human rights charging that the university president, Howard Petch, has disregarded the committee's work.

David Cobberley and John Batiye said in their letter of resignation that the president's failure to disavow a report on campus discipline makes their committee's work a "sham."

The report, issued Sept. 18 by the Committee of Presidents of Universities of Ontario, suggested tough guidelines for handling student unrest. Mr. Petch is not a member of the committee.

The students said their six-member committee had agreed informally that special campus rules were unnecessary and that campus disorders could be dealt with through regular court procedures or through the Ontario Human Rights Commission.

Mr. Petch said the resignations appeared to be a "political move" and that the committee has nothing to do with campus discipline.

Bissell Called Liar, Fascist In Discipline Rift

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of a University of Toronto committee on discipline procedures said Wednesday its report is being rushed to completion.

Prof. Ralph Cameron said his group, which has been meeting since March, 1968, would make final revisions to the report today and have it delivered to university president Claude Bissell by Monday or Tuesday.

Dr. Bissell was called a "liar" and "fascist" by shouting students Tuesday when he refused to withdraw statements advocating a get-tough policy toward student radicals.

Weaknesses in Medicare Remain to Be Solved

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The three political leaders most concerned with Ontario's adoption of federal medical care insurance revealed Wednesday there are still disputes and weaknesses to be ironed out a week before inauguration of the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan.

At Windsor, Premier Roberts said he will ask the legislature to amend the plan to allow subscribers to buy additional outside insurance, while at Toronto and Ottawa the Ontario and federal health health ministers disputed the question of income tax on OHSIP premiums.

Premier Roberts, in Windsor for a Progressive Conservative Party function and a question period at the University of Windsor, said he learned only last week that OHSIP subscribers may not buy insurance to pay doctors who charge more than the plan's approved fees.

He said he will have the cabinet decide "pretty quickly" on what to do about the relevent "repugnant" clause in the Ontario Health Services Insurance Act.

"It does seem to me that there is some infringement on the individual if you limit his right to insure himself for whatever circumstance he may choose—whether it's in the health field, the accident field or whatever it may be," he told a news conference.

OHSIP will pay doctors' bills up to 90 per cent of the Ontario Medical Association fee schedule, the same amount paid under the provincial plan which will be eliminated by adoption of federal insurance Oct. 1.

A survey of doctors in the Toronto area showed about half would try to collect the remaining 10 per cent from patients, unless the patient was in financial difficulty or on welfare. Other doctors said collecting the 10 per cent wouldn't be worth the expense involved.

Replying to several questions, the premier said the $178,000,000 federal contribution to the province after it joins the federal plan will not be used to reduce premium payments for Ontario subscribers.

He assured that "every nickel and every cent" will be used for health services, but it is budgeted for facilities such as medical and nursing schools.

"We could take this money and reduce premiums but then we wouldn't be in a position to provide the services."

Mr. Robarts said he was "absolutely delighted" to learn Wednesday that members of employee health-insurance groups won't have to pay income tax on their employers' OHSIP contributions.

Ontario Health Minister Thomas Wells said in Toronto that provincial health ministers were given the impression at a meeting in Ottawa last week that such contributions would be taxed, but that in a letter to his department the federal government had reversed its stand.

Federal Health Minister John Munro said in Ottawa that the question of taxation was never discussed during negotiations leading to Ontario's entry to the federal plan.

He said it was Mr. Wells who "created the impression" that employer contributions were taxable, which "just isn't so."

Mr. Wells said he found the federal letter "a pleasant surprise," but he still does not approve the taxatist policy.

He called the policy discriminatory because the exemption from taxation on employer contributions applied only to mandatorily-insured groups of 15 or more. These groups, comprising 80 per cent of Ontario residents, must enter OHSIP Oct. 1.

But the 1,000,000 who will enter the plan as individuals will pay taxes on their premiums, in effect, because their OHSIP payments will be deducted from their salaries after taxes.

Mr. Wells said employee groups numbering five to 15 can apply for designation as a mandatory group and thus escape taxation on their premiums, but the position is unclear for groups of fewer than five.

Student Unrest Likely To Grow

HALIFAX (CP) — Dr. H. L. Willis, deputy superintendent of the Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board, Wednesday predicted an unprecedented increase in student unrest unless changes are made by school teachers and administrators.

He was addressing the Canadian Education Association convention here.

A Halifax university student, Andrew Cochran, said he had learned "four times as much" through his own reading and extra-curricular activities as he had in high school.

He warned the CEA delegates they should examine the school system and find out "if what is going on in your school is relevant today."

Dr. B. T. Keller of Edmonton told another discussion that Canada could look forward to increasing militancy among its teachers unless they were able to accomplish certain objectives.

Dr. Keeler, executive secretary of the Alberta Teachers' Association, said that teachers were more dissatisfied with their lot than ever before. They wanted better financial rewards and status in society.

"They are even more concerned about conditions under which they render service and about sharing in all educational decision," he said.

At a third session Murdoch MacDonald of Toronto, assistant superintendent of public schools for the Toronto board of education, said teachers and principals should be closely involved in planning new open space schools, which feature wide areas in which students may gather informally for classes and use audio-visual materials.

"If they are not involved in this way they will surely feel threatened, will not accept, and certainly not use, the open spaces as they might be used."

The CEA convention ends Friday.

Students Question Robarts

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Universities must handle student unrest in their own ways but the laws must still be obeyed, Ontario Premier John Robarts told University of Windsor students Wednesday.

Here to open the new Windsor and District Progressive Conservative Council headquarters, Mr. Robarts spent almost an hour answering questions from 200 students.

Asked how he felt about guidelines for student unrest drawn up by the Committee of Presidents of Universities of Ontario, Mr. Robarts said the government must reconcile its responsibility to the taxpayers with its desire for the universities to remain autonomous.

He said it is up to universities to implement the tough guidelines, which advocate calling in police in some cases, as they see fit.

Clay Swings at Frazier on Street

PHILADELPHIA (A P) — Cassius Clay took a punch at five-state heavyweight champion Joe Frazier Wednesday on a street corner in the heart of Philadelphia's downtown business district.

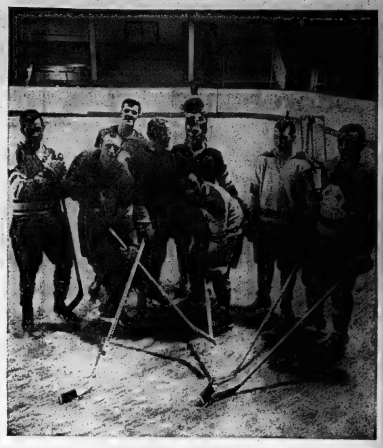
Both had just left the studios of a television station where they taped a show.

Clay came out first, crossed the street and was signing autographs on the roof of his automobile watching for Frazier to emerge.

When Frazier came out with his manager, Yank Durham, Clay took out after them. The former heavyweight champion, now retired because of his legal problems over the selective service draft, caught up with Frazier and Durham.

Clay was grabbed by several members of his retinue and Durham grabbed Frazier to restrain him. Clay threw a looping right hand punch over their backs, which hit Joe on the left shoulder.

Frazier wrestled himself out of his jacket, let it drop to the ground and struggled to free himself from Durham. Clay, meanwhile, got loose again, and threw another punch that fell short.



The confrontation was an aftermath of the fighters' meeting Tuesday in a police athletic league gym. The two debated verbally and started to strip for a fight, but police ruled the place off limits because of the excessive crowd in the small gym.

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy Ellis of Louisville, Ky., and Henry Cooper of Britain will fight for a portion of the world heavyweight boxing crown Nov. 1.

The American Broadcasting Company has contracted to beam the fight live to North America by satellite.

Ellis, a former sparring partner for Cassius Clay, is recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association. Joe Frazier of Philadelphia is recognized by New York, Massachusetts and four other states.

Some countries still recognize Clay, who was divested of his crown when he did not answer a U.S. army draft summons.

After Seven Long, Lean Years Mets Have New York Delirious

NEW YORK (AP) — For the last five years Karl Ehrhardt of New York has trudged to Shea Stadium on opening day, closing day and Friday nights with 70 signs under his arm. But Wednesday night only took 40.

"Tonight's special," he explained. "I left home the 30 signs I use to knock the Mets and took only the good ones . . . to celebrate."

It was the first time Ehrhardt, an advertising artist, and the thousands of Mets fans had a chance to celebrate. And what a celebration it was.

In the locker room it was bedlam as the Mets poured champagne after beating St. Louis Cardinals 6-0 and completing one of the most incredible turnabouts in sports history by clinching their first championship. the National League's East Division title.

But the real story still was on the field 30 minutes after the game had ended. It was there the. fans, who had waited through seven incredibly bad years for this sudden windfall, celebrated.

More than the Mets themselves, this was a triumph for their fans. About 2,000 of the standing room only 56,587 present poured onto the field shouting "We're No. 1." They sat on the outfield fences, walked on the dugout, climbed the scoreboard.

There were streamers, confetti, fire-crackers and horns and wall-to-wall people raising their hands in a triumphant V-for-victory sign.

It took more than 300 police-men to clear the field with several arrests and numerous injuries, including broken arms and legs. One of the scoreboard climbers fell to the ground and was taken to hospital.

But this still was their night. They had cheered every batter, every play, and in the ninth inning, every pitch. There was never a Mets crowd like this.

And of the hysterical mass swarming on the field, many others certainly had to be original Met fans who suffered through those first seven years with a team loved more for its bungling than its talent.

Those fans tried to steal every base off the field after the game, but, maybe as a reminder of old Mets, they missed first base.

Stanley Thinks 21 Enough

QUEBEC (CP) — Defenceman Allan Stanley, veteran of 21 seasons in the National Hockey League, Wednesday advised Bud Poile, general manager of Philadelphia Flyers, that he is retiring from pro hockey.

Stanley, 43, advised Poile by telephone he plans to devote all his time to his hockey school at Femelon Falls, Ont.

Stanley had completed just one season less in pro hockey than the great Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings. Howe leads the league with appearances in 1,548 games, while Stanley was in fourth place with 1,244.

During his long career, Stanley played for New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs, before being drafted by the Flyers in June, 1963.

The Timmins native had a career total of 100 goals and 333 assists in regular-season play while picking up 782 minutes in penalties.

He appeared in 100 playoff games and scored seven goals and assisted in 36 others. Stanley also played on three NHL all-star teams.

Earlier he had been offered the position as coach of Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League—Philadelphia's farm team—but declined the job which subsequently went to Walter (Turk) Broda.

Soccer Fan Jailed

LONDON (AP) — A soccer fan went to jail Wednesday for 2½ years for violence at a football match—a warning to other hooligans at future games.

Kenneth Wilson, 22, was jailed for assaulting policemen at the Leeds United-Newcastle United match on Aug. 23.

Magistrate James Pickles said: "If the fans use violence and come before this court they cannot expect leniency. There will be no question of fines, no question of probation or suspended sentences, it is prison for a long time."

Joe Back in Business

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Namath, New York Jets star who had to give up his interest in Bachelor's III, a New York night club, heads a group that won approval Wednesday of a liquor license for a similar night spot in Boston.

A spokesman said the license was issued to Namath, Bobby Van, who was associated in the New York place; Ray Abruzzese, former New York Jets player, and Jim Colclough, retired Boston Patriots player.

Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League also was included in planning for the Boston outlet, but was not named on the license.

A spokesman said the club — again to be called Bachelor's III — will open next Wednesday.

Eskies Start Fulton

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos Wednesday announced that quarterback Charlie Fulton will get his first starting assignment this season in Saturday's Canadian Football League game in Ottawa.

The Eskimos, fourth in the Western Football Conference with six points, take on the Rough Riders of the Eastern Conference in a contest to be televised nationally by the CBC.

Fulton, sidelined for the last few games with a sprained ankle, will replace Corey Colehour who has led the Eskimos to two successive wins after six straight losses.

The Rough Riders lead the EFC with 14 points, one more than Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

'Beautiful, Beautiful...'

Mets Trounce Cards to Clinch Title

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Those amazing, incredible, miraculous, implausable Mets today are No. 1.

The New Yorkers climaxed hitherto fruitless years in the National League Wednesday night by trouncing St. Louis Cardinals 6-0 to clinch the NL's East Division title.

During their previous seven seasons, Mets languished at or near the bottom of the league standings so it was little wonder 54,928 Shea Stadium fans joined the team in celebrations that lasted until the small hours of the morning.

Cries of "Beautiful . . . beautiful . . . beautiful" echoed through the Mets' dressing room as the players dumped bottle after bottle of champagne on each other and anyone else who happened to be near.

"It's a great thing for the owners and the organization," said manager Gil Hodges, one of the original Mets during the fading days of his playing career. "I remember 1962 when the Mets won only 40 games. . . .

"We've got ours (the division title) now, and we'll just have to wait and see about the West."

Tony Gonzales and the lowly San Diego Padres did their best to help give the Mets a post-season trip south, instead of west.

Gonzales hammered a solo homer in the eighth inning to snap a 1-1 tie as surging Atlanta Braves won their sixth straight, a 2-1 conquest of Houston Astros.

That, combined with the Padres' 3-2 win over second-place San Francisco, and Juan Marichal, gave the Braves a 1½-game lead over the Giants in the West Division chase.

Cincinnati Reds, meanwhile, remained just three games off the pace with a 7-3 victory over Los Angeles that knocked the Dodgers out of contention.

Chicago Cubs defeated Montreal Expos 6-3 in the only other game played. Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates were postponed because of wet grounds at Pittsburgh.

Donn Clendenon slammed two homers and Ed Charles one while Gary Gentry pitched a four-hitter in blanking the Cards —the 24th victory in 41 games for the Mets, who climbed from 9½ back of Chicago during that span.

"In the spring I felt the club was an improved one and when a team is improved anything can happen," said Hodges. "But I never dreamed of this."

Hodges, who suffered a heart attack just a year and one day before the Mets' clincher, appeared calm amid the hysteria that prevailed in the Mets' dressing room.

"It's not that I'm not excited," he laughed. "I'm happy, I'm thrilled for them. But I'm a little older than they are. Take off about 25 years and I'd be running wild, too."

Steve Carlton, who struck out a modern major league record of 19 in his last start against the Mets, managed just one strikeout Wednesday night—and it was the only out he got.

Clendenon tagged him for a three-run homer and Charles slammed a two-run blast, as the Mets exploded for five runs in the first inning.

Gonzales's blast to the centre field bleachers broke up a tight pitching duel between the Braves Pat Jarvis, 12-11, who finished with a three-hitter, and Tom Griffin.

The Astros had grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on Joe Morgan's 15th homer, but Atlanta came back in the second on Orlando Cepeda's walk and Bob Didier's double.

Howard Presses Harmon For Home Run Honors

Harmon Killebrew has earned a rest. But he probably won't get one as long as Frank Howard and Reggie Jackson keep swinging their big bats.

Howard slammed his 47th home run Wednesday night in the opener of Washington Senators' 8-4, 7-4 doubleheader sweep over Detroit Tigers and tied Killebrew and Reggie Jackson for the major league lead.

Killebrew, still starting for Minnesota two days after the Twins' lock-up of the American League West Division title, went 0-for-4 in a 2-1, 10-inning victory over Kansas City Royals. Oakland's Jackson was 0-for-3 as the Athletics bowed to Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Baltimore Orioles, East Division champions, nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 11 innings; Boston Red Sox edged New York Yankees 1-0 in 13 and California Angels topped Seattle Pilots 3-1 in other AL games.

Twins manager Billy Martin would prefer to rest Killebrew for the pennant play-off against the Orioles, but will continue to write his name on the lineup card while the home run crown is up for grabs.

Howard's bases-empty homer, a two-run shot by Bernie Allen and Ken McMullen's three runs batted in carried the Senators past Denny McLain, Detroit's 23-game winner, in the first game.

In the second game the Senators broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth on Del Unser's two-run triple off Mickey Lolich.

The White Sox slipped past Oakland on Bill Melton's two-run homer in the fourth inning and the four-hit pitching of Tommy John.

Valam Has 'The Knac' at Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — Hillcrest Stable's Valam proved his superiority over the turf course at Woodbine racetrack Wednesday, leading all the way in the one-mile feature Sweepstaff Purse.

The six-year-old gelding, with Jimmy Kelly in the saddle, scored a 1¼-length triumph over favored The Knac 2nd. Fiddler Ona Hoof was third.

Valam covered the course in 1:41 1-5 and returned $15.70 for the win.

Hillcrest owner John L. Smaljman of London, Ont., plans to start Valam along with stablemates Not Too Modest and Canal in the $60,000-added Canadian International Championship Stakes at Woodbine Oct. 26.

In the Leaside Purse, a seven-furlong dash for three-year-olds, Hugh A. Grent's No One Listens coasted to victory and paid $51.50 in defeating Dark Princess and Bobbinton. The two front-runners combined to return a $170.50 exactor payoff.

The daily double of Soot and Ruggedunit paid $57.70.

Fall Harness Meet Set to Open at London

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The fall harness racing meeting at the Western Fair Raceway begins Friday and according to racing secretary Brian Middleton the sulky session promises to be "excellent."

The London track has been "dark" since July 5. The fall meeting will run to Nov. 8 and will be followed by Saturday afternoon harness racing in the winter.

Feature race at Friday's meet opening will be a new stake called the Top of the Fair, a pacing event for a $1,000-added purse. Also on Friday's card will be a Preferred Pace for a $1,500 purse.

Armour's Signing Highlight of First Mo-Hawk Workout

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

If there is strength in numbers, the 1960-70 Belleville Mo-Hawks would already be a top contender for Ontario Hockey Association Senior A laurels.

Last night's first session of the open Mo-Hawk training camp saw 31 prospects turn out at the Memorial Arena for playing-coach Davey Jones' perusal.

It's doubtful however that Jones took more than a dozen of them into serious consideration as senior hockey players.

Among those that he did was Peterborough's Billy Armour, a six-year veteran of the Eastern League's Greenshoro Generals who last night signed with the Mo-Hawks.

The 25-year-old Peterborough native is probably better known as the high-scoring forward who was about the only bright lineup light for the defunct Quinte Merchants Senior A lacrosse entry.

Armour's performance for the Merchants won him the Ontario Lacrosse Association's nod as the senior loop's most valuable player.

Armour played both Junior "A" and "B" hockey in Peterborough before beginning winter treks to Greensboro's Eastern League camp.

Joining Armour as reasons for any optimism as coach Jones' part were eight holdovers from last year's Mo-Hawk roster that missed the playoffs despite finishing only five points out of fourth spot in the eight-team Senior A series.

BILLY ARMOUR
Signs with Mo-Hawks

Last year's leading club point-getter centre George Godson (15 goals, 34 assists) showed up with Peterborough cohorts Lorne O'Donnell and Greg Marchen.

Marchen has been one of the Mo-Hawk blueline stalwarts for three winters, and O'Donnell picked up 18 points in 17 games as a latecomer last season.

The Mo-Hawks may keep the late-season effective combination of Godson, O'Donnell and Trenton's Al Ferguson together.

Ferguson — who put on a late spurt including a nine-goal outburst in three games to help his 28 game scoring total to 26 points—was also at last night's opening workout.

Defenceman Jack Wilton, also capable of playing forward made the trip from Oakville. Wilton earned four goals and 15 assists in 38 games last season.

Local returnees to the senior hockey trials were scrappy Ralph Plane — who picked up 17 points despite missing more than half last season with a broken leg — veteran Lionel Bolly, picked on the senior league's third team all-star defence last winter, and long-time digger John "Shaker" Baker.

Jones will have no trouble landing last year's leading Mo-Hawk goal-getter: that was himself, with 29 to go with 20 assists in 27 games.

The prospective Mo-Hawks had barely taken to the somewhat tattered ice surface last night when Jones announced the club has a pair of exhibition games with Kingston Aces lined up in preparation for the Oct. 10 season's opener against Owen Sound at home.

Belleville's arch-rivals will be in town for a 9 p.m. game next Friday night, Oct. 3, with the Mo-Hawks returning to Kingston Monday the 6th.

The Aces and Mo-Hawks have plenty of old bones to pick, particularly since the Kingston club clung to last season's title and final play-off spot by a two-point margin over the local seniors.

Goaltending is one problem the Mo-Hawks must solve between now and Oct. 10.

Jones said Larry Holmes will be commuting from his Oshawa job for at least some of the Mo-Hawk games.

Despite being the target for an average 40 shots per game last winter, Holmes maintained a creditable 4.40 goals - against average, fifth best among regular league netminders.

The two goalies to attend last night's opening Mo-Hawk practice were Point Anne's Vern Whalen and Trenton's Dennis Orr, both of whom have had Junior B experience, but neither of whom played any hockey last year.

Commercial League: After 5 Months It All Boils Down to Tonight's Game

After nearly five months, the Commercial Softball League schedule boils down to one game, thanks to a determined comeback bid by City Hotel's veteran roster.

Bob Ehlier's two-hitter gave City a 4-0 win over Ellis Jun-lers last night, squaring the best-of-seven league final playoff series at 3-3.

The Juniors — who led City three games to one in one stage—get their third straight chance to wrap up the league title in their first year in tonight's 8 p.m. deciding game at the Alemite.

Ehlier got good support afield — from shortstop "Pug" Kellar and diminutive centre-fielder Ted Bisher, to name two — while he was striking out six and issuing only one walk in his two - hitter.

Steve Ling's fourth-inning bunt and Paul Goodfellow's seventh-inning single were the only bat blemishes on Ehlier's pitching performance.

Scotty Reid's lining slab effort was nothing to be embarrassed about. The 17-year-old drop-ball artist fanned eight, walked three, and restricted the winners to only three hits.

Unfortunately for the Juniors, the three hits came in a costly fifth-inning bunch.

City had gone ahead 1-0 in the second when Reid — attempting to start a double play tossed the ball into centrefield, permitting Jerry Genereaux to come all the way round to score. Genereaux was first man after being hit hard in the shoulder by a Reid delivery.

Then in the fifth, Rod Hurley led off for City with a triple and Reid walked Bob Groeden.

Larry Potter smacked the first pitch into left field to drive in a pair of crucial runs, then scored City's fourth run himself on Genereaux's single.

In addition to collecting the game's key hit, Potter also made the throw of the night in the fourth inning.

The City catcher threw a perfect strike at second to enable shortstop Pug Kellar to foil the Juniors' Steve Ling in a steal attempt. Nursing a 1-0 lead at the time, the play was a valuable one for City, with none out that point in the inning.

Inter-school Football On Vacation at Albert

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Senior football is on vacation this fall at Belleville's Albert College.

Inter-city football competition on all levels was on the verge of taking a holiday at Albert College until Wednesday.

"We had a shortage of boys big enough to play Senior football this year and a shortage of Junior-age players (15-years and under) because of the unequal number of boys in our Junior and Senior schools," said Doug Jodoin, the Physical Education director at Albert College.

Modoc's jump to Class "AA" football this year and Albert's football left the remaining Class "A" teams — Nicholson Catholic College and Tweed — without a league to play in this year so both will play exhibition games with some of the teams in the Bay of Quinte "AAA" league.

And now Albert itself is following a similar course. "We had no intention of cancelling our football program and we plan to enter again next year if we have enough players," Jodoin added.

"At our school we lose athletes for some sports and gain them for others; so our sports program may vary from year - to - year," he explained.

Jodoin noted that Albert had scheduled an exhibition game with Trinity College of Port Hope. "We will be playing Junior football this year because other teams will allow us to use 16-year-olds in exhibition contests; so we'll be able to field a team."

"Of the almost 130 students in our school, 70 are boys and we have to adapt our sports program each year to their interests," explained Albert College Principal L. L. Shewfelt.

"We play intra-mural football here but didn't have full teams for league play. We have a five Senior soccer squad this year and we're stressing swimming and other sports. In addition we have the defending Class "A" Senior basketball champions," added Mr. Shewfelt.

Jodoin added that Albert would seek other Junior football exhibition games in addition to the Trinity College contest.

Albert's Seniors sported an 0-6 record last year in the Class "A" loop but the year before the school captured the Bay of Quinte Class "A" ("B" at the time) Senior title.

Jodoin agreed that other sports would benefit from the de-emphasis on football and and track and field as two sports in which he felt the school would be well represented this year.

Neither Jodoin nor Shewfelt were concerned that Albert would only be able to field a Junior football team for exhibitions and both stressed that the history of the School's athletic program showed a pattern of varying sports' emphasis according to the interests of the student body.

Campbell Delays Decision Until Hearing Green's Version

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ted Green-Wayne Maki stick-swinging incident was left hanging indefinitely Wednesday by National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell.

Campbell said in Montreal "there is a conflict over facts" and he will wait until Green has recovered from head injuries inflicted in a stick-swinging duel with Maki of St. Louis Blues in Ottawa Sunday.

The League President said he wanted to hear Green's side of the story.

Green, a Boston Bruin defenceman, suffered a skull fracture. His condition Wednesday was reported by Ottawa hospital officials to be satisfactory.

Both players were ejected from the game, won by St. Louis 5-1.

Maki continues to play in the Blues' pre-season exhibition games and scored a goal Wednesday night in an 8-3 win over Oakland Seals at Sudbury.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins edged Minnesota North Stars 2-1 at North Bay, Ont.; Chicago Black Hawks downed the Maple Leafs 4-1 at Toronto, Philadelphia Flyers played to a 2-2 tie with Quebec Aces, their American League farm club, at St. Georges de Beauce, Que., and Los Angeles Kings subdued their Springfield, Mass. AL farm club 6-2 at Barrie Ont.

The victory for St. Louis was its fourth straight over NHL teams in exhibition play. The defending Western Division champions also got goals from Ab McDonald, Barclay Plager, Jean-Guy Talbot, Red Berenson, Larry Keenan, Gary Sabourin and Jaroslav Jirik. Mike Laughton and Garry Jarret tallied for Oakland.

Jim Morrison's shot from the point late in the third period gave the Penguins their second win in as many nights over Minnesota. Jean Pronovost scored earlier for Pittsburgh while Ray Cullen tallied for the North Stars.

Stan Mikita, Gilles Marotte, Terry Caffrey and Pit Martin were the Chicago marksmen as the Black Hawks continued their exhibition season without scoring ace Bobby Hull who remains a holdout.

Grant Moore scored the lone Toronto goal before 16,000 fans.

Philadelphia got goals from Lew Morrison and Wayne Hillman with Larry McKillop and Ralph MacSweyn scoring for Quebec.

Dennis Hextall, with two, Ted Irvine, Howie Hughes, Gord LaBossiere and Skip Krake were the Los Angeles marksmen.

Former Czech Star Plays In Tuesday's Tulsa Game

Two of the former top amateur hockey players in the world will be out Tuesday night at the Memorial Arena to show that they're ready for the professional ranks.

Jaroslav Jirik — the former Czechoslovakia National star who signed a professional contract with the St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League — will be wearing the uniform of St. Louis' farm team, the Kansas City Blues of the Central Hockey League.

And Ted Hargreaves, the former Canadian National star, will don the uniform of the Tulsa Oilers, the Toronto Maple Leafs' Central League affiliate.

Tuesday night's exhibition game between the two Central Hockey League clubs is a part of the Belleville Week activities.

Both Jirik and Hargreaves are left wingers who shone in world amateur hockey competition and they'll be playing for the teams which finished contwo in the Central League's Northern Division last season.

Tulsa won the Northern Division title last year, edging out second-place Kansas City by just two points and Tuesday night's exhibition will be the initial 1969 meeting of the two rivals.

Game time is 8.30 p.m. and advance tickets are available at McKnights' Variety Store, 211a Front Street.

Seats in the front three rows are priced at $2 each while the remainder of the seats will sell at $1.50 apiece. Tickets at the door will be the same price.

God's Winner of the Year

LEAN TOWARD HEAVY PUTTER

Putting, of course, is the most individual part of golf. Myriads of styles, grips and stance and you name it are used with great success. Comments about putting must necessarily be of a rather general nature.

For instance, perhaps you are undecided as to what type of putter is best for you. Personally, I favor a heavier mallet type over the lighter blade putters. I just like the heft of a heavier putter-head, and I have an idea most golfers would be better off with this type. You get the feeling that you're really holding on to something.

However, if you have a light touch, a very sensitive feel in your hands and fingers, the bladeputter is perfectly acceptable.

It has to be swung a little harder than the heavier style, but if you can handle this extra motion, OK. If you're in between, well, try finding a heavy blade, perhaps adding weight on its back.

Hockey School Boys To Be Issued Jerseys

Memorial Arena will be in full swing in a week or so, but it'll be especially busy Friday Oct. 3 from 6-9 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 4 from 9 a.m to 12 noon.

During those times the 220 youngsters who have registered for the Belleville Hockey School will be able to visit the Arena and pick up their scrimmage jerseys for the Hockey School which runs from October 6-18.

In addition the youngsters will be able to gain additional information about the Hockey School if they so desire.

The Hockey School will run weeknights from 5.30 p.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturdays from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. with the exception that there will be no Friday sessions.

Saturday, October 25, is reserved as Scrimmage Day for those who attend the school.

Legion Girls Need One Win

Legion Branch 99 moved within a game of capturing the 1969 Belleville and District Ladies Softball League championship Wednesday night by downing the Dairy Queen 7-2.

The win gives the pennant-winning Legion girls a 3-1 stranglehold in the best-of-seven championship series.

Sandra Claus picked up the win for the Legion squad and also contributed a pair of doubles to the winner's attack, which was paced by Marjorie Reid's homer and single.

Barb McCracken and Beth Palmer each singled for the Legion off losing pitcher Barb Bresdner who handed the winners their only loss of the season in the second game of the series.

Doris Lockwood collected one of the losers' two hits off Sandra Claus. The Legion girls get a chance to wrap the series up tonight in a 6 p.m. game at the Cheese Producers Field.

Departmental Stars To Play Bardy Benefit

Two players from each team will make up the Departmental Softball League all-star club which will take on the Commercial League's Richard Ellis Juniors in a benefit softball game Sunday, October 5 at Alemite ball park.

All proceeds from the benefit game will go to Bob Bardy of the Departmental champion CN Combines. Bardy broke his ankle in the third game of the Departmental finals between the CN Combines and the CN Turbos.

Bardy will be off work from four-to-six weeks and his ankle is presently in a cast so league members will try to relieve his financial situation through the benefit game which will start at 2 p.m., Sunday, October 5.

Soccer Starting?

The soccer season is approaching fast in the Quinte area, but for soccer officials the season won't end until mid-December.

Commencing Oct. 6, the Bay of Quinte Soccer Referees' Association will hold a 10-week Soccer Referees' Clinic every Monday at Moira Secondary School starting at 7 p.m.

Registration can be made at Moira Secondary School Monday, Sept. 29 at 7 p.m. and anyone interested is invited to sign up for the 10-week clinic.

The co-hostesses were Mrs. Tom Hookings and Mrs. Edward Herrington, Belleville; and Mrs. Donald Knight and Mrs. Garth Knight, Mount Pleasant.

Corsages were presented to Jean and her mother, Mrs. Ralph Jefts; the mother of the groom, Mrs. Hubert Herrington and Jean's grandmother, Mrs. Fred Smith.

Several contests were staged by the hostess with prizes for the winners. Donna Herrington broke briefly after which a lunch was served in the dining room.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I believe in treating a child's illness early. I'd like to be useful, yet I don't want to become a pesty parent, always calling up your pediatrician for advice.

What's helped a lot is what I call the "Bible" of all baby books, "Dr. Spock's Baby and Child Care." But isn't there a baby book which will warn parents when the child is in danger of becoming seriously ill with an infection? I don't want to become a second-hand doctor; just want to learn enough to protect my children when they get sick. — Mrs. D.

COMMENT: Mrs. D., it is with great satisfaction that I recommend enthusiastically another new book which also deserves the designation of a "Bible" for every household with a child. It is titled: "When Your Child Is Ill," written by Samuel Karelitz, MD, and recently published by Random House, New York City.

In practical, easily understandable style it discusses every problem parents of youngsters may have to overcome: All the common childhood diseases, immunization schedules, hygiene, wonder drugs, etc. At the end of each chapter are questions and answers which make you feel you are right there in the doctor's office.

I recommend "When Your Child Is Ill" as a must for every family with youngsters. It deserves a place in a special built-in compartment under your medicine cabinet, alongside Dr. Spock's "Baby and Child Care." I know your child specialist will endorse it.

Clearly written, highly informative and the work of an acknowledged expert in Pediatrics for the past 42 years, this book is an outstanding contribution to child health. If you read it, some day you may be grateful to its author.

You have heard of the Schick test. Dr. Karelitz was one of Dr. Schick's favorite students and associates. Here are Dr. Schick's closing lines in his written preface to When Your Child Is Ill:

"I enjoyed very much reading many chapters of this book. Therefore, I know how much satisfaction parents, nurses, interns, residents and family physicians will derive from a study of it. I wish to congratulate Dr. Karelitz on his having written so intelligent a book for intelligent readers."

Readers of my column will not recall any medical book which has received so much space here. The reason is evident. I believe that a book is potentially a health-saver and a life-saver for countless thousands of children.

° ° °

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 53 and have just recently been punched in the eye for the first time in my life. I would be too embarrassed to go to our doctor and let him know how I received a black eye. My eye was swollen shut for over a week, mostly purple in color rather than black and blue.

This happened over two months ago and has left me with a twitching continuously. What would you advise? — Mrs. U.

COMMENT: I can understand your embarrassment, but it's time, don't you think, to see your eye doctor? Peace of mind about your eye symptoms should outweigh any hesitancy about confronting your physician.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market lost a small opening gain and declined frictionally in light mid-morning trading today.

The market rose moderately Wednesday and interrupted a seven-day rally.

On index, industrials were down .59 to 180.77, golds .19 to 194.36, base metals .57 to 111.79 and western oils .35 to 213.20.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 406,000 shares compared with 513,000 at the same time Wednesday. Losers outnumbered gains 129 to 107.

Falconbridge slipped ½ to 141. The company declared its quarterly 75-cent dividend plus 50 cents extra. Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21.

Inco was down ⅛ to 46. Steel workers at Inco walked off their jobs July 10.

Steep Rock lost ⅞ cents to 94.85. The company has decided to omit its semi-annual dividend of 15 cents usually paid in November.

Paper and forest issues continued to strengthen following a report that Bowater Paper will increase its price for newsprint.

Abitibi gained ¾ to 9¾. Donnacona ¾ to 13¾, Price ¼ to 15¾ and MacMillan Bloedel ¾ to 34⅛.

On Wednesday, volume was light with 1,947,000 shares changed, down from 2,236,000 Tuesday.

An atmosphere of caution continues to hang over the market. Some observers expect another increase in the Bank of Canada's bank rate which could signal another raise in bank prime rates. A private study in the United States reported that there were indications that a recession has already begun in there.

These theories coupled with opinions of other observers that the market could suffer another slump before the year ends, appears to be the main reason for lack of investor confidence in the market.

The bank group, the leader of Tuesday's upswing, led Wednesday's decline.

Royal Bank dropped 1⅛ to 49⅜, Bank of Nova Scotia ⅝ to 22½ and Canadian Imperial ⅛ to 20. Bank of Montreal slipped ⅛ to 25⅝.

Bowaters did not trade but closed at 8¾, 7 asked.

Industrial mine issues were weak with Falconbridge down 2⅛ to 141½ and Inco down ⅛ to 46⅛.

Mine, Mill and Smelter workers at Falconbridge have been on strike since Aug. 21. Steel workers at Inco walked off their jobs July 10.

Belding-Corticelli lost ¼ to 8⅝. The shares were split 2-for-1 effective Wednesday.

Shares of Logistec Corp. were listed for trading Wednesday and closed at 6⅝.

Teck was unchanged at 7 and Dome Pete unchanged at 80. Teck has acquired a 10-per-cent working interest in a drilling reservation in the Strachan-Rich Lake area of northern Alberta. The reservation was purchased last month by a group headed by Dome.

Monarch Investments did not trade but closed at 115 bid with no asking. Monarch's common shareholders will vote today on a proposed 6-for-1 stock split.

Hees Is Ready for Showdown

OTTAWA (CP) — Looking tanned and fit following a summer of stumping his constituency, George Hees let it be known Wednesday that he is priming his guns for a showdown parliamentary battle.

"The approaching session will be the most bitterly contested session that Parliament has seen in many years."

"The government has created the atmosphere which makes it impossible to be otherwise."

Despite Prime Minister Trudeau's optimistic outlook that the animosity marking the final few days of the pre-recess session will be forgotten when the House reassembles Wednesday, Oct. 22, Mr. Hees said he feels the opposition will be coming back in a fighting mood.

"It has to be this way," he said. "Do you think we are going to let the government emasculate the role of Parliament?"

The root of the problem lies in the debate-limiting measures the government has "pushed through" earlier this year, said Mr. Hees, Conservative MP for the Ontario riding of Prince Edward-Hastings.

"Speeches made by the Prime Minister and members of his cabinet left no doubt that, in the minds of the present government, Parliament is no more than a nuisance which will be tolerated only because the laws of Canada require that legislation must pass through it before it becomes law.

"The prime minister had the temerity to change the role of Parliament.

"O.k.a.y. we've gone far enough. No, sir, we're not going to see this country put in the hands of a virtual dictatorship."

"You don't disclose your game plan before the game starts," said the front-bench Conservative. "But there are many ways in which it can be done."

Mr. Hees said there is another reason why the atmosphere of the forthcoming session will toughen. "When there's a new leader, he usually is given a year or so to show what he can do.

"Mr. Trudeau's time is up."

The trouble with this government is that they want to operate Parliament like a computer. They want to decide what's best for Canada, process the legislation through Parliament, and have it come out on a prescribed schedule.

"We're going to do our job."

The 59-year-old former trade minister was asked whether there was any residual resentment from Mr. Trudeau's July remark that Opposition MPs were "nobodies" when they were 50 feet away from Parliament Hill.

"Not at all. Not at all. We couldn't care less. Why, we've been insulted by experts."

More Students Go to College

TORONTO (CP) — A department of education report released Wednesday says there is a marked increase in the percentage of secondary school students going on to higher education.

A comparison of the 1967-68 figures for pupil involvement with those of 1966-67 shows that more secondary students are achieving the highest diploma available—a trend the report calls "most encouraging."

Pupil retirement refers to a pupil who ceases to attend a publicly-supported school in Ontario and is not enrolled in a public elementary school, a Roman Catholic separate school or a secondary school.

Dr. J. A. Keddy, chief statistician with the department, said the number of boys going on to further training after leaving secondary school increased to 21 per cent of retirements in 1967-68 compared with 27 per cent in 1966-67.

The figures show 33 per cent of retirements among girls in 1967-68 went on to further studies compared with 29 per cent in 1966-67.

The report says this improvement may be because of less stringent stipulations as to subjects required for an honor-graduation diploma, decentralization of examinations, availability of bursaries and scholarships and a public awareness of the need for further education.

The report, which covers the third and fourth years of a five-year study, states that of the 110,945 students reported in the 1967-68 school year, 27,905 were honor graduates and 34,492 received graduate diplomas. In the previous year, there were 22,622 honor graduates and 34,241 graduate diplomas out of 107,345 pupils.

Cut in Reserve Forces Brings Flood of Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Some MPs are getting a strong reaction from their constituencies against the government's intention to slash the strength of the reserve armed forces.

The reserves, traditional source of recruits for the fighting forces when Canada goes to war, are to be chopped by a reported 33 to 50 per cent. The cut will parallel drastic, though less heavy, cuts to be made in the strength of the regular forces during the next two years.

Carl Legault, Liberal MP for the Northern Ontario riding of Nipissing and a wartime airman, is preparing a letter to Defence Minister Leo Cadieux on the basis of protests he has received against the planned cuts.

Terrence Murphy, Liberal MP for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., has already written, and protests have also been received by a third Ontario MP, Gaetan Serre of Nickel Belt.

In each of these constituencies, the Canadian Legion has got behind the reserves in an effort to stave off the planned cuts.

It's been replaced by the concept of forces in being — trained men preselected to step into designated positions in the regular forces should war break out.

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Wednesday the removal of the Canadian Guards regiment from the regular force was an affront to the Queen.

"What has been done is a shocking affront if not a gross insult to the Queen and is a further example of the nibbling away at Canada's historic traditions and heritage apparently designed to obliterate everything connected with our British heritage," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the standing orders of the regiment say it is its first duty to protect the Queen. The regiment's status as household troops was asked for by the Queen.

Death No Time for Flowers

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As a flower lover of long standing, I think that nothing makes a finer gift for birthdays, weddings, anniversaries and other joyous occasions. But I could never see the point of flowers for a funeral.

An elaborate floral tribute seems a misplaced sentiment at a death, and I was interested to learn some years ago how actually Sweden handles this situation.

In Sweden, since 1921, there has been an organization called the Flower Fund, formed to honor the dead "in a more worthy and lasting manner" than with floral pieces for the bier.

Membership in this group was begun by a distinguished group of religious leaders, governors of provinces, and prominent literary and artistic figures. Its spokesman was Alma Hedin, sister of Sven Hedin, the famous explorer.

Instead of sending an expensive wreath, the Flower Fund proposed that the friends of the deceased should remit the money to the bereaved family for a simple memorial message in the name of the giver.

The money received in this way was applied to a project for obtaining homes with small apartments for old people in straitened circumstances. In three years the Flower Fund erected a large building on a site donated by the City of Stockholm.

A second house soon was built next to the first, and before long six additional houses were built, providing living quarters for more than a thousand old people, who pay lower rent than they would elsewhere, and also receive medical care.

There is nothing institutional about the place, and tenants are quite free to stay or move, as they please. Each building has a restaurant which serves meals at cost, plus a grocery shop, laundry and bakery. There are always more applicants for tenancies than can be filled.

Swedish death notices often contain a line requesting that the Flower Fund be remembered — and, since 1921, other charities have followed suit. "The important thing," observes Miss Hedin, "is that the memorial be given a form that will honor the dead by benefiting the living. Let our tribute to our departed loved ones be something more lasting than quickly withered blossoms."

Reach Now Generation: Key to Movie Success

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Today's formula for successful films: Reach the "now" generation.

For many years, the movie industry has known that its market is the young crowd; various surveys have indicated that most film-goers are under 25. Yet producers seemed unable to fashion its products in the youthful mode. Movie themes continued to be Establishment-oriented, and most top stars were in their 40s, 50s or even 60s.

The Graduate changed all that. Without name stars or high-powered production, the film quickly racked up a $50,000,000 gross. Obviously it communicated with youth—and parents went to see it too, perhaps to learn more about the generation gap.

Current releases confirm the box office value of youth-oriented movies. Such films as Midnight Cowboy, Easy Rider, Goodbye Columbus, Last Summer and Alice's Restaurant are drawing crowds. Their casts are composed mostly of unknowns and the budgets are slight. Yet they are doing better business than most expensive productions with big-name stars.

The major companies are getting the message.

Louis F. Polk, new president of MGM, visited the studio recently and remarked:

"MGM will become more aggressive in trying to make pictures contemporary and more readily than ever, films that make a social statement, that deal with the things of today."

The current MGM projects, the first to be initiated by the new management, illustrate the trend. Among them: The Strawberry Statement, from student James Simon Kunen's diary about the Columbia University riots: The Magic Garden of Stanley Sweetheart, a boy's introduction to sex in the big city.

There are indications that 20th Century-Fox is moving toward the youth-oriented film, especially in the wake of the company's financial gain with two high-budget standard-bred productions, Dr. Dolittle and Star!

New Ingredients Are Added To Murky Dish of Oil Politics

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

New ingredients have been added to the murky mixture of oil and global politics.

The picture of world oil, the fuel that moves economies, always has been bafflingly complicated. Insatiable global demand requires a constant flow of vast seas of it. Any break or threat of break in the flow causes crisis.

Now the picture becomes even more complex because of recent events: a burgeoning Alaska oil boom, the Northwest Passage odyssey, political upheaval in Libya, hostilities in the Middle East, nervousness in the Arabian Peninsula. All these developments raise critically important questions.

Alaska's rivers of black gold should begin flowing from the frozen tundra of the North Slope by 1973. What will be the impact? What is the meaning of the tanker Manhattan's smash through formidable ice to demonstrate that a commercial route to Alaska's oil via the Northwest Passage may be possible?

Where will Alaska's oil go? What will be the effect on recurrent Arab Middle East crises? Will the power of Arab oil to threaten Europe's economies be lessened? Will there be less American dependence on Middle East oil? Will oil lose some of its power as an instrument of Arab politics?

The importance of oil to any advanced economy can be imagined from the extent of U.S. consumption. In simple terms, to supply the United States today requires about three gallons daily for each man, woman and child in the country. Thus, the status of U.S. reserves is an important national security question.

Alaska's discovery is one of the biggest ever made. Estimates of reserves in the area run as high as 100,000,000,000 barrels, compared with U.S. reserves elsewhere of 40,000,000,000.

Because of oil, recurrent Arab explosions have caused crisis and near-panic elsewhere from time to time. That was so in the Suez crisis of 1956 and again in June, 1967, during the six-day war in which Israel defeated her Arab neighbors.

New discoveries have eased the situation. Europe gets 23 percent of its oil from North Africa and Nigeria, most of the rest from the Persian Gulf area. But Libya, now an important producer, recently underwent a coup whose leaders pretended to point that North African nation toward "Arab socialism."

There is skittishness, too, about the Arabian Peninsula. King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, a major producer, is having trouble with Pan-Arab elements which follow the lead of Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. Should Faisal be toppled it might not be long before Kuwait, the neighboring oil sheikhdom, went the same way.

In any case, if Arab-Israeli hostilities develop into yet another full-scale war, Arab rulers will be under severe pressure to shut off all supplies of oil to the West.

Thus, oil experts say, Alaska's reserves represent a form of insurance. The United States will be in a safer position to supply Europe on an emergency basis, because the reserves are there—even though Alaskan oil will not be flowing for a few years.

If the Northwest Passage proves profitably usable, this would have great import. It would bring Europe close to the Alaska source.

Skeptics remain unconvinced, but if the Manhattan's breakthrough should ultimately demonstrate a feasible, safe and short route to the east coast and European markets, the impact — half-dozen years hence—with a mammoth new ice-breaking tankers available by then—would be heavy. Europe, then, no longer would be at the mercy of wars and political crises in the Middle East.

Some experts say the extent to which U.S. dependence on foreign oil will be diminished depends upon the status of the quotas which now restricts imports. The argument is that if controls are maintained, Alaskan oil will go primarily to foreign markets. The reason for this, they say, is that lifting of the quotas will permit a heavy flood of foreign oil from the Middle East, Venezuela and elsewhere. Middle East oil in particular is vastly cheaper to produce than U.S. oil and far cheaper to ship, since U.S. oil, by law, must be carried in U.S.-flag ships.

The controversy over import quotas has been going on 30 years, and none is a head during the Eisenhower administration with a decision that, national security would be endangered by a liberal policy on imports.

The argument on the other side is that limiting imports keeps cheap foreign oil off the U.S. market and thus costs U.S. consumers less heavily, and also that it depletes American reserves.

A presidential committee is reviewing the whole question of quotas, but the argument that the U.S. industry must be kept prosperous because of national security make it doubtful that there will be a drastic break with present practice.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 26

Your birthday today: A year for picking up the pieces. You gravitate toward a final judgment on a range of controversial items. Many unexpected quirks of circumstance build up your standing. Purely sentimental considerations will go by the board in the thrust of the coming year. Today's natives are bold.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You are still too impatient for your own interests. Hold on a day longer, be tactful, and save your freedom of movement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Avoid business with people you think are friends today. Side-step squabbles. Influential people tend to be unfavorably disposed at the moment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Work and home matters combine to run into conflict so that it is hard to decide which pressure to answer. Take a long break and choose according to your aroused intuition.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Think out what you are reacting to. Decide the final outcome by considering the results of your alternatives. No matter what the rumor, you do not have the entire story as yet!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you really are master of your destiny, you will turn today's stress between yourself and all who work with you into a shared experience instead of a breach in relations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Continue all due and some undue caution. Check you home for hazards. Renew lapsed coverpast conflicts.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Will Pay Visit to Canada

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Mitchell Sharp announced Wednesday night that Andrei Gromyko will become the first Soviet foreign minister to visit Canada since the Second World War.

Sharp said at a news conference that Gromyko, who has been attending the UN General Assembly session, will arrive in Ottawa Oct. 1 and spend two full days with Canadian officials.

Sharp, here for talks with his opposite numbers attending the opening stages of the assembly, was to talk to Gromyko today. It is expected further details of the trip will be discussed then.

Sharp said that Gromyko will talk with officials in Ottawa about various issues including the Middle East, East-West relations and bilateral matters such as trade. Wheat would be one of the subjects.

It was hoped that Prime Minister Trudeau would meet Gromyko and it was expected that Trade and Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin would be one of the ministers participating in the talks.

Sharp said Gromyko was returning a visit made by November, 1965, by Paul Martin, then external affairs minister.

In other matters, Sharp announced that Communist China has asked Canada's support on the question of Peking's membership in the UN and said that "frank and useful talks" were held with Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France about Quebec.

He started his day by visiting Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad of Egypt then held talks with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam of South Vietnam. Schumann and State Secretary William Rogers of the U.S.

He met Liberian officials at a reception and was interviewed on television.

His schedule today calls for talks with foreign affairs officials of Nigeria, Australia, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, the Soviet Union and perhaps Chile. There is a reception for members of the Canadian UN delegation tonight.

Sharp told reporters that China has asked Canada's support in the UN. But he did not specify what was meant by support.

For the last two years Canada has abstained on the annual vote in the assembly on a resolution calling for the expulsion of Nationalist China and the seating of Communist China.

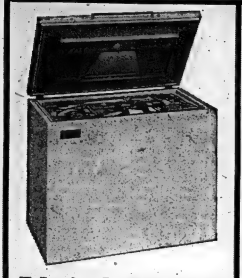
Sharp said last week that he has concluded from the talks with the Communist Chinese in Stockholm on recognition of the Peking regime that the Chinese would like to join the UN.

He said Wednesday that it is unlikely that Canada will change its vote in the UN this year unless agreement has been reached in Stockholm. But agreement "might have an effect"on the Canadian vote.

Sharp discussed China with Rogers and Schumann. He said Rogers gave no indication that the U.S. would change its negative vote on the China resolution this year.

The minister has said that China has not demanded that Canada vote yes as the price for recognition. He said progress was made in the talks in Stockholm last Saturday and another meeting will be held at a date to be set.

Sharp talked to Schumann about education conferences, evidently the conferences of French-speaking countries that has caused trouble in the past.



He said that he and Schumann agreed there should be friendly relations between Canada and France but that they also expressed some differences of opinion. He did not go into details.

He said he talked to Schumann and Rogers about the Middle East situation and found "refreshing" the fact that both said there was some progress in big-power talks. He pointed out that speeches in the UN gave an indication of that progress.

He also discussed Biafra with others. The Americans and Frenchman expressed concern about relief supplies to Biafra. Sharp said Canada is "influenced" by the feeling of Secretary-General U Thant that the Nigerian civil war should be settled in an African setting.

In an interview on the National Educational Television outlet here he was asked about Canada's proposed cuts in NATO forces. Sharp said he was not concerned that there would be a chain reaction by other countries.

Troops Separate Mob and Police

Police Watch Motorcyclists

TORONTO (CP) —Police today posted a 24-hour watch around a clubhouse occupied by a Satan's Choice motorcycle gang after neighbors said they were afraid the gang would burn the house down.

The latest police action followed two shootings near the club earlier this week and an order Thursday for its closure by the department of health.

Officials condemned the frame building and gave club members two weeks to vacate the premises. Officials said the building's sanitation—it has only an outside toilet—and water facilities were inadequate.

Now neighbors—who kept their children from school Thursday—fear the motorcyclists will follow a tradition of burning the house down and possibly setting the east Toronto neighborhood ablaze.

"Every time they leave a place they burn it down," said one neighbor Thursday night. "It's an old frame house and it will burn like tinder and with thise big pine trees beside it the fire could spread for half a mile."

The clubhouse is next to St. Martin de Porres separate school and a wire fence separates the two. More than 60 children were kept home Thursday as parents protested the shootings and the proximity of the clubhouse to the school.

Winston Chapman, 24, of Toronto was shot in front of the clubhouse Tuesday in what police said was an exchange of shots. Three persons were charged in connection with that incident.

Thursday, Gary Leclaire also of Toronto, was hit by a sniper's bullet near the house.

Meanwhile, residents remain fearful, bypassing the clubhouse when they walk to a nearby shopping plaza.

The gang's nearest neighbor, Fred Causton, said he has doubled his fire insurance.

Private Homes Doomed?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A builder who has erected 220 homes in the Windsor, Ont., area says private ownership of new single-family homes will disappear within the next five years unless more mortgage money is made available to builders.

William Docherty, president of a Windsor construction company which built the homes under the government's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan, spoke to Ontario Housing Corp. officials at a workshop Thursday.

Young couples will have to be content with living in either an apartment building or row housing, he said.

Robert Adams, senior information officer for OHC, said the corporation next year plans to sell 5,000 of its single-family units to tenants with down payments as low as $475.

Ulster Riot Flares

LONDONDERRY (AP) — Strong contingents of British troops maintained their grip on Protestant and Roman Catholic antagonists today after a brief outburst of rioting late Thursday night kept the brittle atmosphere in this Northern Ireland city at breaking point.

Waterloo Place, where angry Catholic youths stoned and pursued police vehicles before midnight Thursday night, was sealed off by 30 steel-helmeted soldiers. The military's "peace line" of barbed wire snapped shut around the Catholic stronghold of Bogside.

An army officer said no one was allowed through the line during the night.

About 140 extra troops were drafted into Londonderry—where Northern Ireland's vicious round of street fighting began a month ago—after a 50-year-old man died during Protestant-Catholic battles late Wednesday and early Thursday. Barricades were thrown up by the opposing sides, fearful of a violent aftermath.

Late Thursday night 300 unruly youngsters massed inside Bogside. A large crowd left the area and stoned vehicles belonging to the Royal Ulster Constabulary—a force regarded by Catholics as biased against them.

Soldiers, their automatic rifles thrust into the air, moved between the mobs and police and the trouble died down. No injuries were reported.

American Wounds 3 At Border

CHAMPLAIN, N.Y. (AP) — A U.S. resident trying to pass through United States customs at this border-crossing point suddenly shot and wounded three Federal agents early today, then fled back to Canada and evidently killed himself, police reported.

He was found shot to death.

Police said no motive was established immediately for the wild affray in this village of 1,500 about 32 miles south of Montreal. The man had no luggage.

They said Jesus Mark White, 22, of Brooklyn, N.Y. flashily dressed and sporting an Afro haircut, had arrived on a bus from Montreal.

At the crossing in this Northeastern New York community, a U.S. customs agent asked him to step off the bus. The agent, Leonard Chagnon, 50, and two border patrolmen took the Negro toward the patrol office. state police said, and the man pulled a revolver in the lobby.

Chagnon, of Rouses Point, was shot in the stomach and is considered in serious condition at a Plattsburgh Hospital. Patrolmen William Grinter, also 50 and of Rouses Point, and David Hoff, 42, Ellenburg, were taken to the same hospital and listed in fair condition. Grinter was shot in the hip and Hoff in the groin.

While's body was found several hours later among pine trees on the Canadian side of the wooded, rural territory less than a mile from the crossing. Police said he had been shot in the head, apparently by his own hand. The body was face-up, they added.

Export Prospects Mean Avon Expansion

Avon Jewellery Ltd. in Belleville is expecting to increase its staff by 10 to 15 people as the result of prospects in the United Kingdom. C. S. A. Ritchie, high commissioner for Canada, left, shown talking with Joel H. Mazer, president of the Belleville company, at the International Watch and Jewellery Trade Fair in London, England.

Atlantic Region Premiers Hit Freight Rate Boost

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The Atlantic premiers accused the federal government Thursday of acting "contrary to the desired spirit of federal-provincial relations."

Cause of their complaint was Ottawa's Sept. 23 ending of a freeze on Atlantic region rail freight rates.

Meeting here in annual conference, they protested the federal government's "unilateral decision," saying it was made without consulting them and contrary to their recommendations.

Furthermore, they said in a statement, "this decision is in conflict with the underlying philosophy of the federal government's announced policy toward the alleviation of regional disparity."

Ending the freeze means freight rate increases of between nine and 18 per cent starting Tuesday.

The provincial leaders also showed displeasure with Ottawa's announced policy of sharing revenues from offshore minerals.

The provinces contend they hold the sole right to minerals on the continental shelf off their shores. With ownership under dispute, oil companies have been getting exploration permits from both levels of government.

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island, conference chairman, said Ottawa should spell out details of its proposals for payment to the provinces from a proposed national pool of mineral revenues.

Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia said the provinces need to know whether the pool will include revenues from such potentially rich sources as the Arctic, where oil drilling is at new high levels.

There have been reports that New Brunswick would accept the federal proposal but the other Atlantic provinces would not. Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick said flatly there was no disagreement between the provinces.

Ottawa May Ban Private Medicare

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Health minister Thomas Wells said Thursday Ontario might lose the federal medical-care contribution if the province changes its legislation to permit residents to insure themselves against overbilling by doctors.

"There are grey areas that have to be investigated," Mr. Wells told a news conference. One of "the greyest" is whether Ottawa discourages subscribers from buying insurance to cover doctors' fees higher than approved rates.

Ontario joins the federal plan Oct. 1.

Mr. Wells said his department had not received an official opinion from the federal health and welfare department on the issue of anti-overbilling insurance, but opinions have been exchanged by provincial and federal officials at the working level.

The possibility that Ontario's plan would be invalid "is the opinion my staff tells me is Ottawa's opinion," he said.

One criteria for entry into the federal scheme was that the cost of medical care insurance must not be so high that it precludes access to medical care for any resident.

Bolivian Junta Seizes Control

LA PAZ (Reuters) — A three-man military junta headed by Gen. Alfred Ovando Candia today deposed President Luis Adolfo Siles Salinas and installed a new revolutionary government in Bolivia.

A communique issued by the revolutionary government said "total calm is reigning over the country" and added that a number of opposition politicians were arrested.

The communique was issued in the name of the three armed forces.

Ovando, 54, widely tapped as the favorite to win a presidential election called for next year, suddenly resigned as army commander-in-chief this week after he was accused of receiving cash for his election campaign from foreign oil interests.

The oil interest most often mentioned was the U.S. Bolivian Gulf Oil.

Siles Salinas, the army high command and the House of Deputies in this land-locked and impoverished Andean country rejected the accusations and urged Ovando to return to his post.

Ovando's only declared opponent in the election race would have been Armando Escobar Uria, the mayor of La Paz. But he was only regarded as a potential winner if he could have united all of Ovando's opposition.

The tough general, believed by some to have personally ordered the execution of guerrilla hero Ernesto (Che) Guevara in October, 1967, has said he sees himself as a "strongman" needed by the country.

Michigan Fights Pollution With New Iron Additive

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — An iron additive which Michigan authorities say will eliminate 92 per cent of the phosphorus in sewage dumped into the Detroit River and Lake Erie is to go into use Jan. 1.

F. B. Frost, chief engineer of the Michigan Water Resources Commission, said Thursday Michigan municipalities are adopting the process to meet new phosphorus-level requirements by the commission.

He said industry would continue to dump billions of gallons of waste into the Detroit River and Lake Erie, but "it's not the quantity of waste, but the quality of waste that counts."

Fist-sized Snails Infest Miami

MIAMI (AP) — A lush area in north Miami is infested with fist-sized snails that are eating about everything in sight—even the paint on houses.

"They're giant African snails," said Art Calvert, area administrator for the Florida Agriculture department. He estimated there were up to 20,000 of them in a 13-square-block area.

Calvert said the snails thrive on foliage and calcium and present a threat to South Florida's cash crops if they aren't contained. The infestation is unique in the United States, he added.

Calvert and a dozen agriculture experts visited the Miami Shores section Thursday and collected hundreds of the large, brownish colored snails.

"I saw some shells bigger than my fist," said Calvert. "Inside, the snails were almost a foot long."

Calvert said the snails were introduced to the neighborhood three years ago by a young boy returning from a trip to Hawaii.

"He brought three of them as a present to his grandmother . . . now there are thousands out there."

The snails, capable of producing 600 offspring each year, chomp on the lush foliage and eat paint from the houses to get calcium.

Mrs. Marian Wilson Recipient Of City's First Cultural Award

Mrs. Marian M. Wilson is the winner of first cultural award ever presented by the city of Belleville in recognition of outstanding cultural contributions.

Mrs. Wilson will receive the award at a civic dinner Sept. 29, during Belleville Week.

MARIAN WILSON

Because of Mrs. Wilson's major contribution on the local and district levels in creating a climate for the many cultural groups to unite and upgrade their work, and the recognition of her abilities and knowledge on the provincial and national levels of the arts, it was the unanimous decision of the awards committee that she receive the first award for the year 1968.

The awards committee was set up by Belleville City Council on Feb. 3, 1969. Committee members are Lorne Williams, director of recreation, Mrs. Wilma Summmers, assistant director of recreation, Murray Irwin, president of Quinte Arts Council, Lee Jourard, CJBQ, Harry Xuihall, The Intelligencer staff and Ald. Mrs. S. Jeffrey.

The terms of reference set up and used by the committee in making its selection were that candidates for the award must be recognized

(a) in cultural fields and related fields such as theatre, music, the arts, literature and crafts,

(b) on the provincial, national or international levels (to mean that their contribution can be documented),

(c) on the local level where an individual whose contribution is so outstanding as to deserve special recognition,

(d) a Belleville citizen (current resident or native).

Mrs. Wilson was born in Welland, Ontario. She is a graduate of St. Hilda's College and Queen's University. She is the wife of Charles I. Wilson. They have three children, Catherine, Joyce and Grant.

Mrs. Wilson's interest in the arts goes back to school days when she was active in school and university theatre productions. A Queen's University production course was a useful preparation for the active part she has taken for many years with the Belleville Theatre Guild, first as business manager, then as Guild president.

Mrs. Wilson has similarly served the Eastern Ontario Drama League as chairman, newsletter editor, and most recently as chairman of the league's One-Act Festival.

Mrs. Wilson has worked for the National Ballet Guild both locally and nationally.

After having been Dominion Drama Festival correspondent to Performing Arts Magazine, Mrs. Wilson is now chairman of the archives committee of the Dominion Drama Festival.

On a Canada Council grant, she is researching the history of the Dominion Drama Festival. This history will be deposited in the National Archives Ottawa and in the University of Victoria's Drama Research Centre.

Mrs. Wilson was chairman of the arts committee for Belleville's Centennial celebrations and was president of the Quinte Arts Council for two years.

She is currently a member of the selection committee, director training in Britain project of the youth and recreation branch, Ontario department of education. She is also a member of the mayor's committee on recreation survey of programs and facilities.

As well,Mrs. Wilson sits as a member of the mayor's committee to explore the Moil program and its use in Belleville and Hastings county.

Well Known Area Artist Creates Unique Award

Mr. Ronald Vandervelde has been commissioned by the cultural awards committee to create a special award to be presented to Mrs. Marian Wilson.

Mr. Vandervelde is a well-known district sculptor and has been working on the award at his B'older Studio, River Road, Gerryville.

Mr. Vandervelde is employed as a model maker at Avon Jewelry Limited, Belleville. His training is similar to that of many great Renaissance artists in that the early training in the making of jewelry arts, learning its form and techniques, has made it possible for him to develop into a fine art sculptor.

He has been commissioned by a number of companies that manufacture ornamental items and has also created special works for the provincial government.

His carved wood portraits are unique. The technique stems from the making of cameo jewelry.

His pieces of sculpture are all cast by himself, whether in plastic, metal or plaster.

In the latter part of 1971 Mr. Vandervelde plans to move his studio from River Road to a new and larger studio just north of Foxboro.

He plans to display outdoor sculptures on the grounds surrounding his studio. The studio will also allow other local artists to display their arts and crafts.

For some time now Mr. Vandervelde has been interested in having organizations present pieces of sculpture as trophies.

Mr. Vandervelde reported that after consulting the call commissioning him to create the cultural award, an idea flashed across his mind, the thought of combining three ideas — nature, strength and tradition.

When one looks at the award the first thing seen is a pair of arms, the call of a pair of strength. A second glance reveals a modern goblet and a third look shows the lines of a tropical flower.

These three ideas are incorporated into his piece of sculpture and make up the basis of culture, the awareness of nature, the maintenance of traditional values in order to appreciate the present, a past and future, and thirdly strength.

Mr. Vandervelde says culture is a way of life, the basic ingredient of a strong community.

Masquerade Ball Slated

The Belleville Women's Liberal Association has been working feverishly this week, preparing its project contribution to Belleville Week.

Their project — as masquerade ball this Friday night at Bleecker Hall — promises to provide an enjoyable evening of entertainment.

Association member Mrs. Thelma McGregor explained that dancing will take place from 9.30 to 12.30, with time out for a judo demonstration during the evening.

"We have all our members busy decorating the hall, and various groups have been down helping us — all pitching in to get things moving for Belleville Week a success," said Mrs. McGregor.

"There will also be two fortune tellers to forecast the future, during the dance for anyone who wants to know what is going to happen tomorrow," added Mrs. McGregor.

Mrs. McGregor noted that ticket sales have been excellent and predicts that success will be the order of the evening. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

The evening should have something for everyone, with all kinds of prizes. "Response so far indicates that we will receive enough money from the dance to buy some kind of playground equipment for the Hillcrest area," she added.

"I think the whole idea of Belleville Week is terrific — it's a great way to boost Belleville," concluded Mrs. McGregor.

CAS Urges Abolition Of Church Requirements

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Present day religious requirements for adoptions are not desirable and should be abolished.

This was one of the decisions reached here this week by a group of Children's Aid Society board members from Eastern Ontario at an institute meeting.

Approximately 40 CAS board members and local directors from Port Hope to Brockville attended the meeting which was divided into five different workshop groups.

Questions discussed ranged from the relations of CAS boards with governments, whether board members were policy makers or rubber stamps, amalgamation of county CAS societies, staff shortage problems and the value of public relations.

Reporting for the workshop group on board relations with governments, Mrs. Barbara Allen of Tweed referred to the proposed amendment of the Child Welfare Act which would eliminate review boards for the settlement of disagreements between board and government and give full authority to the minister of health and welfare.

Mrs. Allen said her group objected to further inroads in local autonomy.

"Governments are entitled to some degree of control, but should not gobble up all authority," she said.

Her workshop group felt the present religious requirements for adoption were not desirable and should be abolished.

Don Robertson of Kingston said his group generally felt that CAS boards were not merely rubber stamps, although some members could possibly get this feeling.

His group felt that board members could be of great assistance to other organizations in setting up new programs. He suggested the role of members might be that of a "watchdog."

Mrs. Elsie Burr said her group felt there were arrangements both for and against amalgamation of CAS societies into larger areas of administration.

Amalgamations were wise in some circumstances, but not in others and there was no apparent saving of money as a result of amalgamation, she said.

Reporting on the staff problem questions, Mrs. Morine Musgrove referred to the scarcity of professionally trained personnel and wondered if enriched courses in social work could not be given at community colleges.

It was felt such courses would provide more professional personnel and alleviate the staff shortage.

Gregory Bailey of Trenton said his group felt communication and public relations could improve if more branch CAS offices were set up.

Public relations are liable to be insufficient in larger CAS units because personnel are inclined to take a smaller role in community life.

If amalgamation into larger units is to take place, branch offices will be almost a necessity as central offices become business centres.

Hastings FCS Opposes Review Board Scrapping

The Hastings County Family and Children's Services has added its weight in opposition to Bill 145 of the Ontario Legislature which would amend the Child Welfare Act and dispense with the present CAS review boards.

With the elimination of review boards disagreements between Children's Aid Societies, and the municipalities or minister would be handled by child welfare committees empowered only to present "findings".

In effect, the powers of the present review boards would pass solely to the minister and from this there would be no appeal.

The bill has had the first reading in the legislature and is due for second reading next month.

The Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies, of which the Hastings branch is a member, will appeal Bill 145 and have asked county branches to ask local members of the legislature for support.

The proposed amendments in Bill 145 are aimed at improving existing legislation in the Child Welfare Act, but the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies claims that Section 4, which would eliminate review boards, could do nothing but weaken the act.

The association claims the amendment would eliminate the avenue of appeal in situations where disputes or disagreements arise and say this could seriously undermine the societies' services to children and families.

Local CAS board members feel the amendment eliminating review boards would be a further erosion of local autonomy.

Interest Costs Concern Mayor

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott wants assurance from the Hastings County School Board that the city will not be charged interest costs on monies borrowed as the result of late payment of school taxes by other municipalities.

This week at city council, Mayor Scott said the city was paying school tax money to the board on receipts, while some municipalities were either refusing to pay or were delaying payment until after collection of taxes late in the year.

In the meantime, the school board is having to borrow money to pay current expenses and the mayor wants to make sure Belleville ratepayers do not have to pay double.

"Everything should be on a fair and equal basis," he said.

The mayor said school board interest costs could amount to as much as a mill.

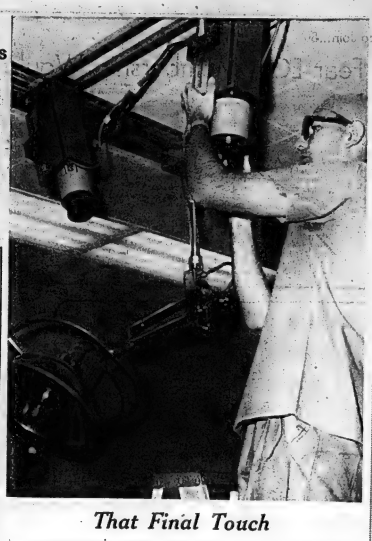
Aerial Treasure Hunt Will Heighten Festivities

One opening event for Belleville Week is up in the air — as billed.

Owners of private aircraft from around Southern Ontario and Northern New York state, are scheduled to fly into Belleville Sunday to participate in an aerial treasure hunt.

More than $1,000 in prizes, plus trophies, will reward winners of the event, sponsored by the Belleville Flying Club.



Pilots will fly into the the club's airport east of the city sometime after 7:30 a.m. for a steak breakfast.

The two - hour treasure hunt should get under way between 9-10 a.m.

A 30-mile radius of Belleville will be mapped in land blocs. Flying at 1,000 feet, the hunters must pinpoint treasure locations from topographical clues.

Event organizers say they expect fliers from as far west as Windsor to participate in the Sunday - morning hunt.

Prizes include a wide variety of items, from a pool table to a transistor radio.

Froggy's Gonna Toss the Javelin!

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Good evening sports fans and would you believe — a javelin-throwing frog!

Also, maybe the discus for good measure.

No? Then watch it Monday night!

The latest event scheduled for Belleville Week is a frog pentathlon.

First what exactly organizers of the civic program have in mind for the frogs is not known.

Sports dictionaries explicitly define a pentathlon: An individual challenge of five events held in the same day. In order, these be the running broad jump, throwing the javelin, 200-metre run, throwing the discus and the 1,500-meter run.

The first event is a natural for the contestants. If frogs didn't event the broad jump they certainly perfected it to an art.

As for the other events, full details are awaited and likely may not be known until the pentathlon itself gets under way at 5 p.m. Monday on the Market Square.

However, organizers assure that the most important part of the event already is in hand: A number of amble frogs already are in care, awaiting the pentathlon.

Monday also will see the visits of three mayors from North American communities named Belleville.

The city has municipal namesakes in Illinois, Michigan and New Jersey, which will be represented by their mayors and some civic administration members" at a banquet in the Quinte city.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch will be guest speaker at a dinner afterwards which also will host some 60 former city mayors and aldermen as special guests.

Workshop Theirs

TRENTON (Staff) — The Trenton - Brighton association for the mentally retarded became the outright owners of the new Sheltered Workshops on Guelph Street here Thursday night.

The deed to the property, which cost $20,000, was handed over without fanfare at the weekly meeting of the Trenton Kiwanis Club at the Gilbert Hotel.

Kiwanis president Neil Robertson made the presentation to J. E. "Bud" Levridge, association president.

Trenton Kiwanians spearheaded the campaign to provide a factory type training centre for adults in the area under the guidance of the association. Most of the objective was realized from Trenton's first "around - the - bay walkathon June 1, 1968.

The centre occupied at the beginning of this year now accommodates a class of 12 adults.

Air Force Band Concert Service Bonus

There's a bonus for the Battle-of-Britain ceremonies at Trenton which will see unveiling of plans for the nation's RCAF Memorial.

Saturday night, one of Canada's top military bands will play a concert at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

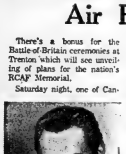
Onstage will be the band of the air force's training command, an ensemble which has attained prominence in national musical circles.

The ensemble will stage a 90-minute concert starting at 8 p.m. in the AMDU recreation hall on the base.

Continually on the move, the 60-man band has a repertoire that includes music for state and military occasions, symphonic, salon and a variety of entertainment events.

Among more recent appearances to its 25 year-old roster of programs have been the 1962 Seattle World's Fair and Expo '67.

The band has travelled extensively throughout Canada, the United States, Europe and Africa, performing for NATO and UN emergency forces and at public concerts.



Its versatility is highlighted by its soloists — who will add virtuoso performances to Saturday's presentation at Trenton.

Among the individual performers to watch for are Sgt. Bernie Bray, an Albertan whose specialty is the harmonica, and Sgt. Frank Burke, trumpet soloist.

The band is under the direction of Capt. Con Furey, an Irishman who joined the Canadian forces after a career in military and symphonic music in Dublin and with top British entertainment groups.

Capt. Furey was posted as director of the band in August last year.

Saturday night's concert will be broadcast over radio station CJBQ from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

School Buses Integrated

Integration has become a reality in Hastings County, at least on school buses.

Public and separate school pupils share at least 25 buses on county routes, resulting in considerable savings to each board.

The province-wide increase in school transportation was outlined to separate school trustees last night by assessment and transportation officer Brian Casey.

Fifteen years ago, eight per cent of Ontario's pupils were transported to school by bus, he said, quoting department of education figures.

In 1967-68, the figures had risen to 22 per cent. Cost has increased from $5,000,000 15 years ago to $36,500,000 in 1967-68, the last school year for which provincial figures are available.

Remember . . . Bus Tours

Chamber of Commerce officials are urging registrations from all Belleville tykes taking free bus tours of prominent city sites next week.

The Chamber's industrial section is sponsoring the tours Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday as part of the Belleville Week celebrations.

A 35-passenger bus is being used for the one-hour trip.

Tours for the general public leave the Hotel Quinte daily at 1.45 p.m.

Monday at 10 a.m. senior citizens will be taken on the round-the-city trip. Tuesday and Wednesday mornings will be given over to students.

Senior Citizens

As a letter on this page today indicates, senior citizens have their problems in these inflationary days.

Pensions do not go far. It means luxuries are out and some may even go without necessary drugs. Travel, new sights, new faces are pleasures that illuminate daily life for most of us, but in the circumscribed existence of the pensioner they are less available and less evident.

What is the answer? Recreation is one, yet the lack of such facilities has been a problem for senior citizens here for some time.

Now Council has decided to ask the Ontario Housing Corporation to provide more recreation space in future buildings. Such a facility of course should be on ground floor level with no stairs to negotiate, for this has been a problem for some of the older people.

No such recreation space is available for example at the Turnbull Street residence, with the result that last Christmas an outside hall had to be rented for the residents' party.

There are many ways in which the community at large could assist the senior citizens. Perhaps this could be an area of initiative for some service club, or even for some of the young people's organizations, to help brighten the lives of these who in their time have contributed much to the community.

Life Line

Every year throughout the world no fewer than a quarter-of-a-million people take their own lives.

This startling fact is revealed in an Australian documentary on the work of the Life Line organization which gives 24 - hour telephone counselling to people in distress.

Life Line came into being in Sydney in 1963 under the auspices of the Central Methodist Mission in that city. Today it has branches in New Zealand, Canada, South Africa and the United States, performing a work of incalculable significance for the lonely, the neglected and the sick of heart of all ages.

The film, shown earlier this week at St. Thomas' Parish church hall, showed the hurrying crowds of the big city (in this case Sydney), indicative of the impersonality of a metropolis of 2,500,000. Their figures deliberately cut off from the illustrator the mental state of many in such a city — from the 9-year-old girl wandering about the dock areas, after being abandoned by her parents, to the hobo on the park bench — the film was eloquent of the "Faces in the Street" of Australian poet Henry Lawson.

In Canada, Belleville shares with Sudbury the distinction of being one of only two Life Line centres in the country. But many other cities have expressed interest and meetings are anticipated in Hamilton, Amherstview, Kingston, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Chatham and Moosonee. Belleville incidentally, was the 11th city in the world to be accredited by Lifeline International.

Since the local line was opened almost two years ago, more than 2,200 calls have been received. An average of 12-15 calls are made every month. A committee of laymen and clergy directs the program, backed by the Ministerial Association. Some 60 people representing Protestant and Roman Catholic churches besides 14 "backup" clergy are involved in the counselling work.

Meanwhile a course for new counsellors is scheduled to begin October 4, continuing on 16 subsequent Mondays. Life Line's local number is 962-4111. Belleville has been a leader of this counselling work in Canada. Now it is spreading rapidly.

Chinese Puzzle

Where is Mao Tse-tung? Rumors abound that the leader of Communist China's millions is ill. The elderly Mao on the last occasion he was said to be ill subsequently was reported fit and well. So much so that he was pictured taking part in a swim across the Yangtze, believed to be an annual event in China which attracts thousands.

Some Western observers tried to suggest the pictures were faked but Mao was seen on subsequent occasions and until now was apparently still at the head of affairs in China.

A Wicks cartoon sizes up the situation thus, "You've been reported dead again, Mao," an aide says. "Time for another swim."

True or not, Mao's health inevitably is a matter of concern not only in China but abroad. As with the death of North Vietnam's Ho Chi Minh, Mao's passing could have profound repercussions on east-west politics. But for good or ill only time will tell.

Wilson Still Wants to Join...But

UK Public Fear ECM Membership Would Boost Food Prices

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — Frightened by the spectre of high food prices, the British public appears to be gradually losing its taste for the European Common Market, adding doubts whether the British government will exert strong pressure to gain entry to the European club.

Membership in the six-country group still is a major plank in Prime Minister Wilson's political platform. With a general election due in 1970, Wilson might consider this a ripe occasion for rousing the voters with the exciting prospect of getting into the Common Market now that General de Gaulle is no longer available to close the door.

But while the British government is still going through all the motions of launching membership negotiations—this time with more European encouragement than it met in the past—the British public appears to be growing more suspicious and concerned.

The biggest concern, as detected by opinion polls, is the prospect of a steep rise in food prices if Britain accepts the Common Market's current agricultural policy. The combination of high European prices and heavy unsold surpluses has made a deep impression on the British mind.

From the anti-market lobby and other quarters warnings have rolled out that the entire British international payments structure may be wrecked by the agonizing cost of supporting uncompetitive European farm production.

This concern has gained stature with the acknowledgement in Brussels that the Common Market farm structure requires drastic change and that farm policy will have to be renegotiated. Normally that might be the right time for Britain to step in, to ensure that the policy is moderate to reduce farm surpluses and production costs.

But France, which has a big and expensive farm family to support, is reported to have cautioned Britain not to interfere during the farm-policy renegotiations.

With the departure of de Gaulle, the new French government of Georges Pompidou has indicated a more sympathetic approach to Britain's membership plea.

But the French government also wants to protect the vital interests of French farmers. These farmers wield impressive political power. With the government struggling to keep the French economy in balance, officials are keen to avoid rural ruptures.

Thus it would appear that the British anti-market lobby is in a strong position to influence the British public. In effect, the price of British admission, it says, is British commitment to support high-cost French farm production.

Some observers suggest Wilson is unlikely to risk a big fight over that issue in the next election and in fact he may favor allowing negotiations to drag on until well beyond the election date.

Col. Sam Passes 98th Birthday

Hamilton Spectator

R. S. McLaughlin, the Oshawa auto magnate, especially still goes to his office almost every day of the week. This would not be remarkable if it were not for the fact that the much respected and beloved "Colonel Sam" is now safely past his 98th birthday celebration.

What makes the McLaughlin saga even more interesting is this 98th year of its history is the news that the Toronto-Dominion Bank last week named Mr. McLaughlin a vice-president of the bank. He used to be only a director.

Mr. McLaughlin doesn't need the job, but we'll wager he takes it seriously just the same. He'll not only consider it a great honor but, like the rest of us, he'll realize that it's quite a breakthrough for the over-98 group to have one of their number holding down such a lofty title in a business he doesn't own.

Pensioners and the Cost-of-Living

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I read with disgust, the article printed in the "Intel" Sept. 17, 1969 "Trudeau Favors Increase". Mr. Trudeau said the MP's pay should be increased as they played a 'crucial' role in society. Also the fact that Mr. Trudeau's own pay is $25,000 in addition to his MP's salary, plus $2,000 tax free for maintenance of his official residence (or a total of $45,000 of which $8,000 is tax exempt. (MP's receive $18,000 of which $6,000 is not taxable . . . and many of them sleep in Parliament for this wage).

Pensioners meanwhile are going to receive the 'large' increase of $1 a month. Some of these fine people played their roles in society in their time and certainly on a $1 increase a month (added to the pittance they receive) what chance have they for any luxury? They are lucky at present rates to stop at a store for a cup of tea, if they could afford the shoes to walk there (for bus and taxi rates are high on their meagre money.) Some of these senior citizens are now forced to sell the homes they worked all their lives for, as taxes and food have risen so high they can not afford the upkeep of their home. Where will they live, apartments are out of this world in price too? Some people who are fortunate enough have a small pension from their previous place of employment are taxed on this income . . . yet the MPs and Trudeau are given a portion "tax free".

Is it time these people and they promise to benefit the country, hoping they will make living conditions better . . . they have . . . for themselves. They sure have let down the old age pensioner and others handicapped living on a similar meagre pension. It is time someone considered their wants and needs greater than the extent of $1 a month, which to me would be an insult to even offer, it isn't even a 25 cent a week raise (enough people are striking today for that an hour).

It is time these MP's woke up in parliament and earned their salary; he, make . . . and look after the senior citizen and needy people who live on there pensions. Perhaps they should try living on that money and seeing the food these people are able to buy on such a monthly allowance, no wonder some are undernourished. Many don't buy the needed drugs they require and their health suffers.

Each and every one of us will be taxed to pay for the MP's pay hike. I think the aged should receive a 'decent' increase and try to live with the dignity they deserve. They would like their living standards upgraded also, I am sure.

I hate to think of the time, some 30 years from now when I retire if they are treated that way then. I feel they have paid all their lives for taxes and one thing and the other and should be exempt from it now. Perhaps then, they could exist.

FED UP WITH PRESENT GOVERNMENT.

Letter to the Editor

East Hill Ratepayers Association Puts Its Case

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

We must take issue with Mr. William C. Hockley's letter in the Editor dated September 23 entitled "Ratepayers and Urban Renewal."

The "facts" and implications as stated by Mr. Hockley about our meetings were both incorrect and either innocently or purposely misleading to the general public.

We have held two meetings to date, both of which were duly advertised as to their time and place in the local newspapers. The first meeting was held on June 19 and attended by 65 people: the second meeting was held on September 10 and attended by 40 people. The election of our officers was proper in every respect and we should again like to correct Mr. Hockley's allegation that "positions were filled by a so-called nominating committee" when in fact they were filled by nominations called from the floor and officers duly elected by all those in attendance. There is no "office of secretary-treasurer" as suggested by Mr. Hockley, but a secretary and a treasurer were elected separately.

Mr. Hockley attempts to define the objectives of our Association by suggesting we were "formed for the sole purpose of pursuing the issue of urban renewal." He shows considerable perception here as we have not yet completed our constitution. The objectives, we expect, will be quite broad in concept as we believe citizens can be encouraged to take a more active interest in their community through ratepayer associations. We believe citizens should attempt to be as well informed and interested in their community as the members of City Council.

We use Mr. Hockley's figures with respect to eligible voters in the City of Belleville. They are as follows: Foster Ward 548; Parkdale 1,100; Hillcrest 846; East Hill 9,656; West Hill 6,962.

Foster Ward, Parkdale, and Hillcrest, the three smallest groups, all have ratepayer associations and all have been recognized by City Council. We are sure these associations would be the first to recognize our right to form our own association. To date we apparently have not been officially recognized by City Council though we have formally advised them of our existence.

Mr. Hockley suggests that "there's a proper place for such groups as this, when they restrict themselves to their immediate locality and use their organization to press for improvements and facilities peculiar to that area." Again he attempts to personally define what the objectives of a ratepayers association should be. In the past other ratepayer associations have considered their influence should extend beyond "their immediate locality" so as to properly understand what Mr. Hockley means by this. So far as the East Hill Ratepayers Association is concerned we would certainly consider the "downtown" area of considerable importance to us. Generally we believe that good planning is sound for any community and that our official plan and special studies of important areas within the city have been too long delayed.

Mr. Hockley refers to our Association as a "pressure group." Conceivably any group that submits a brief to City Council could be placed in that category and we hardly think such actions should be banned, particularly when other groups frequently indulge in this sort of thing, either directly or indirectly.

We hardly think he is being fair when he criticizes an organization that was officially formed on September 10 this year and prior to that in the hands of a few representatives. We are certain when our membership drive is completed the strength of our Association will compare proportionately and favorably with existing ratepayer associations.

We invite Mr. Hockley to personally present himself at our next ratepayers meeting if he wishes to bring up any further matters concerning us.

East Hill Ratepayers Association of Belleville.

Major Wheat Sale to Mainland China Is Announced by Pepin

WINNIPEG (CP) — A major wheat sale to mainland China has been announced by Trade Minister Pepin, but he coupled his optimism with a note of caution to the Western Canada farmer.

Mr. Pepin told a news conference Thursday night he looked to the sale of 80,200,000 bushels of wheat as a means of easing pressure on the grain grower.

He warned, however, that producers who have massive amounts of carryover grain stored on their farms should not be optimistic that Canada's export volume will increase this year.

Mr. Pepin said the $135,000,000 sale to China will help mainly the growers of lower-grade wheat, particularly those in Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Peace River region of British Columbia and Alberta.

The sale involves mainly No. 4 northern and No. 5 wheat, and a minimum of No. 3 northern and some garnets and Alberta red winters.

Mr. Pepin said the sale, completed after negotiations in Peking by a Canadian wheat board team, was about one-quarter of last year's total export and was a move "to achieve this year the same export levels as last year."

The sale amounts to about six per cent of the total Canada now has on hand for export—1,500,000,000 bushels.

In the agreement, China is to pay 25 per cent cash when each ship is loaded and the balance within 18 months with interest.

Both Mr. Pepin and W. C. McNamara, chief commissioner of the wheat board, declined to reveal the interest rate but said deferred payment is made possible by guarantees from the Canadian government.

Most of the grain will be moved through Pacific Coast ports. About 4,000,000 bushels will be moved through St. Lawrence and Atlantic outlets.

Delivery is to begin next month and continue for about a year. Mr. McNamara said programming on the deal calls for a major portion to be moved in October "and we hope the ships will be in to relieve the pressure" on coast elevators.

Both men described the deal as "one-shot," unlike the previous three-year commitments made by China. Under the last commitment China agreed to buy a minimum of 168,000,000 bushels and a maximum of 280,000,000.

Under the three-year agreement that began Aug. 1, 1966, China has purchased 235,000,000 bushels, but both men said the current deal has no bearing on that three-year agreement.

Mr. Pepin also announced that the wheat board, Canada's grain-selling agency, has made deals to sell feed barley to Asian and European markets.

Mr. McNamara indicated the barley sales would amount to about 36,000,000 bushels, far above the level two years ago. Canada sold 21,000,000 bushels of barley last year.

Mr. Pepin said the wheat board is continuing negotiations with Russia concerning 135,000,000 bushels of wheat "still to be purchased (by Russia) under the agreement of 1966."

Mr. Pepin said the Russians have not backed out of their agreement with Canada, but want to look at their own crop situation before ordering more.

Mr. McNamara said it is a question of Russia being able to take delivery of such a large amount of grain.

"They eventually will take it," he said.

Roy Atkinson, president of the National Farmers Union, said the sale indicates there still is a demand for Canadian wheat, but that the "same volume moving two years ago would have returned $172,000,000," rather than $135,000,000.

Reclassification of Crimes Urged by Ouimet

OTTAWA (CP) — A royal commission should be established to classify crime in a way that would "distinguish between illegal acts on a more realistic basis," the Ouimet committee on corrections says.

It says long-term research is factual and philosophical basis for a comprehensive criminal law system.

However, enough was known now about "glaring deficiencies in the existing system" to take steps to correct them.

The five-member committee was appointed in 1963 under Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet of the Quebec Superior Court to make a comprehensive study of criminal law and the correctional system.

Its 800-page report, made public by Solicitor-General George McIlraith Thursday, is the product of dozens of private meetings with professionals across Canada.

The report makes 118 recommendations that would revolutionize the approach to crime and make it uniform.

It states its philosophy early: The purpose of criminal justice is to protect society from harmful or dangerous conduct; no conduct should be defined as criminal unless it represents a serious threat to society and cannot be dealt with otherwise.

It says a royal commission should weed the statutes of non-crimes such as drunkenness, a "social deficiency" that could be better remedied by treatment, or "wandering at night," a "social misfortune" best left to welfare agencies."

The approach to behavior such as smoking marijuana and glue-sniffing should be reconsidered, it suggests.

There was "considerable evidence" to suggest that prohibiting such conduct simply provided "the most effective and corrupting publicity for the practice rather than the prohibition."

It says police should be better paid and better trained, encouraged by law to use a summons rather than custody after arrest, and versed in the social philosophy on crime.

It suggests a formula by which violent offenders could be singled out and dealt with, allowing perhaps the prison population to be reduced.

To do this, a Criminal Code section should be enacted to provide indeterminate sentences for the "dangerous offender" convicted of certain violent crimes.

The committee says current Criminal Code sections on habitual offenders and dangerous sexuals are not working.

For most other offenders, detention centres should be built to replace the lock-up and staffed with employees able to draw up pre-sentence reports.

Judges should be empowered to release an accused after guilt was established with or without conditions. If no offences were committed in a stated period of time, the charge could be withdrawn, leaving no scar.

An accused should have the right to call a lawyer on arrest; Ottawa should subsidize legal aid to ensure that every accused has counsel; release without bail should be automatic except where there is danger to society or danger of destruction of evidence.

For most other offenders, detention centres should be built to replace the lock-up and staffed with employees able to job and support his family, should be possible as a sentence.

Parole should come more eas By is those convicted of non capital murder. The nationa parole board should give rea sons for denying parole. Parol of those in provincial jail should be a provincial respons bility.

Besides Mr. Justice Ouimet the chairman, other members o the committee were: Dorothy McArton, Winnipeg, Manitoba; J. R. Lemieux, Valleyfield, Que., retired deputy commissioner of the RCMP; Arthur Martin, prominent Toronto criminal lawyer; and W. T. McGrath, Ottawa, executive secretary of the Canadian Corrections Association.

Student Discipline Is Issue at Queen's, Toronto, Waterloo

TORONTO (CP) — Controversy over student discipline spread through three Ontario universities Thursday, but most of the noise continued to come from University of Toronto.

While students and administrators at the University of Waterloo and Queen's University, Kingston, dealt quietly with the issue, University of Toronto president Claude Bissell faced his second chorus of shouts and boos this week.

The issue is a recent statement by the Association of Presidents of Ontario Universities advocating a get-tough policy with disruptive persons on campuses.

Dr. Bissell appeared at a student meeting uninvited to explain his position. But he walked out shortly after as about 1,000 students shouted "retract, retract" and "Bissell for fourteen", when he would not dissociate himself from the association's statement.

The working paper issued by the 14 university presidents last week called for establishment of a review board of students, faculty and administrators to rule whether a disturbance on campus is obstructive or is violent.

In cases of obstruction the violators are to be warned and then if they continue, suspended. In the case of violence the police are to be called in. The proposal also leaves the president power to call the police in an emergency.

The association of presidents' statement also met student disapproval Thursday at Queen's and Waterloo. At Queen's the senate quietly passed the matter on to a student-affairs committee, composed of equal numbers of students and faculty.

At Waterloo, president Dr. Howard Petch participated in a calm, three-hour debate with students on the issue. He finally agreed to submit the discipline proposals to a committee of faculty and students and to abide by its decision.

Student council president Thomas Patterson said he opposed the guidelines proposed by the presidents, but would ask the student council to participate in the committee.

The only disruption at the meeting centred on another matter. A radical group noisily accused the university of carrying on defence research, and left to search files in Dr. Petch's office.

Three Federal Departments To Pare Costs and Staff

OTTAWA (CP) — Paring of planned expenditures for the 1970-71 fiscal year that will mean staff reductions and the postponement of some programs were announced Thursday by three government departments.

The transport department said it is cutting $40,000,000 from a projected $773,000,000 budget, the health department plans multi-million dollar reductions or delays in spending and the fisheries and forestry department will slice $12,000,000 from planned spending of $87,000,000.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, the first to announce the reductions, told a news conference they still mean "more than 200 full-time employees will have to go" and another 350 seasonal jobs abolished.

Health Minister John Munro said in a statement that despite cuts his department will try to maintain "an adequate level of services."

The transport department, in a news release, said there will not be substantial staff cuts in areas affecting service to the public. Its planned budget for 1970-71 had been $773,000,000.

"While some programs are being curtailed or held in abeyance, the requirements of the public, such as in the field of air safety, must be maintained," the release said.

"Reductions will be achieved by cancelling construction projects on secondary canals; deferment of some aspects of airport development including renovations of some air terminals; and postponement of replacement aircraft within the department."

The announcements Thursday were in line with Prime Minister Trudeau's statement in August that the government plans to hold the line on spending.

Jamieson Would Cut Cost of High Living

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Thursday Canadians should cut personal spending and "cut the cost of high living" rather than the high cost of living.

"The chances are that only one Canadian in many thousands has to buy an auto from the 1970 models this year. Most of us could make the one we have last another year and possibly longer.

Canadians could help check inflation by defining what part of their income was for absolute essentials.

Study Guild Discusses Controversial Novel

Walden Two, described as a controversial novel of morality and immorality in a scientifically - shaped Utopia, was the topic discussed at the September meeting of the Women's Study Guild, held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Reynolds.

In introducing the book, Mrs. R. Roulet compared it with Walden One, published in 1851 and written by Thoreau, who, in his search for Utopia, had lived alone, in isolation from the rest of the world," at Walden Pond.

Walden Two was written in 1948, following the war, by Dr. B. F. Skinner, one of the leading exponents of behavioral psychology. He portrays an imaginary self - contained and self - supporting community called Walden Two. This illustrates an experiment in community living in which human problems are solved by a scientific technology of human conduct. Mrs. Roulet, then introduced part of her introduction by questioning — "Do we have a right as human beings to opt out of society? Or should we become involved and try to change it?" If so, how?

Mrs. N. Meldrum continued with a description of various aspects of life in this Utopian village; the four hours of work per day; the amount of time which people could use to pursue their special interests the creativity in the fields of art, pottery, music, literature, weaving, etc; family life or lack of it; communally trained and educated children; the teaching that discouraged aggression and competition; the pleasant life of the older people who had time for rest and reflection in happy and beautiful surroundings. Each point provoked much lively discussion amongst the members of the Study Guild as the pros and cons of life in such a community were debated.

Mrs. K. Daley, the new president, conducted the business part of the meeting, during which a letter was read from the Guild's adopted girl, Marylene Cohen. Mrs. Reid led in a devotional period quoting excerpts from various authors such as Carlyle — "The thing you are seeking is always within thee," and Sydney Harris— "Happiness is a by-product, not an end - product."

A social hour closed the evening with refreshments served by Mrs. D. J. Gill and Mrs. Reynolds.

ST. COLUMBA WOMEN

Mrs. B. Hackett and Mrs. J. Allan were hostesses Tuesday night and welcomed the St. Columba Women who presented an interesting program depicting show sponsored by Robert Michaud Ltd.

Mrs. B. Brain introduced Mr. Michaud who spoke about and illustrated every concept of home decorating from harmony, dimensions, scale and shape to texture and color. He also pointed out that it is the individual's personality that is most important.

At the present time greens and golds are the most popular colors, he went on to add and followed up with samples of drapery materials and carpeting. Afterwards slides and films of all the well - known furniture plants and show rooms were shown. A film produced by "Harding's Carpets" was seen featuring yarns imported from England, Ireland, Scotland and India. They were put through various machines and looms to emerge as beautiful patterned or plain rainbow colors of carpeting.

Mrs. B. Hackett thanked Mr. Michaud and refreshments were then served.

Anglican and United Church people may have been feeling that all this has been going on at the top and that nobody at the bottom is "with it".

However, an opportunity will now be provided for lay people of the Belleville area to hear a first hand report at an open meeting to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 30 at 8 p.m. in the Sunday School auditorium of Bridge Street United Church, jointly sponsored by the Anglican and United Church Women's Groups.

The outstanding speaker will be the Rev. Anne P. Graham, M.Sc. DD of Metropolitan United Church, London, Ontario, who is a member of the General Commission on Church Union.

Rev. Graham was born in Montreal, daughter of a minister. Her mother was a deaconess. She attended McGill and majored in zoology and received her M.Sc. degree in zoology in 1939. She taught high school for six years and later attended the United Theological College (a McGill affiliate) where she graduated in 1949.

Following the address there will be a question and answer period, conducted by the Rev. Peter Teit of St. Thomas Anglican Church and Dr. Graham.

Successful Living

Today's Grandmothers Also Have Glamor

By DORIS CLARK

"Is Grannie a person?" inquires someone small.

What a question — of course she is! But it is significant that there should ever be a question about it. If there is doubt about Grannie's being a person, perhaps it means Grannie has in some way abdicated as a person: that she has given up trying in all the small things that make for a vital personality.

That's the danger point. If she has turned into "just Grannie" she's in real danger of being taken for granted, and of taking herself for granted.

But supposing she sees it differently. Supposing Grannie sees herself as a joyful emancipated personality. Free from the burdens and tasks of earlier years, and with a long life expectancy, Grandma can become very much a person to be reckoned with.

She has time to keep herself glamorous. She has time for her friends, she has enough sip to prepare a dinner, wisely accepting help with some of the chores.

DORIS CLARK

She has time to keep exploring new horizons by reading books, newspapers by talking to people, travelling.

There are ways of adding life to your years.

Dear Doris: I just have to reply to that boy who has epilepsy and can't drive a car.

Mr. brother, nine years younger than myself, contracted epilepsy when 11 years old. Underwent a great personality change: tempers, trouble with police, etc. He also had to be one year trouble - free from a fit in order to obtain his driver's licence.

To this day (he's 34 now) he still has attacks but controlled by medication. At one time he tried to commit suicide!

Now, he drives no car, is married, has two children and has decided education can give him the greatest happiness there is. We're very proud of a disgruntled boy who has received a great deal of bursary and council grant money for education.

Driving a car sure helps, but it's no big deal. — A Reader.

Dear Reader: And if that isn't a happy ending, I don't know what is. The epileptic young man who signed himself Frustrated, Discouraged and Lonely, will take courage from your brother's triumph over the very same trouble.

Dear Doris: Should the wedding cake be served with the punch, from a large plate, or be wrapped separately before being handed out? — Clueless

Dear Clueless: Take your pick:

(1) Around about dessert time, you and your groom grasp the knife firmly and place it in the wedding cake. Then it is whisked off to the kitchen, cut into small pieces and passed around.

(2) Ahead of time, cake is cut and wrapped in small pieces, and passed to guests when punch is served. Soon either this is a second cake, with the big one (which at times is a dummy) remaining uncut on the table.

I prefer Number One.

Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours.

Boss Treats Husband To Las Vegas Trip

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have been married less than a year. My husband's boss is taking four of his top salesmen to Las Vegas for five days. I say if he goes I'm getting on the next plane and will join him. We've been quarreling about this for a month.

I should tell you that my husband is good looking and a bit of a flirt but I'm sure he has never cheated. Do you think it is fair for a married man to go on a pleasure trip while his wife stays home and works in an office all day? Am I wrong to insist on following him? I'd like to hear what your readers have to say about this. I don't want to hear from any men. I know what they think — MONTREAL BROWN EYES.

ANN LANDERS

* * *

DEAR MONTREAL BROWN EYES: If you are interested in what I think, here it is:

Obviously your husband is being rewarded by his boss, and I think you should be proud of him and stay home.

Love doesn't run scared. It is mutual trust and confidence. The wife who checks, sets traps, surrounds and suffocates her husband will not keep him honest. She will simply make him more careful. No husband ever remained faithful because his wife kept an eye on him. The man who wants to cheat will slip his collar and find a way.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl and I are planning our wedding. She has asked three cousins to be bridesmaids. I have five brothers. I've asked one brother to be my best man. The other three feel we asked to be ushers.

One of my brothers has grown a long beard and his hair is nearly down to his shoulders. He looks like an idiot. My girl is sick about it and doesn't want him in the wedding. My family says he is a disgrace and I agree.

Should I tell my brother he'll have to cut his hair and shave or dress out of the wedding? Some people can ignore public opinion, but I do care what people say and I won't deny it. I need your advice. — CLUTCHED IN ST. CLOUD.

DEAR CLUTCHED: Ask your brother to trim his mop and wash his beard. See that he looks neat and clean that's all that matters. This is the Year of the Hair and I, for one, am plenty sick of all the attention people are giving the subject. Hair is not that important.

Of course people talk. But what will they say about you if you leave your brother out of the wedding will be far worse than what they say about him if you leave him in.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm not the greatest dancer in the world but I'm not the worst, either. This morning my brother told me that the guy I went with last night paid a buddy in the stag line $1 to take me off his hands. I'm so mad I can't see straight. Any suggestions? — S.Z.Q.

DEAR S.: Send the clown a dollar with a note saying you were so glad to be rescued as he was and that you want to share in the cost.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Apple Strudel for Fall

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Once again I come to you for help. And may I say your recipes are wonderful and interesting. Please keep up the good work. Our bake shop makes pies with streusel or crumb topping. They are so delicious I would love to put that topping on my pies as my family are so fond of them. But bake shop pies are rather expensive and I like to bake so I do hope you can help me out. They call this topping on fruit pies, apple, rhubarb and cherry. — Mrs. Bruce W.

ANSWER: I made an apple pie using Lodi apples similar to yellow transparents with a streusel topping and I am glad I did. Thanks for giving me the idea.

FALL APPLE PIE WITH STREUSEL TOPPING (9")

Pastry to line one deep 9" pie plate
2 or 5 large early fall apples
2-3 cup (less 1 tbsp.) light brown sugar
5 tbsps. almost melted butter
1 cup soft white bread crumbs
¾ tsp. cinnamon

Roll out your finest pastry, line pie plate and shape high fluted edge. Wash apples, pare core and slice into pastry-lined pie plate and sprinkle each layer with sugar as you slice to keep apples white.

Gently mix butter, crumbs and cinnamon and sprinkle all over top being sure apples are covered. Pat down with your palms. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 min. then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 25-27 min. longer or until top has a golden crust and apples are tender.

This pie is at its very best served a little bit warm with cheese.

Mrs. Roy Collins gave a reading and each member took part in the giving of the motto "What is our generation leaving behind?" Mrs. Harry Declair gave a talk and displayed some of the articles she is teaching at the Kelly Nursing Home in Madoc.

Following the closing of the meeting lunch was served.

Points for Parents

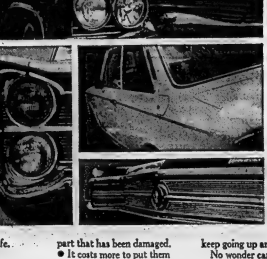
Father: "Now sit still and behave yourselves. I want to get some good pictures to use on our Christmas cards this year. Jimmy, sit up straight and stop frowning. Betty, take your fingers out of your mouth."



It's difficult to get two or more children all to pose quietly at once. Distract them with a story and when they are relaxed and unself-conscious, snap the picture. They will look natural and happy in the photograph.

Father: "I want to tell all of you a funny story about a clown. Sit in front of the fireplace and I'll tell it while I get the camera ready. You can hold your kitty, Betty. Now about this silly, funny clown . . ."

Car insurance pays for inflation too.

Inflation is a fact of life. It's everywhere.
Inflation affects car insurance too. The claims which insurance companies pay on your behalf cost more today than ever before.
● It costs more for fenders, grilles, doors, headlights—or any part that has been damaged.
● It costs more to put them on or fix them up.
● It costs more to get you on your feet again if you're injured.
● And if you injure someone else, that'll cost more, too.
On top of all this, car accidents keep going up and up.
No wonder car insurance rates have increased. But not as much as most other things. Competition among insurance companies always gives you the best in protection and service—at the lowest possible cost.
With car insurance, you never drive alone.

Hunters Will Have to Work Harder for Deer This Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Hunters will have to work harder for deer and grouse but the Ontario department of lands and forests reports good prospects for most fall hunting.

In general, populations of moose, bear, ducks, geese, rabbits, hares, quail, pheasants, raccoon, fox and coyotes are increasing while deer and grouse are on the decline.

About 33,000 deer were killed in the province last year and hunter success was better than 30 per cent.

However, certain areas of the province experienced an above-average snowfall during the winter. Deer, unable to reach sufficient food supplies because of deep snow, starved in some cases and does were too weak to provide healthy offspring.

Good hunting is forecast for most of southern Ontario but deep snow cut into the deer populations in the Pembroke and North Bay districts.

The department also says in a September report "Losses from another severe winter in 1968 make hunting prospects in Port Arthur 'spotty' with best success looked for in the Shebandowan-Atikokan areas."

Sioux Lookout expects a low success in the northern part of the district but improved conditions in the south. The department says conditions west of Port Arthur are generally fair.

Moose continue to maintain a steady population growth. Aerial surveys in the Port Arthur district reported one moose for every 1.25 square miles of range.

The department says about 21,000 moose were shot last year and the hunting success a little better than the 30 per cent shown for deer.

Good to excellent bear hunting is reported for all 21 districts.

"Unlike 1968 when scant food supplies created 'nuisance' bears by the score, most bears this year have kept to their normal haunts, away from human habitation."

Although a heavy rainfall washed out many duck nests in southern Ontario, the department says there was a bumper crop of second hatches.

However, this means that many young ducks will not be fully grown and will, in many cases, be easy prey.

Canada goose hunting, as usual, will depend on how many of the high-flying southbound honkers set down in Ontario.

"Snow geese, which nest principally in the high Arctic have had a better nesting season than last year and hunters should enjoy much better success."

Blueshirts Emerge as Team to Beat

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers have emerged as the club to beat in the National Hockey League exhibition series, with a 4-0 won-loss record.

But even more enviable, the Rangers have survived the early matches and training camp without reporting any of the major injuries or player walkouts that have plagued some camps.

The Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 4-2 in the only game scheduled Thursday night on goals by Dave Balon, Walt Tkaczuk, Rod Gilbert and Don Marshall.

Stan Mikita and Howie Menard replied for the Black Hawks who still are without left winger Bobby Hull and right winger Kenny Wharram.

Hull has not yet reported to training camp, apparently waiting for the Hawks to revise his contract which still has three years to run. Wharram is in hospital where he suffered a mild heart attack last week.

The Hawks announced the signing of defenceman Keith Magnuson, 22, from Denver University.

Los Angeles Kings had player problems of another kind Thursday when defenceman Bill White walked out of training camp in Barrie, Ont. White, who gave no reason for leaving the club, was the second player to walk out of the Kings' camp.

Last week, right winger Lowell MacDonald quit because he could not overcome his fear of flying.

Philadelphia Flyers spent 15 anxious minutes Thursday wondering if goalie Doug Favell would end up in a position similar to Boston's Ted Green.

Favell was hit on the temple by a practice shot from Bill Sutherland and knocked unconscious. However, he recovered 15 minutes later and returned practice at the Flyers' camp in Quebec City.

Defenceman Green of the Bruins remains in hospital in Ottawa after he suffered a skull fracture in a fight during a game Sunday night against St. Louis Blues.

The Flyers announced they sent defenceman Jacques Gagne and forward Tom Trevelyan to Jersey of the Eastern Hockey League.

That's the Limit!

Not many fisherman have Dave Burrows' worry — the risk of exceeding the daily muskie limit. Burrows hauled in a 45-inch, 28½-pounder, and 36-inch, 17½-pounder on the Moira River near O'Brien's Bridge to make his daily quota of two muskies. Jimmy Higgins helps him display his prize pair of catches.

Schedule Opens Oct. 11

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League Thursday announced the details of its 1969-70 schedule, the 53rd in the history of the league.

Regular season play in the 456-game schedule begins Oct. 11 and ends April 5. It has each of the 12 teams playing 78 games—38 at home and 38 on the road.

The six teams in each division play eight games against teams in their own group, including four at home, and six games against each of the six teams in the other division, including three at home.

Five games are set up for opening night. Los Angeles Kings visit Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs are at Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks at St. Louis Blues, Philadelphia Flyers at Minnesota North Stars and Oakland Seals at Pittsburgh Penguins.

Sport Brief

TORONTO (CP) — E. P. Taylor's top sire, Windfields, has been destroyed at 26 years of age, Joe Thomas, vice-president of the Windfields Farm here said Thursday.

He said Taylor was in England Tuesday when the horse after whom the farm was named was humanely put away. Taylor wanted it that way. He told visitors three months ago he didn't want to be around when it happened.

"This is the horse which made it all possible for the success Mr. Taylor was to achieve," Thomas told reporters. "He got him involved and he was a particular favorite of Mr. Taylor's."

Windfields has been buried in front of the stud barn at Taylor's National Stud Farm at Oshawa, Ont. There, he serviced mares to produce such outstanding runners for the Toronto Industrialist as Canadian Champ, Windy Answer, Windfall, All Canadian and Victorian.

Lakers Back In Series

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Peterborough Lakers defeated New Westminster Salmonbellies 11-9 Thursday, their first win in three games of the best-of-seven Canadian Professional Lacrosse finals.

New Westminster leads the series 2-1. A fourth game in Peterborough is scheduled for Saturday.

Touchdown Illegal, Alouette Win Stands

TORONTO (CP) —Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League ruled Thursday that officiating errors gave Montreal Alouettes an illegal touchdown in last Sunday's 41-35 Eastern Conference victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The game, which was not officially protested by Hamilton, will not be replayed for a number of reasons. It will stand in CFL record books as a Montreal victory.

Gaudaur ruled, after studying game films for three days, that the Alouettes scored the game's first touchdown on a fourth-down situation. There are only three downs in Canadian football.

Gaudaur explained that, according to game films, there was question of whether Sonny Wade of Montreal scored a touchdown on a second-down play.

The referee ruled that Wade had been stopped short of the goal line but had fallen over the line into the end zone. The downbox official, thinking Wade had scored, flipped the downbox indicator back to first down.

On realizing the referee had ruled "no touchdown" the downbox official neglected to return the marker to second down.

The referee, noting the first-down indicator, then ordered the second down to be played again and the downbox official complied by flipping the marker to show second down as the upcoming play.

"Therefore, there were in effect two second downs," Gaudaur said.

JAKE GAUDAUR
'No Replay'

The issue was further complicated when the downbox official, on hearing the public address system announce "third down" before the start of the third play, flipped the indicator to third down while the play was in progress.

When that play was completed, the referee, remembering he had called second down before tje play, ignored the indicator and called third down as the upcoming play.

"At this point, the head linesman informed the referee that it was his opinion and that of the downbox official that the previous play had been third down," Gaudaur said.

The referee "then exercisd his authority to make the final judgment and ruled that Montreal was entitled to one more play in the sequence."

Gaudaur said the fact that 69 points were scored after the incident had a major bearing on the decision not to order a replay of the game.

Crucial Boston Series

Tigers Battle for This Year's Seconds

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles clinched the American League East Division title almost two weeks ago but crucial three-game series starts tonight in Boston in the battle for runner-up honors.

Detroit Tigers, with only a one-game lead over the Red Sox, move into Boston after dropping a 7-2 decision to Washington Senators Thursday night. The Red Sox, meanwhile, whipped New York Yankees 4-3 to close the gap on the Tigers who are 22 games behind the Idle-holding Orioles.

Elsewhere in the American League Thursday, Baltimore downed Cleveland Indians 4-1, Chicago White Sox nipped Kansas City Royals 2-1 in 10 innings, Oakland Athletics whiped California Angels 7-6 and Seattle Pilots trimmed Minnesota Twins 5-1.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates swept a doubleheader from Philadelphia, whipping 5-3 and 9-7 and Houston Astros topped Cincinnati Reds 4-3.

Washington's Camilo Pascual defeat came on a three-hitter by Dick Bosman and assured the Senators of a .500 season for the first time since 1953.

Ken McMullen drove in three runs for Washington, one of them with his 19th home run. The victory gave the Senators, fourth in the East, an 81-75 record with six games left to play.

Mike Kilkenny, a native of Bradford, Ont., who recorded consecutive shutouts in his last two appearances, took the Detroit loss to drop his record to 7-6.

The Red Sox closed in on Detroit, beating the Yankees for the fourth straight time. Mike Nagy won his 12th game with late help from Sparky Lyle while George Scott and Gerry Moses supplied the offence with home runs.

Horace Clarke homered for the Yankees.

Dave Johnson slugged a two-run homer, breaking a sixth inning tie for Baltimore and Dave McNally beat Cleveland for his 20th victory of the season.

The triumph left the Orioles just three victories away from Cleveland's record 111 set in 1954. The Orioles have six games remaining.

Wal t Williams' 10th-inning homer carried the White Sox past Kansas City.

Joe Ruti hammered his first two home runs of the year and then Ramon Webster drew a bases-loaded walk in the ninth inning, forcing home Oakland's winning run against California.

Greg Goossen tagged two home runs, driving in three runs and leading Seattle past Minnesota.

In the National League, Pittsburgh took over third place in the East Division, sweeping the doubleheader from Philadelphia.

Al Oliver rapped six hits, four of them in the first game, and drove in three runs to pace the double victory. Bob Moose, who had a no-hitter against the division champion New York Mets in his last start, and Luke Walker were the Pirates' winning pitchers.

Mo-Hawks Gain Godson, Lose A's

Belleville Mo-Hawks are busy trying to sign some of last year's sharpshooters, but it appears the best favorite targets will be missing from this season's Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scene.

Playing - coach Davey Jones announced the signing of forwards Al Ferguson and George Godson after last night's second workout of the Mo-Hawk training camp.

Then Jones learned this morning that the Woodstock Athletics — doormats in last year's eight - team Senior A circuit who lost four of five games against the Mo - Hawks — are folding operations.

Jones said the schedule will probably remain the same, at least for the time being. The Mo-Hawks open at home Oct. 10 against the new Owen Sound entry, but make their first team appearance Friday, Oct. 3 when they play an exhibition in the Memorial Arena against Kingston Aces.

Godson, who topped team point - getters last season with 15 goals and 15 assists for .454 points, has been a smooth - skating fixture at centre ice for the Mo-Hawks for the past three winters.

Trenton's Al Ferguson joined the club midway through last season, and after working himself into shape, went on a late - season scoring spree that included a nine - goal performance during three games of the Mo-Hawks' rear - successful bid for a playoff spot.

The burly right - winger wound up the season with 26 points in 28 games, including 14 goals, and formed an effective forward combination with Godson and Lorne O'Donnell, another Peterborough native back in this year's Mo-Hawk camp.

Jones said winger Wayne McConnell will also be back in town to participate in the Mo-Hawks open weekend workouts, being held tonight through Sunday from 6.30 - 8.30 p.m.

Harness Bluebloods at Fairgrounds

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Sportswriter

Two horses new to the Belleville track this summer have brought with them something special — the blood lines of Titan Hanover.

The horses are Smokey Valley — a 10-year-old b r o w n gelding owned by Bruce Kemp and Kevin Mullen of Belleville — and Favorite Valley — a seven-year-old brown gelding owned by Frank and Doreen Edwards of Foxboro.

But who was T i t a n Hanover?

A $3,000 purchase from the famed Hanover Shoe Farms' establishment in 1943 as a yearling, Titan Hanover was nicknamed "Little Poison" by the harness and sports writers of his day, and earned a total of $62,896 during an era of smaller purses.

Among the highlights of Titan's impressive record were a time trial in 1944 in which he became the first two year old harness horse to cover the mile in 2:00 flat, victory in the trotting sports blue ribbon classic Hambletonian, and an unbeaten record as a two- and three year-old.

Smokey Valley is the son of T i t a n Hanover and Tiffany Hanover. His best time is 2:05.4 as a two year-old. Purchased from J o e Hogan of Wolfe Island, Smokey raced at Vernon Downs and Norwich in New York State earlier this year before coming to Belleville for Weeks ago.

Smokey Valley who's entered in Saturday's sixth heat, a classified pace — is one of 55 horses entered in eight races in the Quinte Riding and Driving Club's second last weekly meet of the 1969 season.

Juniors Win Commercial Crown

More than four months after they opened their initial Commercial Softball League season with a 1-0 loss to defending champion Stinson's Construction the Richard Ellis Juniors closed the season with a 1-0 win over City Hotel in the seventh and deciding game of the Commercial loop's 1969 championship playoff series.

Thursday night's 1-0 win was just one of a series of clutch victories by the Commercial loop's Junior entry. The Printers edged City Hotel 3-2 in a playoff game to decide third place, then downed pennant-winning Point Anne 5-3 in 11 innings in the seventh and deciding game of their semi-final playoff series.

Coach Harold Reid's Junior squad got the only run Harold's son Scott needed in the bottom of the fourth inning when enlisted Wes May reached first on a two-out infield throwing error, advanced to second on John Campbell's walk and came home on Scott Reid's clutch single.

"Scotty" got City shortstop Pug Kellar to ground out first-to-third to get out of a two-out, two-on jam in the top of the fifth and then set City down in order in the final two innings to clinch the 1969 Commercial League championship for the Juniors.

Reid finished with a three-hit, five-strikeout performance, in which he issued three free passes, and paced the Printers' attack with three singles, including the game-winner. Bob Parsons contributed a brace of singles for the winners while teammates Dale Duval and Wayne McTaggart also hit safely.

The loss was a tough one for the veteran City club who rallied from a 3-1 deficit in games to score 3-1 and 4-0 wins Monday and Wednesday of this week and force Thursday night's seventh and deciding game.

City lefthander Bob "Shid" Ebner allowed seven hits and one walk while fanning half a dozen, many of them with his drop ball. Pug Kellar, Carm Milligan and Doug Murray each singled for City's three hits off "Scotty" Reid.

"It was a good series — it couldn't have been any finer than 1-0 in the seventh and deciding game," said Junior coach Harold Reid who pitted Stinson's Construction to the Commercial League championship last year, largely behind the pitching of 17-year old son Scott.

WINSOME TRIO! —Barb McCracken (left), Sandra Claus (centre) and Nancy McCallum are all smiles after their Legion Branch 99 team captured the 1969 Belleville and District Ladies' Softball League championship by defeating the Dairy Queen 10-0 to take their final playoff series four games to one.

Legion Girls Best in City

The nucleus of the now defunct Mel Barriage Landscapers did it again Thursday night.

Wearing the uniforms of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 and bolstered by a few other players, the group which took the Landscapers to the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League title last season repeated their championship performance this year.

Sandra Claus was the architect of the Legion 99 win Thursday night, tossing a three-hitter as the Legion trounced the Dairy Queen 10-0 and took their best - of - seven final playoff series four games to one.

Claus, the Legion's mound mainstay who was absent when the Legion girls suffered their only loss of the season (an 8-6) defeat at the hands of the Dairy Queen in the second game of the series), fanned five and issued two free passes.

Marjorie Reid powered the Legion attack with a two-run homer double and single. Sharon Lummiss contributed a two-run homer and bust single for the winners who also got a home run from Joanne Dafoe. Sandra Claus with a pair of singles and Beth Palmer with a base hit rounded out the Legion attack.

Losing pitcher Barb Ireland never gave up nine hits while striking out five and walking one. Breakers also collected one of the Dairy Queen's three singles with the others coming from Elaine Brooks and Sharon Hannah.

Thursday night's win gave the Legion girls a sweep of the regular season and playoff ties in the first year which Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion has sponsored Ladies' Softball.

Legion Sports Director and first vice-president Jerry Deakes said he was "very very proud of the girls" and added that the championship trophy would be given a prominent place in the Legion trophy showcase.

Trophies in the Legion showcase include the 1968 and 1969 EOHA Bantam "A" graphics, the Belleville Legion Novice "B" Minor Baseball trophy and the 1968 All Ontario Legion Shuffleboard championship trophy.

"We will sponsor a Belleville and District Ladies' softball League team again next year and I hope that all the girls remain with us," concluded Legion Branch 99 President Jack Rashotte.

Settlement Urged

School Facts Available

MONTREAL (CP) — Immigration Minister Mario Beaulieu said Thursday the Quebec government has "all the facts" at its fingertips to settle the lengthy suburban St. Leonard school language conflict.

At a news conference following a speech to a suburban Laval service club, Mr. Beaulieu said it was the necessary to wait for the report of the Gendron commission on the status of the French-language in Quebec.

"And the (St. Leonard) solution should be a permanent one. We already have all the facts and we expect that the commission will confirm what we already know."

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal, a major protagonist in the St. Leonard hassle, has said that no long-term solution could be found until the commission had completed its work.

The commission report is expected in late 1970 or early 1971.

Mr. Beaulieu insisted, however, that any solution in St. Leonard must be incorporated in a "global" affair covering the Island of Montreal.

"Otherwise, you might find the same thing happening in other municipalities tomorrow. It could, for example, be in a place like (suburban) Beaconsfield—and then it would be the French children without a school."

Jaycees Want Canada Day Designation

If the Belleville Jaycees get their way, we may have celebrated Dominion Day for the last time.

It's not as bad as it sounds, however. They merely hope to see our July First holiday renamed "Canada Day".

In league with the 200 other Jaycee chapters in Canada, the Hallfrights Jaycees are canvassing their local Federal MPs for support for a Private Member's Bill they hope to have introduced in the new fall sessions in Ottawa. The bill would call for an official change in the name from Dominion Day to "Canada Day".

The current campaign is the result of a resolution endorsed at the 1968 National Jaycee Convention in Victoria. The resolution and supporting brief refer to the title "Dominion" as outdated and unrepresentative of modern Canada.

Belleville Jaycees, as later part of the national project, have written to Mr. Lee Grills, MP for the riding of Hastings, in order to outline their stand and seek his support for the measure.

To the Jaycees, resolutions leading to legislation are nothing new. An active interest in governmental affairs at every level is an important part of their overall program for personal development and community involvement.

Canadian Anti-combine Laws Made Ineffective Says Expert

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian professor charged today that Canada's policies and laws against mergers, combines and price-fixing have been circumvented, weakened and made ineffective mainly through amendments or lack of enforcement.

Policies dealing with mergers and price discrimination have been handled "poorly" in Canada, Lawrence Skeoch told an international conference of experts meeting at Cambridge to exchange views on business restraints and their impact on trade, prices and public welfare.

Five Canadian professors and four federal officials are among the delegates at the three-day sessions sponsored by the 21-country Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Skeoch, economics professor at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., said that enforcement of Canada's anti-merger legislation is impotent and that this failure to enforce may have effectively circumvented federal anti-combines policy in some industries.

As for the law banning discriminatory pricing policies by suppliers and dealers, it was difficult to assess its impact since "there has been virtually no enforcement over the period of more than three decades since its passage."

Action taken by combines authorities had amounted only to three reports by the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission relating to gasoline marketing in Toronto—"in two of which legal proceedings were recommended but not undertaken"—and two reports resulting in legal proceedings on the marketing of evaporated and fresh milk. In both milk cases the courts registered acquittals.

It is worth noting," said Skeoch, "that the two general areas involved—the marketing of gasoline and of milk—are tight oligopolies selling essentially homogeneous products, in which concentration has been merger activity in recent years."

The practice whereby manufacturers and distributors set the price the consumer must pay has been abolished by law in Canada in 1951. But a policy of specifying resale prices, often without the qualification that they merely are suggested, "is very widespread," Skeoch said.

While the precise impact of this policy was not easy to determine, Skeoch found that in some trades "the observance of suggested resale prices is undoubtedly high." He named books, expensive jewelry, gasoline, motor oils, drugs, hardware and electrical appliances as items he had in mind.

Certain 1960 amendments modified the defence against resale price maintenance, he maintained. The amendments removed the ban in cases where the supplier could show that the retailer was selling the product at below cost as a loss leader. The retailer had to show that he was obtaining a profit margin consistent with other efficient dealers. Suppliers could refuse to deliver goods even if the retailer found a new technique allowing him to operate on narrower margins.

"This, the original legislation banning resale price maintenance has been circumscribed and diverted, in some degree, from its purpose of promoting competitive efficiency," Skeoch said.

Queen's Prof Doubtful Universities Beneficial

KINGSTON (CP) — An economist at Queen's University has suggested the government put a freeze on its university education spending because the economic benefits are not high enough.

Prof. David A. Dodge uses a study he completed this summer to challenge the long-accepted idea that almost any amount of government money poured into higher education produces a "profit" in economic benefits and better living.

In dollars and cents, Prof. Dodge estimates the country may be throwing away more than 50 cents of every dollar it sinks into universities.

Estimates of the benefits from government spending on education are usually arrived at in a fairly straightforward way, he said in an interview.

The investment is the amount the government lays out for classrooms, libraries, labs, professors' salaries and other miscellaneous expenses.

The gross return is the difference between graduates' in-"similar" individuals who did comes and the earnings of not go to college.

The reasoning in the past has been that the individual's salary is a rough indicator of what he contributes to the total production of the country-and the extra income commanded by a university graduate is due to knowledge he absorbed in his courses.

Prof. Dodge, 26, who used a federal manpower grant to complete his study, says the old method produces a figure that is much too high.

He estimates that as much as 40 per cent of the difference between the earnings of dropouts and graduates may be a result of the latter's greater ability. Or, in other words, the smart ones would make money whether they went to university or not.

Graduates, more than non-college types, also tend to be people with family wealth and connections which do not hurt their incomes either.

So, by Dodge figuring, the social return on the government's expenditure is knocked down to about seven per cent. Add to that the fact that up to half the extra income of degree-holders results from the use of college education as a "barrier to entry" to many jobs and professions.

Among the worst culprits, the professor says, are professional societies which use stiff educational standards to keep numbers low and salaries high.

Another problem is personnel managers. In Canada, the professor feels, many of them are "simply lazy." So are those in charge of hiring simply let the colleges act as a screening system.

The professor calculates that all these factors now produce a yield to the government of about 3½ per cent in annual return.

If the cost of the money is considered to be 7½ per cent, he says, that is clearly a losing proposition. In contrast, previous estimates set the yield figure at nine, 10 or more per cent-always above the 7½ per cent and thus always a sound investment.

Prof. Dodge says the government of Ontario plans to spend 42 per cent of its budget on education this year and more than a quarter of the total will go to universities.

"If the province of Ontario is making this investment in the hopes of increasing total national production," Prof. Dodge says, "there are better ways of doing it."

Shippers Uncommitted

Striking Dockers Promise To Handle Grain Shipments

VANCOUVER (CP) — A strike by British Columbia's 3,200 longshoremen entered its second day today, with the question of grain shipments unresolved.

The longshoremen have promised the federal government they will continue handling grain during the strike, but employers have made no such commitment.

"Ships at present in port for wheat assignments will be loaded," Edward Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association, said Thursday night. "The situation will be examined as more such ships reach port."

It was not clear, in view of Mr. Strang's statement, how a $135,000,000 wheat deal with China announced late Thursday will be affected by the strike. Trade Minister Jean Luc Pepin said Thursday night in Winnipeg that the wheat for China is scheduled to begin moving out of B.C. ports next month.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, which had been working without a contract since July, set up picket lines Thursday morning at the entrances to all deepsea-handling docks in Vancouver, New Westminster and Prince Rupert on the mainland, and at Chemainus, Port Alberni and Victoria on Vancouver Island.

The strike followed breakdown of contract talks between the union and stevedoring companies which contract to load and unload import and export cargoes for the shipping companies. Wheat accounts for about 17 per cent of the cargo handled through Vancouver, and is also shipped through Victoria, New Westminster and Prince Rupert.

No wheat was loaded in B.C. Thursday.

Only six deepsea ships were docked in Vancouver as the strike started.

The Canadian Importers' Association threatened to transfer business to other ports, "possibly on a permanent basis," unless the strike ended quickly.

The union countered by calling on its international headquarters to boycott ships diverted from Vancouver to any Pacific Coast port from Alaska to Mexico.

Andy Kotowich, president of the union's Canadian operations, said the companies would have to meet the union's final demand for an increase of 93½ cents an hour spread over two years. He said this would have given longshoremen a base rate of $4.81 an hour starting July 31, 1971.

Employers had offered an increase of 85 cents an hour over three years.

Strictly Personal

Good Often Play God

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It is easy to see that people have many kinds of badness; it is much harder to see that there are just as many kinds of goodness.

One mistake of the bad person lies in convincing himself that "goodness" does not really exist; the mistake of the good person lies in believing that there is only one kind of goodness — his kind.

This is why so many virtuous, sober, prudent, honest, respectable men and women cannot make their husbands or wives or children happy. They think that the virtues they possess are the only virtues — and they want everybody to be "good" in the same way.

But everybody cannot be good in the same way, just as everybody is not bad in the same way. The wife, for instance, who is loyal and dutiful and self-sacrificing may at the same time be lacking in the virtues of humor, magnanimity, and tolerance.

Children most often are made to feel guilty because they are unlike their parents. They are accused of being negligent or wild or lazy — vices which the parents do not possess.

These same children, however, may have virtues which the parents do not possess. They may have a more flexible attitude toward society; they may be more charitable toward their inferiors; they may be bluntly honest in their judgments, while the parents are sanctimoniously hypocritical.

It is the outstanding vice of "good" people that they are smug about the virtues they do possess, while ignoring those they lack.

They construct a moral edifice for humanity, with their own virtues at the very top — and they want every building to resemble their own.

Apart from the psychological narrowness of this viewpoint, there is a deep moral danger. God did not mean all people to be alike, or He would have made them alike; and it is our task to find the special goodness residing in each person, not to try to force them over into our image.

If the bad person tries to play the Devil, the good person often commits the greater sin of trying to play God.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For September 27

Your birthday today. To go it alone is the most likely personal approach to the coming year. Separative experiences persist all year and occasionally peak to a rather high intensity. Study of psychology may help. Today's natives are fastidious and intellectual (although camouflaged in a rough exterior).

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The tension generated today may have about blown itself out by noon. If you have followed a sound course, you can settle into your usual groove, relieved and happy at having made no more enemies.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 —May 20): Your personal welfare is promoted today. Just avoid being too abrupt, unless you wish too quit the job you are on and have a better one.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The day is erratic settling down only in the afternoon. If you can select what phases of work you will do, choose those which take you away from fellow workers for the longest time.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Sudden changes are quite possible which seem at this time to be cataclysmic disasters, but which later prove to be but the mechanism by which you can develop.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your judgment is not of the best today, so prevent accidents by abstaining from action or driving as much as your work will permit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your affairs are now less sensitive, but still need your earnest attention. Situations which threatened your reserve funds for a time have drifted into somewhat better aspects.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You may break a stalemate or a dead - end mood by taking a sudden trip. Pick some place a considerable distance away, where there is someone you know and perhaps have some unfinished business to attend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Protect your health today while going about your regular routines. Help an associate or mate. Allow for interruptions and delays early in the day, resume work pace as soon as possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): For this once, stay away from your outdoor sports, put in any leisure moments reading what others say about these diversions. Dress conservatively at this time, also.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Events continue to move rapidly and may be near enough to upset your local conditions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your life speeds and then slows. The excitement of the morning hours is lost in the pressure to recover lost time in the afternoon.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Borrowing and lending are both taboo for Pisceans today. The aspects of the day provoke people into foolish actions.

Rogers, Gromyko Plan to Meet Again

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary William Rogers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko are finding enough worthwhile in their Mideast talks to meet once more privately before they leave New York.

The explosive Middle East situation dominated their 3½-hour dinner discussion Friday night. It was supposed to be their second and last meeting during the UN's fall session.

But with more ground to cover on guidelines toward an Arab-Israeli settlement, plus other unfinished business, the two men agreed on a third meeting expected to be held Tuesday.

Rogers told reporters he was "not discouraged" by the Mideast discussion so far, but refused to say more than: "We hope that progress can be made."

New Hips for Old Surgeons See Ring Technique

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

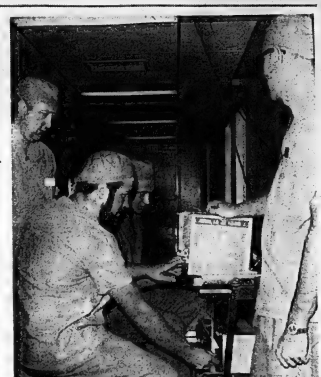
Heart and kidney transplants have given new life and hope to countless people around the world, but today in Belleville, hope for a pain-free existence was held out to Canadians afflicted with arthritic hips, when an English surgeon demonstrated his hip implant technique to orthopaedic surgeons.

Mr. Peter Ring FRCS performed his operation under the scrutiny of a closed circuit television camera this morning at, visiting orthopaedists watched in a special viewing room at Belleville General Hospital.

The demonstration was arranged by the medical staff association of Belleville General, with the co-operation of Delore Stellite, whose English company manufactures the prothesis used in the total hip implant.

Mr. Ring, considered one of the top four surgeons in his field in England, is the inventor of the technique known as the Ring total hip prosthesis replacement.

Both the ball and socket parts of the hip joint made inoperative by arthritis are replaced by metal substitutes.



Playing a major factor in Mr. Ring's decision to come to Belleville was the fact the chrome-cobalt alloy used in his hip implant is manufactured by Delore Stellite in England.

In Mr. Ring's prosthesis, the pelvic part is a cup wit ha three-inch threaded stem which is screwed into the pelvic bone. The thigh component, a ball joint on a stem, is inserted into the bone of the leg. Openings in the stem allow bone growth to strengthen the implant.

Dr. Harold Williamson, local orthopaedist who observed Mr. Ring during one of his operations in England, said patients are usually able to bear full weight upon their new hips within 24 hours of the operation. Their range of motion is greatly increased within two weeks and they can usually walk within months.

Mr. Ring perfected his method about five years ago and is now doing about 200 operations a year himself. Other surgeons, using his technique, are responsible for about 2,000 similar operations a year in the United Kingdom.

Prague (CP) — Czechoslovakia's government resigned today in a sweeping purge of liberals by the nation's Communist party.

The men swept out were followers of Alexander Dubcek, who held power when the Soviet Union led an invasion of Czechoslovakia in August, 1968.

Premier Oldrich Cernik's cabinet of 18 ministers and seven undersecretaries resigned unanimously, but Cernik was asked by President Ludvik Svoboda to form a new government, the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported.

The purge of government and Communist party officials was ordered at the end of a two-day examination by the Communist party central committee into alleged errors under Dubcek before the Soviet invasion.

Both Cernik and Svoboda were members of the original Dubcek government.

Although the resignation was announced after the central committee meeting, the fate of Dubcek himself was not immediately known.

Names of those affected by the shakeup were to be announced Sunday.

The announcement of the resignation from CTK confirmed that Cernik still stood conservative pressure to oust him.

Ottawa Shuns Court Case Over Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — Responsible Canadian officials are understood to be against having Arctic sovereignty thrashed out before the International Court of Justice in The Hague.

At least one mechanism apparently exists by which Canada could prevent the matter from going before a tribunal.

A group of MPs who recently visited Washington came back with the clear impression that the United States would haul Canada into court if this country declared the waters of the Arctic archipelago inland or territorial waters.

Washington they were told, wants unrestricted freedom of navigation through the Arctic basin.

The notion of unrestricted freedom of passage through the Arctic conflicts with the idea of innocent passage, as recently advanced by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp.

The last pre-supposes some form of supervision and control on the part of the coastal state, Canada, to see that any given voyage is in fact innocent.

If Canada agreed to unfettered, unrestricted navigation through the Arctic all types of vessels from any nation, including warships, could presumably roam at will on missions that in some cases might be inimical to Canadian security.

Apart from the security problem, this would create massive problems of pollution control, at least until stiff new international regulations are written.

Both the U.S. and Canada accept the jurisdiction of the world court to settle international disputes. However, the U.S. reserved the right to declare any particular issue in dispute a domestic affair, and hence outside the court's competence.

Canada could use the same device to head off a U.S.-sponsored court test on the sovereignty question, though external affairs department experts decline to say categorically that Canada would do so.

There is a feeling here that the U.S., while it hasn't officially come into the open on the Arctic sovereignty question, is not playing fair with Canada on the issue.

Canada's claims are felt to be much better based, historically and legally, than those of some other countries that have declared vast areas of ocean as inland waters in recent years—without being hauled into the world court.

It is also contended that the Soviet Union has made vaster claims in the Arctic than Canada, again without being challenged by the U.S.
